"Our services are geared to allowing the senior citizens to remain independent in their homes for as long as possible," Mrs. Metheny explained. "Our purpose is not for the Area Agency on Aging to provide every possible service ourselves, but to be able to coordinate and cooperate with the other service providers in the area to develop a complete service plan and eliminate duplication of services. How to Save Your Leftover Garden Seeds The ability of leftover seeds to germinate and grow depends on two factors-the kind of seed and how they are stored. The storage life of most seeds can be prolonged by storing in a dry cold area. The ideal humidity should be between 40 & 50%. Here are some suggestions for saving seeds to plant next spring. In the center of a paper towel place 2 heaping tablespoonsful of powdered milk. One caution, however, the dry milk must come from a freshly opened container. It is processed and packaged at the proper moisture level but this changes after the package is opened. Next, fold the towel into a pouch. Secure this with tape or a rubber band. Place the pouch in the bottom of a wide mouth canning jar. Then place the seeds, in their packets, into the jar. Seal the jar tightly, using a canning lid and ring to exclude moist air. Finally, put the jar in the refrigerator-not the freezer. The powdered milk will soak up excess moisture from the seeds. Open the jar only when seeds are needed for planting

Analyze Your Corn Silage for Nutritional Values

Now that most of the corn silage has been harvested, some farmers are getting back results from their forage analysis. Several farmers are finding the nutritional values down from previous years. This probably can be attributed to the dry conditions we had this summer. It is extremely important that you know the nutritional values of your feed in order to provide the proper ration for your animals needs at the least cost. I have forage sample kits in my office that you can have upon request. You mail your sample and money directly to Cornell University.

Nitrates in Corn and Sorghum If you had a high nitrate level at harvest time and your crop been in the silo for at least three weeks, you should recheck the nitrate level. In many cases the level may drop up to 60% because of the fermentation. Kits are available at my office. The cost of checking is $3.00.

This is a way in which farmers can control over-abundant supply situations similar to what they have just faced. He said the programs will also provide a degree of insurance for farmers against price fluctuations and adverse weather conditions.

Continued from Page 27 Maryland's broiler industry is concentrated on the Eastern Shore but laying flocks are more generally distributed throughout the State. Gross income for Maryland's broiler industry was placed at $330 million in 1982. Egg production in Maryland is increasing. In spite of an average decrease of 4.5 cents per dozen in 1982, gross receipts rose by 14 percent to over $42 million.

As part of its effort to prevent the spread of avian influenza, MDA has stopped the sale of all poultry at Maryland auction markets for an indefinite period of time. This is only a temporary measure which is being imposed until this serious disease threat is brought under control. As soon as the State is determined to be safe, the order wil be revoked.

PUBLIC NOTICE In accordance with the mandate of 24 CFR 58.44(b), the Board of County Commissioners hereby gives a com bined Notice regarding the environmental reviews of the projects in the County's FY83 Community Development Block Grant allocation. The projects are (1) $222,000 for rehabili tation of 65 dwelling units to meet HUD minimum property standards to participate in the Section 8 program, and (2) $90,000 to capitalize a revolving Venture Development that will provide non-debt general-purpose capital for new or expanding businesses through short-term equity ownership. Both projects will operate on a County wide basis. (1) It has been determined that the request for release of the Federal funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment because (a) the housing rehabilitation project will involve only existing structures, and revolving fund is expected to be used for inventory, equipment and other working capital needs, and (b) specific additional reviews prior to applicant approval will assure necessary conditions are specified to avoid unforseen adverse environ ingly, the Board has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. An environmental review record documenting reasons why such a Statement is not required is available at the Garrett County Planning Office, Old Courthouse, Room

307, Oakland, for public examination and copying, upon request, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. No further environmental review of this project is proposed to be conducted before the request for release of Federal funds. All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are ivited to submit written comments to the office of the County Commissioners (Courthouse, Oakland, Maryland 21550) on or before November 25, 1983; all such comments will be considered, and the Board will not take any conclusive administrative action on the project before that

(2) On or about November 29. 1983, the Board will request in writing that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) release the Federal funds reserved for this project through the FY83 CDBG Program under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Garrett County will be certifying to HUD that the Board, and Ernest J. Gregg, Jr., official capacity as Chairman, consent to accept the jurisdic tion of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making, and action, and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification, upon its approval by HUD, will be that Garrett County may use the Block Grant funds and that HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under NEPA. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only for the bases specified in 24 CFR 58.75, including: (a) that the certifi cation was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Officer, (b) that the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with HUD's the release of funds on other requirements (24 CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to the HUD Area Office, 10 North Calvert Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21202. Objections to bases will not be considered by No objection received after the fifteenth day following the receipt of the County's writ ten request will be considered

Byron Reports Grants Awarded For Reclamation

The office of Congresswoman Beverly Byron reported vesterday the awarding of two federal grants by the Department of Interior for mine reclamation projects in Garrett County.

One grant in the amount of $350,970 has been provided to the Maryland State Bureau of Mines to operate its abandoned mine reclamation programs, including the salaries of program officials.

The second grant, in the amount of $222,425, will be used for three specific projects.

One is the clean-up of a 34-acre abandoned site in the Chestnut Ridge area near Grantsville. Runoff from this site is reportedly going into nearby Meadow Lake, a recreation area.

Another project is the cleanup of a water-filled pit adjacent to the West Shale Road near Grantsville. Runoff from this site is reportedly threatening Little Laurel Run.

The third project is the sealing off of a deep mine and bore hole at Sand Run near Table Rock to prevent drainage into the north fork of Sand River.

A bureau of mines spokesman said these projects are scheduled for reclamation in the spring of 1984.

Rodeheaver was admitted and discharged on Sunday while Horner was admitted and released the following day.

Carol Dailey, who had to be extricated from the automobile, was transferred to the West Virginia medical facility by the Southern Rescue Squad and is listed in "fair" condition this morning. She reportedly suffered a broken pelvis and

Garrett Records 18th Rabid Animal

Garrett County compiled statistics on its 18th confirmed rabies case late Novbember 15. after a raccoon was killed near Lynndale Road in Pleasant Valley and turned over to the health department Monday.

The animal first appeared on the Oliver Beckman property and approached several children before wandering into a wooded area on the Frank Knox property where it was killed by Gary Beckman.

According to Rodney Glotfelty, rabies prevention coordinator for the health department, there was no exposure to humans or domestic animals in this case.

The raccoon is the 17th to be confirmed as having rabies this year in this county. There has also been one confirmed case of the disease in a house cat near Bloomington.

Attends Symposium Glotfelty attended the North

American symposium on rabies at the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, for two days last week, hearing over 60 speakers from all over the world present information and research data on the disease.

Glotfelty was particularly interested to note the many strains of rabies around the world, and in particular the four most frequently found in the U.S. These are a strain in skunks, mainly found in the midwest; a strain in foxes in the northeast: another in raccoons in the mideast and Florida and Georgia; and the fourth in bats all over the United States. The latter strain does not seem related to the other terrestrial strains in this country, according to the latest documented information.

GCC Officials Begin Search For New Dean

Garrett Community College officials are looking for a new dean in the aftermath of Robert Trantham's resignation as dean of the college in October. However, the new dean position will carry different responsibilities and will be titled dean of academic affairs.

GCC president Randall Harman said last week the new position will involve supervision of academic divisions, student affairs, continuing education, career counseling and placement and athletics.

The change in dean titles represents a restructuring of the administration at GCC, Harman explained, by consolidating the responsibilities of the dean of the college with those of dean of instruction, a position held by Harman even during his first year as GCC president. Now there will be two deans serving under the president instead of three: dean of academic affairs and dean of administrative services.

The college is advertising for the position in area newspapers, throughout the state community college system and in the Chronicle of Higher Education, Harman said. Applications for the position will be accepted until November 18. College officials hope to fill the position by January 1, 1984.

County Officials Request Change In HUD Grant

A request for a slight change in a HUD grant, appropriated in August, has been directed to HUD officials, reported Tom Jones, county development director, during the November 2 meeting of the county Development Corporation.

HUD, under a special jobs bill appropriation, allocated $250,000 to Garrett County for development of the proposed Southern Garrett Industrial Park, located on Bausch & Lomb, Inc. property, south of Route 135.

The original grant specified the development was to attract one prospective business. The change in the grant, Jones explained, is that three small employers, rather than one large, intend to locate at the

The application for the designation, sent in before the October 15 deadline, is the county's third try. Commissioners Describe Meetings

Held Down State The Garrett County commissioners, during their Tuesday press conference, discussed the array of meetings they attended Wednesday and Thursday while in Annapolis and Washington, D.C., and said they felt the time was all well spent.

The commissioners spent Wednesday in Annapolis attending a legislative meeting of the Maryland Association of Counties, but they indicated no action had been taken by MACO to determine its final position on the legislative issues addressed. Among the issues discussed were state funding of education and the state pension system.

The commissioners attended a luncheon meeting with Congresswoman Beverly Bryon held for officials of the counties in the sixth congressional district. The commissioners described the meeting as an informal luncheon when they had an opportunity to talk with congressmen serving on various committees and to share their concerns about issues in the sixth district with Byron. Counties represented were Garrett, Frederick, Carroll and Howard. Garrett County was the only county represented by its full board of commissioners.

The commissioners also had a seven hour meeting in Annapolis Thursday with Fred Eskew, assistant secretary of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

OCCUPY NEW FACILITIES - The Garrett County workforce for the State Highway Administration has moved into the new maintenance shop and offices located at Keyser's Ridge. Wallace Beaulieu, district engineer, said the move from the Oakland office began October 17. The new facilities were needed to provide more space and to make the county SHA operation more efficient by placing the bulk of equipment and supplies near the state's two major highways in the county. The Oakland maintenance shop will remain in use as a satellite shop. There are two main buildings at the complex: one, pictured below, houses the garages where the trucks are kept, and the other, above, houses the mechanics shop, the administrative offices and storage space.

Mt. Lake Council Discusses Letter To Gov. Hughes

Mt. Lake Park's mayor and council spent much of their meeting time November 9 discussing Mayor Russell Alexander's recent letter to Gov. Harry Hughes concerning sewer moratoriums.

In his letter of November 2, the mayor expressed appreciation for the governor's concern for the wellbeing of western Maryland as expressed during Hughes' recent visit to the Healing The Rift . . .

Anyone who knows anything about Garrett County knows that there has always been somewhat of a rivalry between the northern and southern regions of the county. People will give a variety of explanations as to why this division came about, with many of them believing that it originated from what was a rather bitter conflict long ago over which town would be made the county seat, Friendsville or

In more recent years this attitude has been reinforced via the two county high schools. It's only natural that a rivalry would develop between the schools, particularly because of the many athletic contests which are held each year between them.

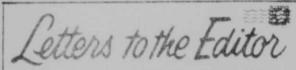

There was a time, however, that the rivalry included varying degrees of hatred between the students of the two schools. Pre-game fights, postgame fights and during-the-game fights were not

In more recent years, however, although the rivalry between the two schools is as intense as ever, the actual dislike for each other seems to have dissipated. The Southern-Northern football game for the past four or five years has been one of the cleanest played games in the area, and last Friday evening's contest was no exception. As is evidenced by one of today's letters to the editor, there is a warm comradery which has also developed between the members of the bands of each school.

We are thoroughly pleased with this change of attitude, and we extend much credit for it to the coaching staffs of each high school, particularly right now to Tom Woods of Southern and Jack Settle of Northern. The good-sportsman-like, Christian attitude of these individuals is made keenly obvious as it is emanated by the young athletes on the field. This mutual respect will stay with these young people for the rest of their lives and thus help continue to heal the rift between the regions of the county, which is ridiculous anyway.

The band directors and school administrators are also to be credited with instilling such a positive attitude. Good strong high school rivalries can remain so without the hatred and unsportsman-like behavior. Success on the field is also not sacrificed as proven by the fact that in four out of the past five years, one of the two schools has won the Region I championship.

Thanks, coaches, and best of luck to the Rams on Saturday.

As I was looking through the Republican I noticed that Mr. land had applied for a license to sell beer, wine and liquor on his Foodland property.

I think this liquor store business is getting a little out of hand. Everywhere you look there is a liquor store. I thought board. Where are they? Who are they? What do they do? We are hearing some noise and echoes about gun control. It is very interesting to realize our freedom has been won and preserved by the gun. Crime has been kept to the minimum. To the Editor:

I noticed in the legal notices section of last week's Republican that the Brownings of Browning's Oakland Foodland have made application for a Special Class D liquor license. It is my understanding that if Name withheld by request that application is approved, they plan to open a liquor store at the Foodland location.

I have been a resident of that neighborhood for several years and have never had any problem purchasing alcoholic beverages near my home, as there are currently 11 establishments within one mile of my home that are engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages. I really have to question the necessity of another such establishment, particularly since Browning's proposed liquor store will be located within 200' of an existing liquor store and within 300' of an existing tavern; not to mention the fact that Browning's Food-land presently sells beer. A businessman near Crellin was recently refused a license by the Liquor Board based on their determination that there is currently enough stores in his immediate area that sold alcoholic beverages. It will be interesting to see if the Liquor Board applies the same logic to this situation. Hopefully, they will.

I do not usually favor the regulation of business, but I cannot understand why the members of the business community cannot use their imaginations and offer something new and different to the public The consumer is, after all, interested in purchasing goods other than alcoholic beverages.

It is my hope that the Liquor Board will use their good judgment and deny this application. Name withheld by request

The "Bridge Dilemma" gets more complicated daily. It sounds like Clifford Friend and the Roads Department crew could fix Little Bear Creek bridge and save us all a lot of money

WHEN DID YOU FRST NOTCE YOUR BEEN ROBBED?

Utilizing the facilities on the Boeing 747 which carried me across the Atlantic proved impossible. The anxious line stretched to the first class section while we were somewhere over Iceland and by the time we reached Gatwick International Airport there was a veritable continuous slamming of lavatory doors. I retrieved my luggage and proceeded to customs. 'What is your reason for entering the United Kingdom?" the dour customs official asked. "I have to use the bathroom." I gasped.

He stamped my passport and I was carried on a sea of commuters to Victoria Station. I was oblivious to the surrounding landmark railway architecture and was preoccupied only with the urgency of my situation. The wheels on the bottom of my suitcase hummed as I shuffled along. A door, which appeared decptively similar to a bathroom door led to a room expressly devoted to nursing mothers. I bowed low to the group several times as I beat a hasty exit backwards.

A young lady approached me with a glassy-eyed stare which rivalled my own. She pinned a red poppy on my lapel.

"Excuse me," I blurted, "where are the rest rooms?" "I haven't the foggiest," she replied.

Well Merry Krishna to you," I shrugged. I pressed a donation into her hand and scurried off. I collided with an elderly "Terribly sorry," I apologized. "Could you tell me where there's a bathroom?' "A what?" she asked.

"A bathroom, a lavatory," I stammered. "Oh, you mean the loo. Sorry love, I'm not sure actually." I pursued a group of merchant seamen.

'Pardon me," I wheezed, "can you tell me where the . . . 'loo'

'The what?" they asked in unison. "The loo," I replied, "... the bathroom." "Oh you mean the bog," they said in unison again. "Couldn't tell you, mate." I dashed off and slid to a halt beside a school boy. 'Maybe you can help me," I began, "where's the 'bog'?"

"The what?" he chirped. "The bog . . . the bathroom," I answered. "Oh, you must mean the muck," he said. "Sorry, I can't help

I groaned and hustled down another corridor. I slowed and walked alongside a grey-coated business man.

'If you could help me sir, where is the 'muck'?" "The what?" he asked.

"You know - the muck . . . the bathroom." "Oh, you must mean the water closet," he chuckled. "I don't I descended a stairway and spied a uniformed guard.

"Please help me," I bleated, "where is the 'water closet'?" "Oh, the W.C. - why it's just down those stairs," he pointed. "Thank you!" I exclaimed and rushed down the stairs. A coin-operated turnstile blocked my entrance. I pulled a handful of change from the depths of my pocket and frantically fished for a dime. It was then that I realized another of England's terrible truths: British turnstiles do not accept American coins. I plucked the red poppy from my lapel and sold it to a passing gullible American tourist for 10 pence. Remaining level-headed in the face of incredible danger is one of my two greatest attributes. The other is modesty

Winter Weather Does Not Hinder Weekend Campers

Fifth grade students from Accident Elementary School stuck it out at Camp Hickory through the cold and snow this weekend for an outdoor education camp directed by Ann Wellham, Outdoor Education coordinator for Garrett Community College. Students from Wellham's GCC Outdoor Education class served as counselors.

This weekend was filled with activities and projects designed to allow students to experience 'taking charge' of themselves and their outdoor environment. Wellham said.

Learning survival skills, the students constructed a freestanding survival shelter and a survival kit. This kit, packed in a two-inch canister, contained a source for each of the following: heat, food, signaling, first aid, repair and shelter.

To experience orienteering, the students were instructed to follow a wooded course and locate points using a compass. Under camping skills, the students participated in outdoor cooking, preparing eggs and popcorn in paper bags. Nine types of knot-tying were taught, including the bowline and a Flemish bend. Crafts included leaf molds that were painted with water colors.

They were well-behaved and excellent to work

Speakers Hosted By Reading Class At Northern High

Yuliana Tambunan, or Indonesia, and Gerald Sword supervisor of Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls State Parks, were recent guest speakers for Mrs. Linda Buckel's advanced reading class at Northern High School.

Tambunan, an internationa guest of the United States fron Sumatra, Indonesia, discusseo the many differences between America and Indonesia and then spoke to the students about Indonesian teenagers in particular. The students then informed Mrs. Tambunan about several organizations in the school, such as student council, yearbook, school newspaper and sports programs.

Following a question-answer period, the students presented Mrs. Tambunan with a school key chain, a miniature football, a yearbook and a copy of The Viking.

Sword presented a slide show featuring Point Lookout State Park in St. Mary's County He explained that Point Lookout was the site of the largest prison camp during the Civil War and that many paranormal events have occurred since that time.

Sword has done extensive research and writing about this Civil War site. Mrs. Buckel's class had critically read and analyzed one such writing, 'Who Goes There?'', published by the St. Mary's County Historical Society.

It was after reading this that Mrs. Buckel extended the invitation to Sword to visit the Juveniles Suspected In Three Property

Progress and engineering contracts for the Deep Creek Lake sewer system construction were the chief topics at the November 8 meeting of the Garrett County Sanitary Commis-

According to Wendell Beitzel, sanitary district administrator. the commission agreed to accept two proposals for services. The first, for engineering services and construction of the expanded system, was accepted from Rummel, Klepper and Kahl in the amount of $75,669.

The second, to provide construction observation services and construction management, was accepted from Greenhorne & O'Mara, at a cost of $193,505.

Although these amounts may be slightly higher than originally anticipated, the grant will be re-evaluated before funds are allocated and Beitzel said this re-evaluation will reflect the additional charges. Although approved, the grant funds have not yet been re-

Contracts two and five, for Lake Shore Drive and Glendale Road, are substantially complete. All eight pipeline contracts are due to be completed by November 22, and it appears that all will be finished with the exception of Strohecker which is working along Route 219 south. Strohecker crews encountered numerous problems in boring under Route 219.

Almost all grinder pumps have been set with the exception of a few which had to be specially ordered and approximately 15 which remain to be set along Lake Shore Drive. In many cases the contractor still has the sewer pipe and electrical connection work to complete, however.

To Drill Well

The commission agreed that since a spring in the vicinity of the sewer treatment plant had dried up during the past summer, it will provide funds to drill a well. The treatment plant design had incorporated the spring and one nearby family has rights to the water so the commission voted to install a well at the site.

Rams To Clash With Poolesville In Class C Semi-Final Contest

The Southern Rams football team will depart Friday morning for Poolesville High School where they will meet the number one ranked Class C team in the state on Saturday at 1 p.m. in a state semi-final clash.

It is the third time in the past three years the Rams have made the playoffs, but they have yet to capture a state title. They first went to the playoffs in 1979 and lost to Smithsburg, 41-6, in the championship game after whipping Snow Hill, 26-11, in the semi-finals. The Rams had gone undefeated in the regular season that year and finished at 11-1.

Southern advanced to the finals again the following year by defeating Linganore, 22-6, in the semi-finals, but they lost to Snow Hill in the title game, 32-14. They had gone 7-3 on the regular season that year.

If the Rams defeat Poolesville, they will meet the winner of the James M. Bennett-Brooklyn Park contest in the title game next Friday at College Park.

The only common opponent between Southern and Poolesville is Valley and the Black Knights nearly upset Poolesville as the score was tied 28-28 going into the final quarter. Poolesville emerged the winner, 43-28, in what was their closest game of the season.

"This will definitely be the most talented team we face this year, as well as the quickest," Coach Tom Woods stated. They play eight seniors on offense and eight on defense, and they are explosive.'

Poolesville is led offensively by split end Mike Curtis, 5-9. 145, who is the fastest player the Rams have seen since Beetle Robinson of Musselman; slot Ralph Helms, 5-9, 160, who Woods said is a "carbon copy" of Curtis with "great speed and great hands;" fullback Keith Wilkins, 6-2, 215, a major college prospect who is an inside and outside threat; tailback Irvin Smith, 5-10, 165, who is a runner similar to Dave Terrant; quarterback Mike Butts, 5-9. 155, who Woods says is "a good leader and mechanically impressive;" and center Eddie

Chapman, 6-2, 220. Poolesville uses a multiple-I offense and is a 50-50 run-pass team. They prefer to score by the big play rather than to grind it out. They are averaging about 30 points per contest.

Defensively they are led by Curtis and Helms at the corners; Chapman at tackle; nose guard William Arthur, 6-1, 220; and linebacker Ed McHugh, 5-10, 165.

"We have told the kids that when two high scoring teams meet, it is usually the team with the best defensive performance that wins," Woods said. "We need our best defensive effort of the year, but we must also capitalize on every offensive opportunity.

Playing during the day and on their field will obviously be an advantage for Poolesville,

Laker Women End Season At Region Tourney

The Garrett Community College women's volleyball team wrapped up its season in the first round of the Region XX NJCAA Tournament at Essex Community College in Baltimore this past weekend. Garrett failed to qualify for the semi-finals by falling prey to Charles Community College, Hagerstown Junior College and Montgomery College.

Charles CC was ranked eighth in the nation going into the tournament and handily crushed the Laker squad, 15-1 and 15-4, as Garrett failed to pass the serve well enough to generate an offense.

Against Hagerstown, Garrett again failed to make the transition from defense to offense and gave up too many unearned points. Hagerstown went on to place second to Charles CC in pool play and qualified for the tournament finals.

GCC played well against Montgomery in a rallying effort, "but simply didn't have enough left at that point to win," Coach Mike stated. Garrett lost 15-11 and 18-16, to Montgomery. Sue Harper and Christy Fratz each scored on six hits and Fratz recorded 11 digs in the two games for a new school record. She also held the previous defensive record with eight digs, a feat she accomplished twice. For sophomores Kathy Baker, Mary Dougherty and Susan Harper, this was their last performance on the Laker squad. Harper and Baker are planning to continue their education and their volleyball participation and are presently considering several opportunities. Dougherty is a veterinary science technology major and plans to seek employment in that field. "We didn't go down there planning to attain a national ranking," Friend said. "We did feel we could have given better account of ourselves against Charles CC, but we were a bit intimidated and ended up reacting to their game rather than executing our own game plan.

"Hagerstown just rose to the occasion and beat us," he continued. "They're a good team and certainly deserve their success. What happened to us against Montgomery is about what you'd expect at the end of a day such as we had. We simply ran out of gas emotionally and physically. "Our team showed a lot of heart and character and they finished with class. Our freshmen now know exactly what it takes to do well in our region and our future goal setting will be more meaningful as a result."

In summing up the season Friend called it "very enjoy-

Snowy Roadways Among Causes

Of Auto Mishaps Snow covered roadways and wandering deer headed the list of causes of several auto accidents this week, according to Maryland State Police records.

On Monday, a UPS van being driven by Craig Lease, 22, of Cumberland, slid into a 1975 Lincoln Continental being driven by Charlene Browning, Oakland. According to reports, the accident occurred at approximately 3:45 p.m. on Route 219 near the Sand Flat Road.

The Browning vehicle was southbound on Route 219 and the van was heading north when Lease applied his brakes to avoid an unidentified vehicle sliding into his lane. The Lease vehicle then began sliding on the snow covered surface, slid into the southbound lane, struck the Browning vehicle, continued onto the shoulder and

Four passengers in the Browning vehicle, Edith Browning, Cherie and Christy Browning and Stephanie Piper, were uninjured as were both drivers. No charges were made. One driver's failure to grant right-of-way resulted in a collision at the intersection of Route 219 and the Bumble Bee Road, also on Monday.

A 1970 Cadillac Coupe Deville, operated by Rosalyn Ruth Wilt, 28, of Grantsville, was northbound on Route 219 when a 1980 Chevy Citation operated by Herbert G. Coo. McHenry. failed to yield right-of-way and struck the Wilt vehicle.

There were no injuries either of the drivers or to Emma Weimer, Grantsville, a passenger in the Wilt vehicle, or Louise Coo, McHenry, a passenger in the Coo vehicle.

Coo was charged with failure to stop at the entrance of a highway or stop sign. Tfc. L.N. Smith was the investigating

Randy Dale Crosco, 21, Oakland, was operating a 1977 Chrysler Cordoba on November 9 along the Hutton Road, when a deer ran in front of him. Crosco applied the brakes, swerved onto the right shoulder, striking the animal and then a small tree. Tfc. L.N. Smith was the the Brode vehicle. Brode was Sweitzer, Swanton, was westbound on Route 135 near Youghiogheny Drive in Mt. Lake Park, when a 1979 Ford Fairmont operated by Vesta P. McSpadden, Oakland, struck his vehicle from behind. The Sweitzer vehicle was stopped in the lane waiting for a vehicle in front to make a left turn when McSpadden failed to stop. There were no injuries.

McSpadden was charged with operating a vehicle at a speed greater than reasonable or prudent. Cpl. E.D. Selby was the investigating officer.

On November 8, a 1973 Buick being operated by Linda R. Severe, 33, Oakland, was westbound on Philadelphia Avenue, Mt. Lake Park, and failed to stop at the stop sign at the intersection of that street and I Street. The Severe vehicle then struck a 1979 Pontiac being operated by Sybil Jill Warnick, 25, Oakland. Neither driver nor passengers Stacey and Joshua Severe and Chad Warnick, were injured. Severe was charged with failure to stop at a stop sign. Col. Mattingly was the investigating officer.

Courtland Joseph Helbig, 29, Oakland, was operating a 1984 Dodge on November 7 when he backed from a private drive onto the Crellin-Underwood Road and into the path of a 1981 Chevy van being driven by Michael Stahl, 35, Aurora, W.Va. Stahl swerved to the left to avoid the Helbig vehicle, skidded 15 feet and ran into a ditch on the left side of the roadway and struck the Helbig vehicle in the left side.

Trout Run Charges The town of Loch Lynn has made payments through October 12 for sewerage treatment for the town, but its neighboring town of Mt. Lake Park remains firmly opposed to payment of the charge until Oakland is made to pay for treatment for Broadford Park Loch Lynn's treasurer was authorized to pay for July,

August and September, and the town officials have requested minor changes in the written agreement with the sanitary commission to provide treatment. These changes are in the process and the town has indicated it will sign the revised agreement, according to Wendell Beitzel, sanitary district administrator. Mt. Lake, however, is remaining firm that it will not pay the $2,470 owed for each month since the close of the fiscal year June 30 until Oakland is made to pay for sewerage generated at

Beitzel has presented an amended agreement to Oakland, requesting some payment for the services at the Trout Run plant but Oakland has not responded to the proposal.

Mt. Lake Park Mayor Hussell Alexander, Sr. was quoted Monday as saying that the towns (Mt. Lake and Loch Lvnn) were never consulted when the agreement was made to provide the Broad Ford Schools and park with service. He is adamant in his request that these users should pay something. Alexander continued by saying that "I personally feel that the sanitary commission made the deal with Oakland and the Board of Education and if the sanitary commission wants to absorb the costs of treating the sewerage generated by the schools and park, that is fine with the town, as long as costs are not passed along to us.

held Monday evening in Keyser. The seven Ram football standouts named to the all-star squad were running back Dave Terrant, who leads the area in scoring and rushing; offensive end Jim Freeman, offensive lineman Anthony Andrews, defensive lineman Danny Clark, linebacker Jeff Beeman, defensive end Chris Foley, and safety Steve Bennett. Terrant also shared top scoring honors in the conference with Kevin Bain of Musselman, as both players finished with 30 points in Division One action.

Baseball players from Southern named to the all-star team were 1983 graduates Ron Bosley and Kevin Winters and junior Scott Stem.

Winters, a first baseman, led the team in hitting, home runs and RBIs with a batting average of .375. He presently plays basketball for Garrett Community College. Bosley, pitcher and outfielder, who hit .328, was named Most Valuable Player for the Rams in 1982 and 83. He presently is attending West Virginia University and is a member of the WVU football team. Stem, called by Ram Coach Jim Bosley "the best defensive infielder I've ever coached," hit 300 for the season. The shortstop will play a key role in Southern's 1984 season. Southern also was recognized for capturing the PVC fall golf championship.

I was determined that such a thing would not happen again this year, although I knew that my pace was really beginning to slow, not because of my knee, but because of overall exhaustion. The worst was yet to

Mile 22

Most runners who prepare for a marathon rarely exceed 20 miles in one training run (unless you are more of a fanatic, like Bill Pope). This test of endurance (just kidding, Bill) became a brand new ball game for me at this point, for I had never run over 22 miles at one time. And I can assure you, I was no longer having fun. A person has to be nuts to try to run this far! As we rounded the tidal basin of the Jefferson Monument, it suddenly dawned on me that I had hit what is known in the running world as "the wall."

The wall is that point in a marathon, usually between 18 and 22 miles, when the carbohydrate supplies in the body are completely depleted and the only place left for the body to receive energy is directly from muscle tissue. That huge plate of spaghetti and those two loaves of bread I had eaten the evening before (doing what is known as carbohydrate loading) was no more. The muscles in your legs, and even in your arms, chest and back, begin to scream at your brain to STOP.

NOW. But something in your brain tells the muscles to hang in there and that everything's going to be okay.

By the time I reached the 23-mile marker just before crossing the George Mason Bridge back into Virginia, I was convinced that the Marines had doubled the distance between these markers. A mile just isn't this long!

SEVERAL RAIDER PLAYERS WERE HONORED at a banquet given Sunday at the Dennett Road School by the coaching staff and family members. The Oakland Raiders captured the 1983 Mt. Top Football League Championship by defeating the Thomas-Davis Rams, 14-0, on October 22. Head coach Kevin Liller, along with his staff, Steve Liller, Mike McHenry and Eric Wotring, paid tribute to all the players for a "great team effort." For just a few moments after I passed the 24-mile mark, the sun came out. I thought, Where have you been all day?!" Its rays seemed to help a little, perhaps only psycologically, but at this point, everything was psychological. A few days before the race, a friend prepared a token of encouragement for me. GCC Lady's Team Plans Orientation

The Garrett Community College Women's Basketball Team has scheduled its annual orientation weekend November 18-20 at Camp Hickory, Accident, according to Ann Wellham, head coach for the Laker team and coordinator of GCC's Outdoor Education Program.

"There is value in applying principles of Outdoor Education to other fields; athletics is no exception. Concepts important in Outdoor Education are equally important in athletics,' stated Wellham.

Parallel concepts to be emphasized this weekend are competition, cooperation, development of goals and problem-solving. Team members will be placed in situations where they must take group initiative and establish team goals and rules. These group initiative skills are compatible with Outdoor Adventure Skills and are intended to build better individuals as well as better team players, Wellham said.

Local Student Assaulted During FFA Convention

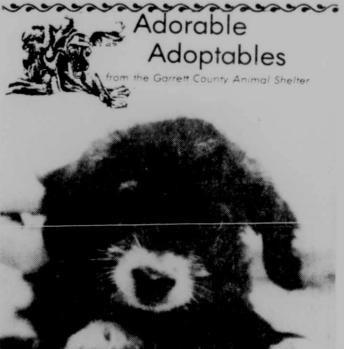

The state advisor for the Maryland Future Farmers of America organization will be at Southern High School Friday to discuss problems resulting from an attack on a local student who was a delegate to the national FFA convention in Kansas City last week.

The student was one of three from Southern chosen as delegates to the annual Missouri convention, and was reportedly attacked Friday night by a driver employed by the Yellow Cab Company in Kansas City.

However, the young woman was assaulted, and after the attack the driver took the young woman back to the hotel. The victim was later treated and released at a Kansas City hospital.

Sgt. Walker, who said that the cab company officials are cooperating to determine which of their men is responsible, said that no arrests have been made as yet and noted that this is the first such incident in their city in all the years that thousands of delegates have been convening there.

The three local students were part of five busloads from Maryland attending the statesponsored event. Each bus has three or four adult chaperones provided by the state for the

Franklin G. Finch has comment's activities and progress for the past year, from the time he was appointed to office October 15 of last year by Gov. Harry Hughes until the end of October this year. He pointed out that his policies have resulted in savings of several thousand dollars over the year, since he took office following the death of Sheriff John Evans

Sheriff Finch cites as his first duty a problem with an employee who had violated departmental rules and regulations, and noted that the employee was suspended for 29 days without pay and placed on probation for one year with no pay raises. The sheriff said that he felt the firmness was necessary to set a standard for behavior and performance.

The sheriff's next move was to convass the local pharmacies and food markets to determine the lowest prices and the most convenient places to purchase all food and medical needs for the jail. This canvas will be done each year to ensure that the department is paying the lowest prices possible.

A communication system was started with the Maryland State Police, in particular with the men involved in the criminal investigation section.

On February 4, Sheriff Finch contacted the Board of Education to see if bulk food items could be obtained. This has proven to be cost effective, according to the sheriff, with the county jail receiving as much as 800 pounds of chicken and 600 pounds of turkey on occasion, in addition to large quantities of other food items.

On March 3, confirmation was received from the Department of Correction that the county jail was overdue to have its daily allotment upgraded. The local department was required to submit a list of all state inmates who had been incarcerated here during the past, and the county would be paid retroactive to 1980. A REALTOR'S MANY HATS

On first contact with the real estate business, many people ask why negotiations are so complicated. The first reason that comes to mind is the matter of money. When one is dealing in five and six figure amounts, it's not like going out to purchase clothing or ever. an appliance.

Other reasons concern the various and differing areas involved. Realtors need a working knowledge of a wide range of subjects in order to serve their clients. These include federal, state, county and local laws and ordinances. He must also have a working knowledge of construction including methods, materials and labor. Financing, planning, environment, educational and recreational facilities are a few other matters with which he must be conversant.

The modern-day professional realtor is a product of civilization. A stone-age: ancestor of ours didn't need a realtor; he just; got a heavy club and stood in front of his; cave. The club was his "deed," and everyone else knew the cave was HIS! Things are quite different now!

SOME 1.8 MILLION CHILDREN DISAPPEAR EACH YEAR and the Garrett County sheriff's department, the Board of Education and local Parent-Teacher Associations are banding together to help identify children when found. The process of fingerprinting school age children was explained by Sheriff Franklin G. Finch at the November 7 meeting of the Broad Ford PTA. Fingerprints will be taken of both the child's hands, and the cards will be given to the parent or guardian for safekeeping. Authorization for fingerprint taking must be signed by the parents or guardians before a child may be fingerprinted, according to Sheriff Finch. Also at the Monday night program, Deputy Larry Gnegy explained the "Kids in Safety Seats" (KISS) program which will become law January 1. The law requires that all youngsters three and under must be confined in approved safety seats, and all children between ages three and five must wear seatbelts.

Board Convenes

The Garrett County Forestry Board held a dinner meeting on November 8 at the Starlite Steakhouse in Oakland.

The Garrett County Board had sent letters to all of the other county forestry boards in the state asking if they would support reactivating the Forest Conservation Workshop, which the Maryland Association of Forestry Boards had sponsored in the past. This program was designed to give high school students, interested in careers in conservation, some insight into the jobs available, and the training necessary to quality for these positions. Approximately eight forestry boards indicated a willingness to participate in the program with the Garrett board.

The members felt this would give them an adequate number of students for the program, and decided to continue their efforts. A program committee was appointed to establish the format, cost per student, selection of students, etc. Once the program committee has established these criteria, the Board will meet and the counties which had not replied will be contacted again and given this information. Maryland will celebrate its 350th birthday in 1984 and the forestry boards will be striving to be a part of the commemorative activities. Five Wye Oak saplings will be given to each county forestry board to be planted in the County as part of these activities. The Garrett Board compiled a list of possible locations for these plantings and contacts will be made to see if it would be feasible to plant in these areas.

Another program which proved to be of interest to the Board members was the Tree City USA program which is sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation. This program provides recognition for towns and cities across the United States who are actively managing their tree resources.

Economic Impact Of Supplemental Income Is Noted

"Many people do not realize the economic impact of the Supplemental Security Income program in our area," according to Elaine Watson, Social Security district manager in Cumberland.

Teachers' Workshop Set For Saturday At Holiday Inn

Members of the Garrett County Teachers Association have been invited to participate in two workshops-in-one designed to help them cope with stress in their teaching jobs and their legal rights as teachers in the classroom, announced Betty S. White, GCTA president.

This Saturday, November 19, at the Grantsville Holiday Inn, starting at 9:30 a.m. with breakfast, Dan Collins, president of the Howard County Education Association and former vice president of the Maryland Teachers Association, will direct a workshop in identifying stressful situations and offer helpful techniques to eliminate them or better cope with them.

Collins has conducted workshops on teacher stress since 1978. Cindy Downton, GCTA secretary and teacher at Southern High School, will serve as stress workshop facilitator.

Following this presentation. Jim Whattam, legal counsel for the MSTA who services western Maryland teacher association affiliates and their members, will outline various legal situations of potential harm experienced in everyday classroom situations. Whattam will provide members with a list of do's and don't's of legal protections for classroom teachers. Tom Shaffer, UNISERV representative from MSTA and NEA, will assist Whattam.

The Saturday Workshop is cosponsored by the Allegany County Teachers Association in cooperation with MSTA and is open free of charge to any Association member.

BREAKING THE BROWN BAG BLAHS

For whatever reason, more Americans are now making and carrying their own lunch. There are many ways to make a packed lunch more inviting, while still being nutritious and safe-here are a few:

*Lunch boxes should be spotlessly clean and well-ventilated.

*Use insulated containers to keep hot foods hot and cold Local Members Attend foods cold. Use wide-mouthed containers for soup, stews, chili, salads, and sandwich fillings and narrow-necked ones for beverages.

*Don't forget variety-it helps keep the lunch more nutri-

State Seal To Be Used On All MDA Vehicles

As part of a beginning statewide commemoration of the 350th anniversary of the founding of Maryland, the Maryland Department of Agriculture has selected the Great Seal of Maryland to be an identifying insignia on departmental cars and trucks. Noting that the seal depicts a farmer as one of its main features, MDA Secretary Wayne A. Cawley says he feels it is appropriate for the Department to acknowledge the role agriculture has played in Maryland's developing history.

Originally agriculture was the only industry in the state, when colonists marketed their tobacco crops. During the Revolutionary War, Maryland agriculture played a major part in supplying union forces with food products, and the Eastern Shore became known as "The Breadbasket of the Revolution." "Today, Maryland agriculture has changed materially from its initial concept," Cawley said. "However, it still remains the most productive industry in the State with many of its commodities being exported to markets all around the globe."

Corn From PIK Program Over 8 Million Bushels

Maryland farmers received 8,313,853 bushels of corn and 26,087 hundredweight of sorghum for participating in the 1983 payment-in-kind program, according to William B. Crum, Chairperson of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

PIK is a land diversion program designed to bring supplies more in line with demand by providing farmers an amount of commodity for reducing acreage by a larger amount than called for under the voluntary acreage reduction and paid land diversion

Crum said corn and sorghum payments-in-kind became available on October 15. "The CCC will pay up to five months of storage cost from this date to redemption of the commodity in order to give farmers marketing flexibility," he said.

Crop Production Down Dramatically

Precipitation in October ranged somewhat below normal in parts of the southern eastern shore of Maryland to over two and one-half inches above normal in some north central areas west of the Chesapeake Bay. Temperature during the month averaged a little above normal. The timing of precipitation received this year has not been optional for corn, soybeans, tobacco and other spring planted crops.

In November, the Crop Reporting Service estimated a Maryland corn crop of 35.8 million bushels. This estimate is unchanged from the forecast of October 1. It is 49 percent less than the 1982 corn crop. The number of acres for harvest is off by 110,000 acres to 550,000 and the yield is forecast to average 65 bushels per acre compared to 107 bushels in 1982.

If expectations are realized, the Maryland soybean crop will be down 30 percent from 1982 to 8.3 million bushels. The forecast of average yield, at 23 bushels per acre, and total production are unchanged from a month

Nationally, the corn crop is estimated at 4.12 billion bushels, down 49 percent from 1982. The soybean crop will be off 31 percent to 1.54 billion bushels if expectations are realized.

The primary goal of Potomac Edison is to provide dependable electric service. Adverse weather conditions can sometimes disrupt this service. In such cases, there are several steps you can take to help us restore your electricity as quickly as possible:

Step 1 - See If Neighbors Have Power

Check your neighbors to see if they have power. If they do, the disruption of electric service may be in your own home. Check for blown fuses or tripped circuit breakers which may require the services of an electrician.

Step 2 - Call Your Power Company

If your neighbors are also without service, call your electric company. (Potomac Edison local telephone numbers are listed on the reverse side of your electric bill or in your phone book.) Give your name, address, phone number and any other pertinent information. During major storms, you may receive a busy signal on your first attempt. Please keep dialing until you reach us. Stay clear of any fallen wires and caution others to also keep away.

Step 3 - When Your Power Is Off

When your power is off, leave one light switch in the "on" position so that you'll know when your electric service is restored. Turn off any major appliances which you may have been using when power was interrupted. Do not open refrigerator or freezer doors while power is off. Food will keep for up to two days if the doors are kept closed.

Step 4 - Emergency Equipment

- Flashlight with extra batteries
- Manually operated clock
- Candles and hand-operated can opener Portable battery-operated radio

The Agricultural Transfer Tax is directly related to this and through lack of knowledge of this tax there have been numerous problems as reported that lawyers, particularly urban lawyers unfamiliar with rural land transactions, owners, and buyers discover to their dismay at the time of settlement that the deed cannot be recorded until the tax is paid. Where the problems have surfaced, the acreage tax has been nearly $900, but a tax much larger than this is not at all uncommon and comes as a shocking surprise at settlement

The Nutrition Committee of the American Heart Association has prepared a series of articles providing information and recipes for healthier diets. Another of those articles, supplied by Wendy Norris, dietician for the Garrett County Memorial Hospital and a member of the commmitte, is as follows:

Woks are popular items with good reason, steaming vegetables are tasty and minimize nutrient loss. Also, many people prefer vegetables without added fat. Any cheese sauce etc. you may have planned should be served in a side dish to offer an option to its use. A pan (particularly Silverstone) where quick cooking foods can be pushed up the sides while the longer cooking items are steamed is appropriate, so you need not deprive yourself of this taste sensation if wok funds are not available.

Somehow though, bread stuffing lurks in the minds of most turkey feasters. Rather than eliminating it from your meal, we suggest combining it with vegetables to lower its overall calorie content. The recipe below exemplifies this suggestion:

Walnut Broccoli 3 10 oz. packages of frozen Chopped Broccoli

6 T. Margarine

4 T. Flour 1 c. Chicken or Turkey Broth

2 c. Skim Milk

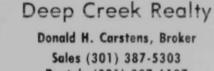

2 c. Herbed Poultry Stuffing (crumbly type)

Cook broccoli according to package directions until just barely tender. Drain well and place in an oiled 2 quart casserole. Melt 2 tablespoons of the margarine in a saucepan. Stir in the flour; cook briefly; and then add the milk. Add the chicken (or turkey) broth and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Set

Melt the remaining 4 tablespoons of margarine in the 2a cup of water. Mix with the herb dressing and walnuts. Pour the chicken (or turkey) broth sauce over the broccoli; sprinkle evenly with walnut mixture and bake at 400°F for 20 minutes or

Meetings About Hazardous Waste Regulations Set

The Air Management Administration and the Waste Management Administration of the Office of Environmental Programs, Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, are holding three meetings to familiarize the public with proposed regulations that are designed to enhance the State's hazardous waste management

The meeting for western Maryland will be held Wednesday, November 23, at 1 p.m. in the Conference Room, OEP Field Office, Route 8, Naves Crossroad, Cumberland. The proposed State regulations control the thermal destruction (incineration) of hazardous waste. Federal requirements for hazardous waste incinerators are included in the State proposal. In addition, the proposed regulations 1) require a limited facility permit for hazardous waste burned to recover fuel value, 2) provide for a minimum heating valve cut-off in the determination of where hazardous waste may be thermally destroyed, and 3) insure that small quanities of hazardous waste accumulated for incineration are not exempt from regulation. Although entirely consistent with EPA intent, the proposed State regulations are more comprehensive than current EPA requirements.

Under the proposed regulations, hazardous waste incinerators which are required to obtain a full facility permit are relieved from permit requirements of the Air Management Administration. The proposed regulations, however, assure that Maryland air emission standards are imposed on all thermal destruction facilities.

Regulations are also being proposed to control land disposal facilities. Proposed State land treatment regulations are identical to those issued by the EPA. State hazardous landfill regulations exceed the federal regulations in the following ways: 1) all facilities must have double liners, at least one of which is synthetic; 2) all facilities must meet certain in-situ requirements; 3) land filling of liquids is banned. and 4) land filling of drums is banned.

Additional technical changes are proposed throughout the hazardous waste management regulations to assure consistency with federal standards. The adoption of State regulations is required for the Office of Environmental Programs to secure delegation from the EPA for the authority to issue State/federal permits controlling thermal destruction of hazardous wastes and hazardous waste land disposal facilities. Revisions are being proposed in both hazardous waste management regulations and air quality control regulations. The revisions to air quality regulations will also be made part of the State Implementation Plan to control air

Copies of the proposed regulations are available for review at the Office in Cumberland and at the Garrett County Health

For further information persons may contact Bernie Bigham at (301) 383-5740 or Joel Cooper at (301) 383-2410.

Giving Thanks, Taking Care . . .

An important part of giving thanks for what we have involves appreciating the value of our possessions and taking care of them.

None of our possessions in this life is more precious than life itself. Yet we are sometimes more careless about the protection of life than we are with our material possessions, even those lives most dear to us, such as our children.

One of the greatest and most common dangers to which we expose our youngest children is allowing them to ride in automobiles unrestrained. The sad facts are: that a 20-pound baby becomes a 400-pound missile in just a 20-mile-per-hour auto collision; that 100 newborns are killed every year in this country in car accidents on their first trip home from the hospital; and that car accidents are the leading cause of death for children. Since 1980, 22 children under the age of five have died in Maryland in auto accidents and over 1,500 are injured every year.

Several months ago in this column, we wrote words urging our legislators to support the car safety seat bill which had been introduced. To our pleasure, that bill passed and will become law on January 1.

For parents who can afford safety seats, we strongly urge them to purchase them and use them immediately. For persons who are experiencing financial difficulties, the Garrett County Health Department has a program available to assist them in acquiring safety seats for their children. Seats are available for babies under nine months old, or 18 pounds, and toddler seats can be installed for children who sit up well and weigh under 40 pounds. A five-dollar deposit is required for each seat and the rental fee depends upon each household's income.

Local law enforcement officers have informed us that they plan to enforce this law to the fullest extent, which will mean a $25 fine to those who do not obey it.

In those states where safety seat laws have been in effect for some time, there has been a dramatic drop in child fatalities and injury. They really do work.

On this Thanksgiving day, let us not just give thanks for our lives, but carry through, in a responsible manner, the protection of those lives. Children often don't know what can hurt them. Parents do, and there would be few greater tragedies with which to live than to lose the life of a child when that loss could have been prevented.

As a combat veteran, I cherish each and every right that we are blessed with by simply being a U.S. citizen. I feel that it is my right to speak out when I think one of these rights is being infringed.

Miss Barbara Lautman of Handgun Control, Inc. has mentioned the 1968 Gun Control Act. She said this act prohibited mail order gun sales which in fact it does. This in my opinion is one of the very few redeeming qualitites of this act. She says nothing about the 68 pages of government regulations also attached to this act. This act is in no way clearly written and leaves every law abiding gun owner subject to different interpretations of it.

The McClure-Volkmere Firearms Owners Protection Act is designed and written to provide clear and concise definitions. It also makes the intent to break the law the determining factor in any conviction, a fact which the gun control act of 1968 does not require. For example the control act does not clearly define who needs a federal firearms license and could possibly result in a person becoming a convicted felon for selling only one gun. The M-V Act would create a clear standard.

I feel that the second Stalks the horizon of our amendment clearly states that the people have the right to bear arms. We live in a free country, and there are those who will misuse their freedom. Americans Can Count Blessings On This Thanksgiving Day

by Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr.

All over the United States-in villages and farms, cities, and suburbs-Americans will be gathering this week to sing, "All is Safely Gathered In, Ere the Winter Storms Begin," the words of the Old Thanksgiving Hymn. But will people feel a sense of Thanksgiving as they sing that familiar phrase?

Many Americans will believe those words don't ring true in 1983, that much of our crop is still in the field and many of our chores left undone. Some will say there are evil forces in the world working against us. Others will blame bad luck, bad management, or hostile enemies. In the light of such disquieting perhaps Thanksgiving Day is a propitious time to evaluate America's position in the world.

How do other nationalities feel about the United States? As a haven, as a place in which to live in peace and in freedom, we have never been more popular. Literally millions of people from all parts of the world want to come to the United States. They view this as the very best place on earth to live, in spite of the difficulties we have. This is not necessarily because of our standard of living. The standard of living in various parts of Europe and Japan is comparable. It is not only the material advantages that inspire people to come to the United States, it is the stability of our political institutions, it is the freedom of life in America. Perhaps above all, it is the social mobility, the opportunity to advance in life, the chance for children to have a better life than their parents. These goals are much more difficult to achieve in almost every other place in the world. And that is why people want to

Those of us who already live here have much to be thankful for in the natural beauty of our land as well as in our political freedoms America is a place of extraordinary natural wealth, not in terms of minerals and oil but in terms of a place to live. The broad sky, the wide territory, the great waters, also make America a place to be thankful for on Thanksgiving Day 1983.

The meeting focused on the changing role from PIC since JTPA became effective on October 1, replacing the unpopular CETA program.

Thomas explained that PIC originally served as an advisory group under CETA, dealing with 10 to 15 percent of the Western Maryland Consortium programs, but will now oversee the entire program.

PIC's expanded role will involve it in determining procedures for development of the job training program, overseeing and monitoring program activities, assessment of labor market needs, assisting the job placement efforts of the Consortium and serving as the public relations group. Besides its expanded role in planning and implementation of Consortium programs, the PIC will have equal representation on the Consortium executive council which previously consisted of county commissioners from each of the three counties-Garrett, Allegany

During the meeting, Sue Shockey described the programs offered through the local office including the On-the-Job Training Program, heralded by Thomas as the "strongest program we operate.'

The county office staff plans to place 40 percent of its program participants in jobs in FY1983-84, Shockey said, adding 47 percent of clients were placed last year. She anticipated the office will serve 500 persons this fiscal year including adults, students and drop-four brothers and one sister.

Motor Fuel Sales. Revenues Higher

Maryland State Comptroller of Allegany High School and Louis L. Goldstein reported that motor fuel tax revenue for the month of October, 1983 totaled husband, Robert Reider, Vero $27,798,437, a 29% growth over the same month last year. "The rate of growth of the motor fuel tax revenue continues to be affected by the higher tax rate enacted by the General Assembly, which became effective June 1, 1983," Goldstein said. Maryland's motor fuel tax rate is 13.5% per gallon. It was 11 cents per gallon until June 1, 1983.

"The revenue growth is also partly attributable to continued growth in gasoline and diesel fuel use. The October, 1983 revenue is based on motor fuel sales during September, which included a holiday travel period and continued good weather. Motor fuel sales during September 1983, amounted to 176,456,248 gallons, a 3% increase over the 171,405,435 gallons sold during September 1989 " Goldstein said. For the first four months of Fiscal Year 1984, motor fuel tax revenue totals $103,051,192, a 26.1% increase over the $81,719,870 collected during the same period of the previous fiscal year.

"At this point, motor fuel tax revenues are coming in about 4% better than anticipated," Goldstein stated.

A PENSIVE MOMENT — Concentration, excitement and a handshake from a teammate were characteristic of Dave Terrant and the other members of the Southern Rams varsity football team moments before the Maryland Class C semi-final contest against top-ranked Poolesville on Saturday afternoon. Terrant, western Maryland's top rusher and scorer, turned in another impressive performance on Saturday, adding 81 more yards to his total of over 1,400 for the season, however the Rams were defeated by the Indians, 20-8, thus dashing Southern's hopes for a state title. The game was played nearly even, with the exception of three big scoring plays by Poolesville (see story). Photo by Melody Flinn, Highlander Yearbook staff of Southern High School.

Rams Stung By Big Play Ability Of Indians In Class C Semi-Finals

big play ability of undefeated High head coach Tom Woods was most concerned about as his Rams took the field against the Indians Saturday afternoon in the Maryland Class C semifinals. His concerns were quickly justified as the Indians scored like lightning on three long plays and went on to defeat the Rams, 20-8, thus eliminating Southern's third opportunity in five years for a state title. The loss brought the Rams' highly successful season to a close with a 9-2 record.

If it were possible to eliminate two defensive plays and to offensive plays by the Rams, the score of the contest may well have been in their favor. With the exception of a 31-yard pass-run play from Mike Bupp to Mike Curtis in the first quarter and a 64-yard scoring run by Irvin Smith in the third period the Ram defense held the Indians' offense in check.

Poolesville's fullback, Keith Wilkins, a major college in the fourth quarter offered the prospect at 6-2, 215 pounds who had been ripping through defenses all season, was limited to fewer than 20 yards by the swarming Ram defense. Bupp, who was averaging 63% pass completion rate, connected on Poolesville's insurance sixjust six of 14 against the Southern secondary

Meanwhile, the Southern offensive unit played one of its best games of the season, rolling up 190 yards on the ground Poolesville 42 when a second and adding 79 in the air on eight Gibson pass, also intended for completions in 12 attempts by J.R. Gibson, However, the two offensive plays that were so costly were a fumble by Tim times the yardage of the Tharp on the Indians' 11 in the third period and a pass interception by Poolesville's Ralph Helms on his own eight, which he carried 92 yards for the final touchdown of the game.

The tremendous speed and defensive stalemate until late in the quarter when the Rams County's leading rusher with Poolesville are what Southern attempted to run for a first 1,270 yards in the regular down on a fourth-and-two at season, finished with 161 yards their own 41-yard line. The contest was marred by numerous penalties, most of them occurring in the fourth period when the coaches of both schools felt that the referees had begun to lose control of the contest. Coach Woods was ejected from the game in the fourth quarter after being tagged with a second unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

The first call against Woods assist an injured player. Woods indicated later that the injured player had been clipped but there was no flag despite the presence of a referee right at the point of the alleged infraction.

Woods was hit with the second call and subsequently ejected, which is in accordance with Federation rules, after he trotted onto the field during a timeout. While he was on the field he made statements to the 11 seniors

'I was really shocked when graders, they really weren't they said I was ejected from the game," Woods said. "I gently told them, without raising my voice, that I felt they had let the game get out of control and asked that they watch everything because someone was going to get hurt.' Woods called the remainder of the game about ten feet away from the sidelines. Two players were also sent to the showers early, Drew Mc-Kone of Poolesville and Chris Foley of Southern. Poolesville coach Ernie Ceccato called the game a 'hard-hitting, aggressive, highspirited football game." He said he was impressed with Southern. "Those kids come off the ball and they hit," he stated.

"I feel that this was a case where the most dominating team overall lost and the team which was able to capitalize on opportunities won," Woods said. "We were victims of the big play, but overall I think we played very well. Our offense gained nearly 300 yards, J.R. (Gibson) played an excellent game with the exception of his interceptions, and except for two or three costly plays, our defense played a good strong game. We just couldn't contain Smith on every play.

This was probably the most physical game we've been in over the past two or three vears," he continued. "Poolesville is an even better team than season, however, most people that applied should receive an antlerless permit since there were only 3,100 applicants for Garrett County. For further information on this matter contact Tom Cofield at 269-3195, the Maryland Wildlife Admin-

Sportsmen are reminded that only those hunters who received a doe permit or landowners hunting on their own property may legally take an antlerless deer during the doe season. A commonly asked question about the antlerless season is that "if I get a buck in rifle season can I still take a doe with my permit." The answer is no! Only one deer is allowed with a rifle, either a buck or a doe but not both. The same law applies to landowners.

Muzzleloader season in this county will be December 12 through 19, but again a hunter must have a doe permit to kill a deer other than a buck. If a hunter has taken a deer during the regular firearms season he may not kill another deer.

Al Bourgeois, district wildlife manager for the Department of Natural Resources, reminds hunters of a new law requiring that only deer may be hunted on the opening day of hunting season, November 26. Rabbit, quail, grouse, etc., may not be hunted on that day.

Bourgeois also reminds hunters that they must wear either a cap, vest or jacket containing back and front panels of daylight fluorescent (blaze) orange.

Other laws which must be heeded include having no loaded firearms in or on vehicles, using no spotlights to hunt or even to check fields, and not firing across any paved or unpaved public road.

Official hunting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour after sunset. No hunting is permitted on Sundays. Kills are to be reported within 24 hours and deer are to be properly tagged with the forms accompanying purchase of a hunting license. For landowners, a homemade tag killed must accompany the deer

Report Violations

All area citizens and hunters are urged by the DNR to report potential game violations to their police department. The simplest way to reach DNR police is by calling the county sheriff's department at 334-2141, or Maryland State Police at 387-5511. If desired, those with possible law violations to report may call the regional DNR office at The law enforcement branch of DNR has been asking for citizen help to stop lawbreakers for the past three years as part of a REPORT (Rally Everyone Protect Our Resources Together) program but response has generally been poor so far. Cpl. Hunters Urged To Watch For Unusual Behavior In Deer

The Garrett County Health Department is reminding all hunters taking to the woods in search of the clusive whitetailed deer to be wary of animals acting abnormally.

Although rabies in deer is very rare, there have been cases reported this year in Maryland and Pennsylvania. Suspicious behavior, according to Rodney Glotfelty, rabies prevention coordinator for the health department, includes standing with no sign of fear of humans, and being unable to swallow, usually with vegetation unchewed in its mouth.

Eleven persons in Carroll County had to undergo the rabies treatment late last month when an eight-point buck may be trapped November 15 they thought was ill was discovered to be rabid.

Glotfelty urges all successful hunters to use caution in handling their deer, and to use gloves when skinning the animals

CHECK INSURANCE POLICIES

The dictionary defines "overlook" as "to fail to notice by carelessness." This word is a dangerous one in the real estate business, according to that definition. It's dangerous in the sense that if one aspect of a real estate transaction is overlooked, trouble, problems, and the possible loss of money can follow. As Realtors we take infinite pains to make sure nothing is overlooked.

Take insurance, for example. Everyone is well aware of its importance. Yet, it sometimes can be forgotten or taken-forgranted. We're talking instances about regarding insurance where a real estate transaction is concerned and finalized.

Out-of-State Men Given Sentences By Judge Thaver

Two out-of-state men entered guilty pleas before Judge Fred A. Thayer yesterday in Circuit Court proceedings and were sentenced accordingly.

Danny K. Easter, 33, Brownsville, Pa., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of theft and was sentenced to two years in the department of corrections. He will receive credit for time served in the Garrett County

The sentence stemmed from an incident occurring on the night of July 16 when Easter and three accomplices stole a vehicle from Pennsylvania. drove across the Maryland line where the vehicle became disabled and was abadnoned near Keyser's Ridge. The four were apprehended the same night.

A West Virginia man, Terry Edwin Shortridge, 33, of Hartmansville, W. Va., entered a plea of guilty for illegally obtaining welfare assistance amounting to $3,997.07 during a period between ctober 1979 and September 1981. He was a resident of Deer Park at the Shortridge was sentenced to a three-year term in the department of corrections, which was suspended. He was put on supervised probation for the three-year period, which was transferred to West Virginia and he must make restitution.

As of December 31, 1982 First National had a legal lending limit of approximately $1,040,000 to any one borrower, while at that time Cumberland Savings had a lending limit of approximately $385,000 to any one borrower.

This, and the similarity of the two bank's conservative philesophies, were among the reasons for the merger.

Also, according to the press release, the Cumberland area has a well-developed cemmercial/industrial base, vet Cumberland Savings is somewhat restricted in participating in loans of this type due to its legal lending limit. First National's market has a weak commercial/industrial base yet has a higher lending limit. The combination is expected to provide increased opportunities for commercial, industrial, residential, and consumner lend-

The merger is seen by both banks as being a very natural and positive response - "A merger for strength, a merger for growth, and a merger for success," as stated by Courtney Tusing Friday.

In his remarks Friday, John Conway said that "This will be a friendly union based on mutual trust and admiration." He also noted that First United will work to maintain its reputation as a "friendly bank."

often use-or actually misuse-them still can result in fire and health problems. It has some important rules you Grantsville BPW should follow if you decide to buy a kerosene heater: -Check to see that any heater you buy meets safety standards set by a national testing organization like Underwriters Laboratory. If a heater doesn't have a safety approval label on it, don't buy

-Use fresh, clear, highquality kerosene, identified as ASTM 1-K, in the heater. Don't use the kind of kerosene used for discal engines and other The club is planning to join purposes and for heaven's sake don't use gasoline!

-Carefully follow the manufacturer's instructions for refilling the heater, which in most cases advise you to refill it outdoors. Store the kerosene itself outside in a previously unused container, since kerosene and other liquids don't

-Be sure you have enough ventilation when using a kerosene heater. Some experts believe that enough air gets in and out of the cracks around the windows and doors in a home to provide sufficient ventilation when using a kerosene heater, but if you've tried to seal up all those cracks and insulated your home to prevent heat loss, you probably should open a window when you turn on the heater. Of course, opening a window could reduce the energy-saving value of any heater. You could face the same ventilation problem with a wood-burning stove.

-Don't place the heaters near anything that could catch fire, such as drapes or furniture. Keep the heater at least three feet away from anything flammable and don't set it up in such a way that your children or pets may bump into it. Don't use kerosene heaters in any room or area where you store flammable liquids.

-If you buy a kerosene heater, or any similar device, spend a few more dollars and buy a smoke detector, too. It's a wise purchase, regardless of the weather.

Background Scripture: Matthew 5:13-16; 28:18-20; 2 Cor inthians 5:18-21; 2 Timothy 4:1-5. Devotional Reading:

2 Timothy 4:1-5.

It is a sobering experience to be entrusted with something important. The more important that something is, the more sobering it is likely to be. Correspondingly, it may be unsettling to be reminded of something that has been entrusted to us and which we have largely forgotten or overlooked. How terrible to find that someone depended upon us and we have let them down. Sometimes, of course, we have the opportunity to make good on our original commitment. There is still time left to fulfill someone's trust in us. Other times, we come to the realization all too late and all we have left then is remorse and shame and a disappointment with ourselves.

GIVEN A MINISTRY

This column is written to remind you of something which has been entrusted to you--something which, perhaps, you may have forgotten or which needs renewed dedication and effort. It is an attempt to call this entrustment to your attention while there is still time to do something Corinthians 5 has been a soberabout it.

Writing his second letter to the church at Corinth, Paul uses these words to remind the Corinthian Christians--and us:

All this is from God, who through Christ reconciled us to himself and gave us the ministry of reconciliation; that is, God was in Christ reconciling the world to himself...and entrusting to us the message of reconciliation. So we are ambassadors for Christ, God making his appeal through us. (5:18-20) Now, just in case you may think I seized without justification upon that word "entrusting," please note that, not once, but no less than three times in that one passage Paul reminds us that God is depending upon us to fulfill the task with which he entrusted us: he "gave us the ministry of reconciliation,' rentrusting to us the message of reconciliation," and we are "ambassadors for Christ, God making his appeal through us." Clearly, our task: reconciliation.

BE RECONCILED

Stop and think a moment: how well have you carried out that entrustment? How much reconciling have you carried on in the world about you? Are you involved in reconciling people to God and each other, or do your activities tend to divide people and drive them further apart? What kind of appeal is God able to make through you?

I don't know how well you did on those questions above, but I must confess that I don't think I've done so well. All too often I've been involved in efforts that divide and alienate people. Instead of healing rifts, I have often worked at widening them. And even when I have not really been hurting the reconciling work of God in the world, I don't think I've been helping it a whole

Celebrities cash in on excercise

By Elaina Thompson

How much help can show business personalities generate by the self-help excercise books, albums and videotapes they create?

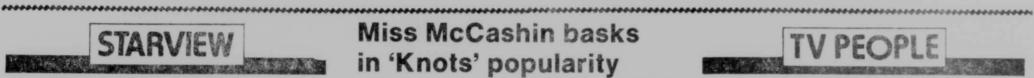

Apparently anywhere from zilch, if one is just skimming. to life-changing for the highly motivated Of the latter, Richard Simmons can draw on a pile of testimonials of grateful "losers." Some of them are 100 pound losers, who get invited to guest on his television series and inspire others to follow sane advice on good nutrition and hearty exercise.

Dedicated to keeping fit, Simmons' later projects spun from his first exercise salon. (He now has a network of around 100, all with child care facilities for mothers with young uns). Then came the best seller books, like "Never Say Diet.'

Although this season she seems to be the only character not romantically attached on CBS' "Knots Landing," Constance McCashin isn't complaining about her role as real estate broker Laura Avery.

"The response has been positive," says Miss McCashin. "This season I have no husband - it's been left to everyone's imagination - I'm a single parent on my own and it's survival of the fittest."

Usually the fittest member of the series is Donna Mills' character, Abby Cunningham Ewing, but now that the two women are both working for Gary Ewing Enterprises, Laura is bound to do more than just survive.

The Thursday night series, now in its fifth year, is doing likewise. "Knots" was recently given the OK for three additional shows, bringing this season's total to 25. One of the first series to go back into production (in February), this season's filming should be completed by December.

This will give Miss McCashin more time to spend with her 17-month-old son, Daniel, who appears as her youngest son on the series. She says, "I watch more 'Mister Rogers' than 'Knots

Despite her single status on the show ("husband" John Pleshette wanted out of the series although he will direct several episodes this season as he has in the past), Miss McCashin's character will still be in the middle of the dirty dealings as 'Knots" expands past the California cul-de-sac setting that serves as the base for the

Roseanne gets back to work with a new book

By Peter Meade

After a three-year absence Roseanne Roseannadanna is back. However, you won't find her on "Saturday Night Live," instead she's at your local

Miss Roseannadanna, "with lots o' help from Alan Zweibel and Gilda Radner (who bears quite a similarity to the author)," has written 'Roseanne Roseannadanna's 'Hey, Get Back to Work!' book (Long Shadow, $4.95).

Zweibel, a former "SNL" writer, who's currently work ing on a novel, and Miss Radner are the "parents" of Roseanne Roseannadanna, the nosy newswoman who made such an impact on the "SNL's" "Weekend Update" segments.
"The name was patterned after Rose Ann Scamardella (a New York City newswoman), but not the character, says Miss Radner. "It was during the time before there were many women on the news broadcasts. We always watched the news with an eye

Now in "Get Back to Work," which contains what is probably the longest preface of any book its size, fans of Miss Roseannadanna will get to find out about her family history and the story of her rise to fame.

"Zweibel and I always helped each other out on the show," says Miss Radner "This represents the culmination of our five years togeth-

Even though Miss Roseannadanna is remembered as a major part of the first generation of "SNL," Miss Radner says the character only appeared "eight or nine, may-

Miss Roseannadanna's trademark line, "It's always something," was a saying of Miss Radner's father. The Barbara Walters imitation came easily to Miss Radner, who quickly explains that she really doesn't do impersonations. 'I don't want to make fun," she explains, "I want to

When Miss Radner exited "SNL" in 1980, she soon found new outlets for her humor. She already has three movies working on her fourth), plus she has been on Broadway, but so far it hasn't given her the constant exposure of a weekly television show.

"People think I'm not being offered jobs," says Miss Radner "It's not true, it's my choice. I've been asked to host Saturday Night Live a lot - and other things on TV also but that's my choice. I loved

The Nutrition Committee of the American Heart Association has prepared a series of articles providing information and recipes for healthier diets. Another of those articles, supplied by Wendy Norris, dietician for the Garrett County Memorial Hospital and a member of the commmitte, is as follows:

What would Thanksgiving be without pumpkin pie? However, if you are a really strict weight watcher or just interested in cutting back, you may want to try a lower-in-calorie dessert like PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE which is 140 calories per serving rather than 320 calories for one-sixth of a regular pumpkin pie.

HOLIDAY PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE

- 1 graham cracker pic shell
- 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 3 eggs, separated 1/2 cup skim milk
- 14 cups solid pack pumpkin
- ½ tsp. salt (optional)
- 14 tsp. nutmeg 34 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp. ginger
- 1/2 tsp. allspice
- 1/2 cup sugar (or artificial sugar)

2 tablespoons sugar 2 tablespoons brandy

May substitute 1½ cups D'Zerta topping for egg whites. Dissolve gelatin in cold water, set aside. Beat egg yolks lightly, stir in pumpkin, milk, salt, and spices, blend well. Cook in the top of a double boiler, stirring constantly until thick and smooth (about 8 minutes). Remove from heat, add gelatin and artificial sweetener, stir until completely dissolved. Cool, then chill in refrigerator until mixture thickens to the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Remove from refrigerator. Beat egg whites cracker crumbs on top as garnish. Chill 8 hours. Makes 8 slices.

2. Eating before you go to a party might be a good idea, but make sure that it is something light. If you do not arrive hungry, it is easier to pass by the snacks.

3. Arrive late during cocktail hour, just before dinner to avoid drinking and hors d'oeurves (alcohol has high calorie content with no nutritive value).

4. Take or ask for small portions.

5. Choose seconds of plain vegetables and salad only. 6. Remember that no matter how many calories a dessert contains, one half that serving will only have half the calories, and twice the serving will contain twice the calories.

7. Clear the table after meals and leave a fresh vegetable relish tray and fruit for lingering conversation munchies.

8. Nibbling calories add up too-having a piece of cake might be better than nibbling a long time.

9. If you plan to go out to a restaurant for a jingle party or holiday meal you can still eat wisely. It is best to choose a restaurant that serves a wide variety of foods and a salad bar. 10. Last but not least-don't avoid the parties-they make the

"The distribution is slightly less than the $6,686,671 distributed for the same period of Fiscal Year 1983, primarily because of continued declines in cigarette tax revenues and slight declines in distilled spirits tax revenues,

Winter

Wintertime means your use of electricity goes up. Your home heating and water heating systems must work harder and longer as the weather becomes colder. Most people also spend more time indoors cooking, watching TV or other leisure activities. Even household lights burn longer because of shorter daylight hours. Naturally, these things cause electric bills to increase.

If You Have Difficulty Paying Your Electric Bills, PE May Be Able To Help

Potomac Edison wants to help you if it appears you will have a difficult time paying for the electricity you use this Winter. Please call or come into our office to discuss your situation. We can enroll you in our Average Payment Plan which levels out your high and low bills throughout the year or, if necessary, we can set up a schedule of payments. In cases of extreme hardship, we may be able to direct you to governmental agencies for their special energy assistance programs. Just let us know if you're having a problem . . . it's the only way we can help.

State Park Manager Gerald J. Sword a certificate of commendation "as a result of his excellence in research and interpretation of local history in Maryland." The Association's awards program is the nation's most prestigious competition for local history achievement.

Sword was reared in Washington County and attended Hagerstown Community College. He was a member of the U.S. Army Counter Intelligence Corps before his involvement with the state park system. He brought to the park service an interest in history and a desire to do historical research about his area, most of which he did on his own time, according to the Association.

During Sword's seasonal days in Fort Frederick State Park he amassed information that was later the basis for reconstruction of the 1756 enlisted men's barracks. Later as a full time ranger at Patapsco Valley State Park, he built an extensive vertical file on the history of the Patapsco River Valley that provided the basis for a brochure and guided bus tour program entitled "River of History." As manager at Point Lookout State Park, he undertook extensive archival and archeological research on the park's history producing, among other things, two archeological studies, historical park tour, the basis for numerous living history programs and several articles in the local history journal. He also started a club of local history researchers. Sword continued his historical research when he moved to Herrington Manor where he used land and probate records and initiated a summer interpretive program on the first settlers in Western Mary-

"Sword has had no formal training as a historian yet has shown much dedication to history and has developed a disciplined methodology for research and public interpretation of the past," an Association spokesman stated.

While at the conference, participants toured East Coast Ice Cream facilities near Laurel and the Shenandoah Pride Dairy in Springfield, Va. They had dinner at the Harlequin Dinner Theatre. There were several guest speakers who gave presentations about the dairy industry, including producing quality milk, dairy marketing and the role of dairy cooperatives. Cawley Announces Moratorium On Bird Exhibitions

Further action to protect against avian influenza in Maryland was anounced this week by Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. The action consisted of a moratorium of all bird exhibitions in the state. This includes domestic poultry, fancy birds, pigeons and members of the parrot family.

'A recent outbreak of a deadly, and highly pathogenic, strain of avian influenza in portions of Lancaster and adjacent counties of Pennsylvania has created great concern on the part of Maryland's poultry industry" said Cawley. On No-Continued on Page 30

Mulch Strawberries Before the weather becomes extremely cold, strawberry plantings should be mulched. The best and about the only satisfactory mulch to use is grain straw. This is bright yellow and available by the bale from some nurseries and farm supply deal-

One bale of straw will be enough mulch for about 100 feet of strawberry row. Apply enough mulch so the green strawberry leaves are just visible. Cover both the row and areas between rows when muiching. In spring, plants can be allowewd to push up new leaves through the mulch or it can be raked back between the rows to give a suitable walking place during the picking season.

Most other mulches are not suitable for strawberries. Baled hav which is used for livestock should not be used as it may contain weed seeds which shouldn't be introduced into your strawberry planting. Pine needles, as they decompose, create a very acid condition in the soil and this isn't suitable for strawberries. Sawdust, wood chips and pulverized bark are too heavy and will smother plants. Leaves will mat and smother plants. This makes grain straw the best mulch for strawberry plantings. Enjoy an Apple

Nearly everyone has a favorite apple. Different types of apples are adapted to different uses. Here is a brief run-down of Red Delicious are the most widely grown apples. With dark red skin color and mild sweet flavor, they are best used for fresh eating. Golden Delicious have yellow skin color and medium tart flavor. They are suitable for fresh eating or cooked apple dishes and sauce made at home. Stayman and Winesap are similar apples with mostly dull-red skin color, crisp firm flesh and suitable for fresh eating, sauce and cooked dishes. Jonathan apples have deep red skin color, rathter white firm sweet flesh and can be used fresh or for home processed products. McIntosh are deep red apples with white aromatic juicy flesh. Rome Beauty or also called Rome apples have bright red skin color with mild flavored flesh. They are excellent for baking and good for pies, sauce and other cooked apple dishes. York Imperial or just called York have a medium red skin color and are only fair for eating. Being the most widely grown apples used for commercial processing, they are also suited for home cooked apple products.

As there are hundreds of kinds of apples, I may not have noted your favorite. These are ones most widely grown and available for purchase.

Three infected flocks outside the perimeter of the original quarantine zone were recently located and depopulated (humanely destroyed). The quarantine area has now been expanded to include portions of York and Chester counties.

Drastic actions on the part of the State and Federal Departments of Agriculture have been necessary due to the extreme virulence of the disease. Approximately 342,000 birds on nine premises have been depopulated. Actions to contain and control the disease are in operation on the perimeters of the quarantine zone. Since 60.00. avian influenza is highly transmissable it is important to control its spread, Cawley stated. Maryland State Veterinarian, Dr. John C. Shook, advises that two principal methods of spreading the disease causing virus are by the movement of birds and equipment and by any other item such as shoes or clothing which are easily contaminated by bird droppings 37.00. and dust particles.

THE NEW NAME for the former First National and Cumberland Savings Banks went up on billboards throughout Garrett and Allegany Counties Monday as the two firms merged into one fullservice banking unit. The First United National Bank and Trust is promising its customers at its 13 branches "friendly service" representative of the unified spirit which exists between the two institutions. The word "national" denotes a nationally chartered association, while the words "bank and trust" indicate the kind of financial institution it is and the range of services available.

A tree expert is a person who holds himself out as being skilled in the science of tree care and who, whether in his own business or as the employee of another person, and whether under the title of arborists, tree specialist, tree surgeon, tree expert, or otherwise, engages in the business or work of the treatment and care of trees for compensation by making diagnoses, prescribing and supervising the treatment for trees. Eligibility For Food Distribution

Del. George Edwards, in response to many citizen complaints about eligibility for surplus commodities in the last distribution, recently contacted the State Department of Human Resources to find out how foods are allocated.

In a press release this week, Del. Edwards reported that the administered by the Department of Education and foods are now allocated from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Amounts available are less than needed and the state had changed its guidelines in order to get the food to the "neediest of the needy."

Although the guidelines from the federal government are specific, they do allow flexibility by the states. For the December distribution, the eligibility criteria will include: food stamp program, medicaid program, welfare or AFDC program; supplemental security income; or 150 percent above federal poverty guidelines effective July 1, 1983.

In Garrett County, persons must apply to the Community Action Committee by December 6, unless they have been accepted in the energy assistance program or will apply to that program by Dec. 6.

All eligible households will be sent a card in the mail. This card must be turned in at the user fees do not exceed criteria distribution center in order to set by Farmers Home receive the commodities.

Grafton Man Relates Tale Of Armed Abduction

A Grafton man was forced at Commodities to be distrib- mated to cost $620,500, and in knifepoint to drive to Cash Valley Road in Garrett County November 25, and then the abductor jumped from his car and fled on foot.

According to a report to local police by Virgil Lee Rogers, ing a Housing and Urban Route 2, Grafton, he had come out of the Grafton Five and Ten about noon and was accosted by a middle-aged man who demanded that Rogers drive him away from the town.

After driving around, the two headed east on Route 50 until they came to Chimney Corner Restaurant at Red House, where the abductor allowed Rogers to go in to purchase food and coffee while he waited in the car. He had previously removed four $50 bills from Roger's billfold.

When Rogers returned to the car, the man directed him to drive to Cash Valley Road, where he left the car and took off running.

Rogers described the man as about 50, five feet nine inches tall of thin build and wearing a mustache. He had a wool plaid jacket and a ball cap, and was armed with a thin-bladed hunting-type knife.

Deputy Larry Gnegy is continuing his investigation into the incident, and West Virginia police have been notified.

Citizens Form Christian Group To Improve Housing In County

by Beverly J. Sincell

People from across Garrett County who have been involved in various groups trying to solve housing problems in the county have banded together for a common purpose: to alleviate the problem of substandard housing for the young, the old, the poor in the county

Some have worked with housing for senior citizens, others have worked with families to improve their substandard houses, others have worked with families in Bradley Manor, a deteriorating government-subsidized housing project, and others have worked as volunteers with the House of Hope or their own churches and have seen firsthand the housing conditions of some of Garrett County's citizens

The group has been pulled together by Sister Catherine Arata, a founder of the House of Hope who left that program July 2, who is now working under a Catholic Charities grant as an outreach worker to help low-income families with serious housing problems to obtain housing they can afford.

Almost immediately after ending her service at the House of Hope, Sister Catherine began research to discover how groups in other areas have helped low-income families obtain housing. Garrett County Community Action Committee staff joined her in her efforts.

Their research led them to Habitat For Humanity, a nonprofit Christian housing ministry dedicated to helping poor people improve conditions in which they live

Fuller gave up a successful, it does not reach the successful career in 1968 to work with Jordan in eliminating substandard housing in southern Georgia.

Fuller's decision to begin his new career was partly based on his desire to put his Christian beliefs to action. He expresses this belief in the Habitat slide program "Love in the Mortar Joints-II: " " ... if we cannot envision folks living outdoors in hungry in heaven, then we should be unhappy about that condition here on earth. We should be busy doing what we can to express in tangible ways just as we envision love being expressed in the hereafter." Habitat For Humanity was from its beginnings in southern Georgia to Africa, Central and throughout the United States.

In all projects, Habitat strives to do more than just build houses. Habitat groups help the families in various ways including helping communities become economically self-sufficient, providing eyeglasses and other items to improve health care and overcome physical handicaps, as well as teaching families how to improve their nutrition and sanitary practices. Habitat funds originally come from citizens and groups in a community and from people who have received help through Habitat themselves. Money comes as gifts or no-interest

Contributions go directly into the fund to use as capital in building the houses. Administrative costs of the central Habitat For Humanity office comes from designated gifts. There are no government funds used in the program.

For a Habitat For Humanity group to begin in a community. a committee or Board of Directors is formed which oversees fund-raising, selection of families, the construction projects and the loan program. Once the board is formed, it must apply to Habitat For Humanity to become a member

Sister Catherine notes that although the Habitat concept is poorest of the poor, because those who benefit from the program must be able to meet their payments. "Some will always have a need for governmentsubsidized housing," she said.

Participating families will generally be those who cannot receive a loan through conventional means, such as banks.

The range of income for families eligible to participate in the local program has vet to be determined. Sister Catherine said. Families will have to file an application to be considered for participation

But, the actual construction of homes is part of the group's future hopes. To reach that goal, the group needs financial contributions and more volunteers, Sister Catherine said.

Commissioners Consider Central Phone System

The Garrett County Commissioners announced Tuesday they will be soliciting bids soon from consultants to determine the feasibility of a centralized phone system for county

The centralized system, the commissioners noted, would mean installing a switch board. In past years, the idea has been rejected because the commissioners have not believed the system to be cost effective. Commissioner Ernest Gregg stated the break up of AT&T may mean such a system would prove cost effective.

If such a system were installed, Gregg said, as many county departments as possible would be included.

GCC Receives Humanities Grant

The Humanities Division of Garrett Community College has been awarded a grant by the Maryland Humanities Council for the purpose of producing and presenting a program entitled, "The Four Seasons of Robert Frost." Three performances of the program will be scheduled at various locations in the county during the spring of 1984.

According to Joan B. Crawford, project director, the program will follow a reader's format, with three voices reading selected poems of Robert Frost. The readings will be accompanied by slides depicting scenes and objects illustrative of the poems, set to a musical background.

Robert Frost wrote of the New England landscape—trees, brooks, pastures, stone walls, farm lanes. "Because these are all indigenous to Garrett County, we have been able to use local scenes and places to illustrate the poetry," Crawford stated. "Frost's New England has four distinct seasons. similar to ours, and in the poetry we see also the seasons of a human life."

The program will include brief explanations of how Frost used nature to express the human condition.

Other members of the Humanities Division who are working on the preparation and narrative of the program are Dr. Jean Shaw and Robert Crone. Ben Sincell will coordinate the staging and audiovisual portion with Jim Matthews as photographer and technical assistant.

Despicable Behavior . . .

Among the persons who were knocked to the floor and nearly trampled were a 75-year-old man and a pregnant woman. Another woman sustained a broken leg. Many persons were scratched, cut, kicked and bruised.

It appears that the above paragraph is an excerpt from a newsstory describing what happened when a crowd of people became panicky while attempting to escape a life-threatening situation, such as a burning building. In reality, it is a description of injuries received by some when masses of persons swarmed into department stores all over the nation, each attempting to purchase, of all the ridiculous items, a $20 doll, known as the "Cabbage Patch" doll.

Coleco Industries have been producing 200,000 of these dolls per week. Each one is complete with birth certificate, adoption papers, disposable diapers, detailed fingers and toes and individual facial features shaped by computer. Supposedly no two of them are alike.

Property damage, criminal arrests, police protection for store managers and property, threats of lawsuits against storeowners by persons who weren't able to purchase a doll, fist fights between customers, children being shoved to the floor and a man grabbing one of the dolls from the arms of a tenyear-old were other results of such behavior which is nothing shy of despicable. What a marvelous example of sharing, giving and courtesy to set for the youth of America! Once again, greed and the lust for the material things of this world have shattered the real Christmas spirit.

It is obvious that most of these persons who claim to be purchasing these dolls for their children are really purchasing them for themselves, for a doll is a doll in the eyes of a child. It makes no difference if it is the only one exactly like it. Because of the vast quantities being made, it is highly unlikely that their value will increase greatly over the years.

If it is uniqueness that people want, why don't they simply walk out into their yards and pick up a stone or a stick. Not only will they be different from every other stone and stick in the world, but one does not have to stand in line for hours to obtain them, they cost nothing and rather than man-made, they are God-made.

We sincerely hope that the persons who allowed themselves to go insane over a toy are ashamed of themselves and will attempt to change their attitudes about such things. They have made a mockery of this sacred season.

Unfortunately, it will happen again. **********************************

Savage Mountain

Forest Fire Doused It took several hours for DNR forest personnel and boys' camp residents to contain a forest fire Sunday afternoon on Big Savage Mountain above Savage River Dam since all equipment and water had to be carried in on foot.

According to Paul Mateer of the forest service, he was notified of a fire about 1 p.m. and dispatched a ranger to the area. That ranger was joined by another ranger and 12 boys from the Lonaconing boys' forestry camp about 3 p.m. The closest point to obtain water was the Savage dam, which considerably hampered efforts to douse the fire.

The fire was reportedly contained about 4 p.m. after burning three acres but not completely doused until between 8 and 9 p.m. Mateer said that the cause of the blaze is believed to be a hunters' warming fire which was built in the area on Saturday. The area is about one and a half miles from the nearest camping sites, in an area designed as "wildlands."

Can We Afford Business As Usual?

By U.S. Senator Bill Armstrong (R-CO)

I fear we may be sending to the Soviets a quite different message than the one we intended in the wake of the KAL

The President and the Congress have expressed in eloquent language the horror and revulsion we all feel about the coldblooded and senseless murder of the 269 innocent men, women and children aboard Korean Air Lines Flight 007. But our failure to follow up our words with punitive sanctions of any kind is sending a quite different message to the Soviet leaders: that they can commit murder, and get away with it.

President Reagan has been praised, properly, for not overreacting to the KAL massacre, and he is surely right in his view that it is the responsibility of the entire family of free nations, and not just of the United States, to respond to this latest Soviet

But although there is danger in overreaction, there may be even greater danger in underreaction. At present, the governors of 16 states who have barred the sale of Russian vodka in state liquor stores-and bartenders throughout the country, who have poured Russian vodka in to the sewers-have responded more decisively to the KAL massacre than has the government of the

The United State government has responded by words alone. Words are fine, but actions speak louder. And what our actions-or, rather, our failure to act-are saying is that there is virtually no outrage that the Soviets can commit that will

'Imprisoned in every fat man a thin one is wildly signaling to be let out." The Unquiet Grave, Cyril Connolly (Palinurus)

I want to be fat. Contrary to all of the media hype and the Madison Avenue advertising layouts, I want to be fat. Now that it seems that everyone in Hollywood is publishing a "how to body book (Jane Fonda, Linda Evans, Victoria Prinicpal), I'm hoping that Shellie Winters will do a book.

I can no longer endure the harrassment we skinny people suffer from diet-mad, calorie conscious egocentrics. People who are on diets are not the epitome of sweetness and light. As a case in point. I was in a restaurant the other day ready to wash down a generous slab of double German Chocolate fudge ripple walnut carmel coconut cake with a tall glass of ice-cold, foamy milk, when an immense woman walked up to me and casting a shadow over my table, hissed, "You are DISGUSTING." I'm tired of it. And who have these heavyweights chosen as their guru? A deranged rhesus monkey in a pink jogging suit who sports a kinky permanent and screeches, "Let's get phythical!" on his daily television show. Don't you find him a bit odd? Would you want to discover he was your son's college roommate?

I have been skinny all of my life and I've hated every minute of it. I have a poster of Orson Welles on my refrigerator door as inspiration. My fondest wish is to look down and not be able to see my feet. Meanwhile, I live my cholesterol craved existence and get insulted for being thin:

"Hey, Willis, I'll bet if you stood sideways and stuck out your tongue you'd look like a zipper."

"Hey, Willis, I'll bet if you wore a mohair suit you could get a job as a pipe cleaner."

I'm not going to take it anymore. I'm going to sit here and eat myself into a stupor. I'm going to write obscene letters to Julia Childs and curl up with a year's worth of "Gourmet" magazines. I'm going to join the "Cheese of the Month Club" and stage a boycott of the Dannon Yogurt Company. I'm going to spend weekends at the bakery and get a part-time job with a Hickory Farms store.

But I know already that it's not going to work. I've resigned myself to defeat. I will spend the rest of my days at 147 pounds, never gaining, continually shifting. I figure if gravity takes its toll that, as an old man, I'm going to have a neck the diameter of a pencil as well as some incredibly large ankles.

I have a friend in New York, Felicity, who has made a hobby of calories and she makes no apologies for it. She sometimes works at being an actress-actually she had a walk-on part once in the soap opera, "As The World Turns." She played the world. I called her the other day.

"Felicity," I began, "Willis here, I want to gain weight." 'Wonderful, (gulp) another convert," she said in between popping chocolate covered cherries into her mouth.

'I'm deadly serious," I warned her, "I want to be obesely

"Impossible," she declared, "You, Willis, can only hope to be a little pudgy. "But, Felicity, with your help, I can be fat," I encouraged.

I had the utmost faith in this woman. Here was the person who went to the beach and someone telephoned in a beached whale sighting. This was the girl who wore a white sun dress to the movies and they hired her as a screen at the drive-in. Felicity had once walked into a bakery and ordered a cake and when the clerk went to place the confectionery into a box, Felicity said, 'No thank you, I'll eat it here." This woman has guts, lots and lots

So the campaign has begun and I'm now following Felicity's "Fat with Fun" method. I'm eating about five meals a day; my cholesterol level is way up; I'm sleeping on my back to avoid suffocation; the dog and I are fighting over bones; my car lists to the left; the only thing between me and my Calvin Klein's is a posterior the size of Utah and I'm having a love affair with Sara Lee. And someday, I'm going to be incredibly, wonderfully, stupendously, over-weightishly FAT!

That is a very dangerous message to send in the tense world we live in today

In the KAL massacre, as in so many atrocities past, the leaders of the Soviet Union have demonstrated they do not share the high Western regard for human life and for basic human rights. Exhortations, however eloquent, are insufficient to persuade the Soviets to behave as a responsible member of the family of nations. Their attitude is: "sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt me."

Unless our brave words are followed, and followed very soon by deeds, the Soviets will be encouraged to behave more roguishly in the future. And our allies throughout the world will surely question America's value to them if we respond to Soviet actions with words alone.

One concrete step the United States could take in response to the KAL massacre would be to enforce an existing law that forbids the importation into the United States of goods produced in whole or in part by forced labor. There is nothing we can do to bring back to life the 269 innocents murdered aboard KAL 007, but this reasonable, measured step not only would impose a real punishment on the Soviets, it may also ease the plight of the estimated four million souls who labor in the Gulag Archipelago. A portion of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. #1307) prohibits the importation into the United States of "all goods, wares, articles, and merchandise mined, produced or manufactured wholly or in part in any foreign country by convict labor and/or forced labor." Although it's been on the books for more than half a century, this law never has been enforced with regard to imports from the Soviet Union or any other totalitarian country. There is little doubt that the Soviet Union grossly has violated this law. The State Department, in its Report to Congress on Forced Labor in the USSR (February 1983) stated that forced labor is used "to produce large amounts of primary and manufactured goods for both domestic and Western export markets." The CIA has compiled a list of industries and products in the USSR in which forced labor is used "extensively." These include wood products, such as lumber, furniture, wooden souvenirs, and toys; cathode ray tube components and resistors; camera lenses, glassware, and chandeliers; auto and agriculture machinery parts; and mined products-in particular gold, uranium, asbestos, and limestone. Enforcement of 19 U.S.C. #1307 as it applies to the Soviet Union would have little impact on the U.S. economy. Total imports from the Soviet Union amounted to less than one-tenth of one percent of the $254 billion worth of goods the United States imported in 1982. But enforceement of the law could have a Continued on page 16

Diabetic Retinopathy

If you have diabetes, or if you know someone who does, then you should know that diabetes can cause serious eye problems, including blindness. The most common ocuar complication of diabetes, and the leading cause of new cases of blindness among young adults in the United States, is diabetic retinopathy

Diabetic retinopathy damages the retina. the light-sensing membrane that lines the back of the eye. Fortunately, many cases of diabetic retinopathy can be treated with a laser, and loss of vision often can be prevented. Since this disease has few, if any, symptoms in its early stages, it is vitally important that people with diabetes have a specialist who can diagnose and treat diabetic retinopathy examine their eyes annually. This is the only way for them to find out if they have this condition or if they need laser treatment

The importance of these annual examinations cannot be overstated. Long before the person with diabetes even suspects an eye problem, a careful examination of the eyes. may reveal subtle but important changes that signal the presence of diabetic retinopathy. As a matter of fact, 40 percent of diabetic individuals show signs of retinopathy that are detectable during such an examination. These signs include changes in the small blood vessels that nourish the retina. The vessels may leak fluid, causing retinal swelling and mildly blurred vision, but, most often, early diabetic retinopathy causes no symptoms at all.

For about 80 percent of those who have diabetic retinopathy, the disease never advances beyond this early stage. But when it does progress, and when blood vessel abnormalities in the retina are left untreated, severe visual impairment or even blindness

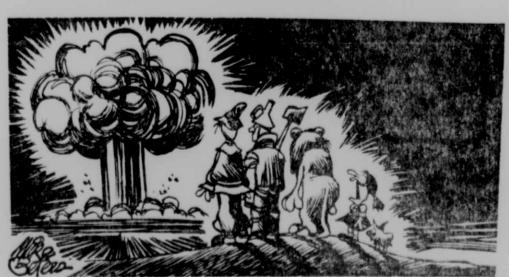

Several years ago, a study supported by the National Eye Institute, National Institutes of Health, showed that laser treatment can reduce the risk of blindness by more than half in persons with fairly advanced diabetic retinopathy. In this outpatient t, eat ment, powerful, precisely focused beams of light from a laser are aimed at many spots pears to interrupt the disease process and prevent the development of additional harmful changes in the retina.

Now, patients with diabetic retinopathy that is less advanced than that treated in the earlier study are being recruited for a new plied earlier in the course of the disease also can be beneficial. Twenty-three medical research centers across the country are participating in this clinical trial, called the Early Treatment Diabetic Retinopathy Study (EDTRS). A Computer For The Kids? Better Think It Over

If the hard-sell computer industry has its way this Christmas. parents will trim the toys from their shopping lists and invest instead in hardware and software. But some of the most well-meaning parents may be programmed into spending a lot of money for a little return. 'The computer has tremendous potential as a learning tool,' says University of Maryland Extension family resource management specialist Patricia Tengel. "But before parents rush out to buy the latest model or program, it's imperative that they take into account the personality and interests of their child." For the child who is a disciplined self-starter, the computer can indeed be a wise educational investment. But it may not be so appropriate for children who bore easily.

Explains Tengel: "If your child starts a new hobby one day, only to abandon it the next day, then chances are he's going to react the same way to a computer.' A survey recently published by Consumer Union gives new weight to Tengel's words. According to the survey, only half of 70 grade-school children sampled actually used the educational software purchased by If your child is one of those who really will benefit from a home computer, careful consumer checks are still critical-especially given the high cost of equipment. Though the cost of home computers has dropped dramatically, parents can still expect to pay a minimum of about $600 for a complete computer system. Before buying Tengel suggests several steps.

First, visit your child's school. Find out which computers and which educational programs are being used in the classroom. You may want to follow the school's lead.

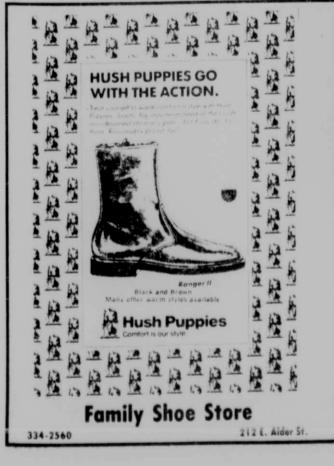

Moreover, some schools, says Tengel, can arrange significant discounts for families who purchase a computer system that is compatible with a school's curriculum. If you already own a home computer and are in the market for educational programs, keep in mind these shopping guide-•Try before you buy. Don't buy programs through the mail, and shop only at stores that allow you to review the program manuals. If possible, review the actual program-an increasing number of retailers provide consumers with this option. • Take your child with you. Your child's reaction to individual programs will tell you how often they will be used. •Evalute the program's educational design. Make sure program content is accurate and takes advantage of a computer's sound and graphic capabilities. (If the program depends entirely on words, save your money and purchase a drill book.) And also make sure that the program provides feedback and allows your child to tackle increasingly challenging tasks

Blaze Destroys

Vacant Farmhouse

A fire of suspicious origin Saturday in northwestern Garrett County is currently under investigation by Guy Carolla, assistant state fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany

The fire consumed a vacant farmhouse on property owned by Helen Fike, Uniontown, Pa., on the P. Bowser Road. The Markleysburg fire company was called about 8:30 p.m. to battle the blaze but found the structure totally involved when they arrived. Ms. Fike told Carolla she had no insurance on the house. The Pennsylvania fire marshal had first been summoned to the scene but Carolla was called when it was found the house is actually in Garrett County. No cause has yet been determined for the fire, and Carolla said there may or may not be a connection with a suspicious fire in Addison, Pa., which occurred shortly before the call to this county.

Teens who want to wear the right stuff this holiday season should head straight to their parents' closets.

If they're lucky, they'll find vintage clothes from the '50s. If they're not, most area stores will be happy to accommodate

"No other age group is as tuned to what's trendy," says Margaret Ordonez, a textiles and clothing specialist with the University of Maryland Extension Service. "And for 1983 holiday wear, the in-look is the '50s retrolook.

For teenage girls, the '50s retrolook means circular skirts, lined blouses with sheer sleeves, and-with mon's approval-a strapless dress in net and taffeta.

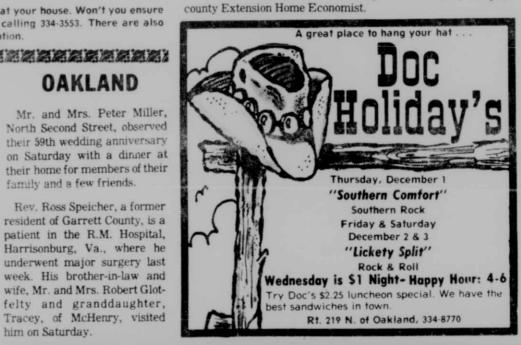

Rhinestones—another favorite '50s fashion accent—will add holiday glitter to purses, jewelry and belts, says Ordonez. Also making a comeback: chains in all sizes, worn as belts and

Assessment Answers & Tax Talk

ON THE 1984/85 GROWTH FACTOR

by James Burley

The growth factor is an if they are not already, should become familiar with it. A knowledge of it is essential to valued at $10,000 would have a understanding the tax assess-

The growth factor is computed in November of each average-would have a tax year and has been a part of the process since the adoption of triennial assessing in 1979. It is, in effect, the assessment rate which, when applied to the full value of each individual real property parcel or account, determines the tax assessment or taxable portion of the property value. The tax rate is developed by local governments at a later time and is then applied to this portion, resulting in the annual property tax bill.

The new growth factor for the 1984/85 taxable year is .434925 or 43.49 percent. Using this important term used in year's growth factor, if a assessing. All property owners, property has a value of $1,000, the tax assessment would be $435. Likewise, a property tax assessment of $4,350. A home, therefore, valued at $67,000—which is a good current assessment of $29,140.

One confusing aspect about the growth factor is that it is more or less hidden from view. It does not appear on the assessment notice nor on the tax bill. We are now in the second triennial assessment cycle, and the properties which have been revalued this year are in the second group. This group will receive new notices of assessment in December and this growth factor will apply to the first-year phase-in value shown on the notice. But, and many if not most propety owners are unaware of this fact, the growth factor will also apply to those properties in the other two groups which were revalued last year and the year before. These owners will not be receiving new assessment notices factor will apply is that whenever property is revalued, the increase is divided into three and then added a third at a time over the next three years. The growth factor applies to the specific phase-in value for that particular year

For Maryland as a whole, the real property base increased from $92.8 billion to $100.2 billion, reflecting a percentage increase of nearly 8 percent. Since the mechanism for calculating the yearly growth factor is limited to a 6 percent increase in the base, this triggered the drop in the growth factor from 44.3 percent last year to 43.5 percent this year.

While the lower percentage does not automatically mean a lower tax assessment due to the influence of the higher phase-in values that continue without The reason the new growth interruption from year to year, it does mean that the assessable portion is slightly lower than it would have been had the growth factor not changed.

Living The Christmas Spirit

by Cathy A. Helbig

As Christmas approaches, our waking hours are filled with a long list of chores and the never ending search for gift ideas.

During this holiday season, The Republican would like to share information about groups of Garrett County citizens who also are baking and buying, but who have taken time out from their harried holiday schedule to expend a lot of time, energy and love for what they consider to be the true meaning of Christmas: their community and their church.

Featured this week is the Crellin United Brethren Church, located along Rt. 39, four miles west of Oakland.

Under the guidance of Rev. Charles Teets and his wife, Mary, the church congregation consists of several organizations, according to age and inclination. These groups include the Youth Fellowship, the Young Adults, the Deacon Board and

This year the Youth Fellowship and some of the Young Adults are combining efforts to present a play entitled "A Guarded Christmas.'

The play, written and being directed by Sharon Fulk, focuses on Christmas as being celebrated by a family living in

The program will be presented Sunday, December 18, at 7 p.m. The children's program and annual Christmas treat will be held earlier that day beginning at 9:45 a.m.

The Youth Fellowship, under the direction of Margaret Fulk and Paul and Elaine Hoye, goes caroling and presents small gifts to the older residents living in Crellin.

The group offers numerous holiday social activities to the young people in and around the Crellin area including the decorating of the church and sponsoring a group Christmas

The Deacon Board can assist those persons who are out of work, yet continue to face the many needs of the holiday and winter season. Because of the high unemployment in the county, many persons in their own congregation are being

The Ladies' Aide provides assistance year-round for those in need, in or out of the church, offering money, fuel, food, etc. A pantry is kept stocked the year around and food is available to any local citizen who expresses a need.

Last Christmas the Ladies' Aide was responsible for the collection of many toys which were given to children in Crellin. They still have toys available for any child, upon the

PREPARING FOR A CHRISTMAS PROGRAM requires a lot of practice, as these young people from the Crellin United Brethren Church are beginning to understand. Because well-seasoned wood, burned at 50% efficiency (in an average woodstove or even in some fireplaces) contains as much energy as about 150 gallons of heating oil according to the Wood Heating Alliance. If oil is $1.25 a gallon, the equivalent price for a cord of wood is in the area of about $187 a cord (a stack 8 ft, x 4 ft, x 4 ft.).

Natural gas is a cheaper source of energy in many parts of the country, but prices are expected to rise. Experts predict that deregulation and higher drilling costs may bring the cost of heating a home with gas up to the cost of heating with oil. At $.55 per therm today, the equivalent price of a cord of wood burned at 50% efficiency is about $123 - a seasoned cord of wood has the heating value of about 225 "therms system because the amount spent on it could not be justified. He added that of all issues, the commissioners have received the most harassment about the bus system from constituents.

At $.08 per kilowatt hour for electricity you can purchase an equivalent cord of wood at around $240 if burned at 50% efficiency Wood becomes even more

Gregg said he believed there had to be a way to fulfill people's need for transportation with something other than a public transportation system and stated the commissioners would be willing to work with tary, whose wages are partly did not change the commisthe Commission in determining the best alternative.

Groves stated, "It is not a ing their jobs because of inmatter of nobody wants to help, it is a matter of how you can justify the money spent."

Commission Presents Arguments

Marilyn Metheny stated the loss of the bus system would curtail services provided through the Commission n Aging because more money will have to be spent providing transportation to senior of federal and state revenues citizens.

She noted the Commission will have to spend $7,000 to provide the same level of transportation service now provided through the bus system and vices provided through the Commission.

In an interview before Tuesday's meeting, Metheny stated the Commission had to cut its services this year because it lost $23,000 in funds due to the 1980 census which showed a drop in the population of senior citizens in Garrett County.

Besides the increased costs for the Commission On Aging, Metheny said the loss of the bus system would cause them to reduce a bookkeeper and secrecreased duties assigned them. She noted the Commission also shared insurance and office expenses with the bus system for those who worked for both agencies. During their meeting with the commissioners. Bill Burke noted that in its years of operation, the bus system has brought one-half million dollars into the county while the county has contributed $23,000.

That money, he pointed out, which is tax dollars, stays in the county and has been used to buy gas, insurance, vehicle pointed out that senior citizens parts and pay for maintenance

Riley noted that if the county does not use the money, taxpayers will not see a reduction in their taxes because the money will be used by another community.

Another point raised by Metheny was that ridership has steadily increased over the years and in the past two and one-half years, the system has earned $40,000 through daily ridership fares.

Even though their arguments paid by bus system funds, to sioners' decision, the three left part-time work which would a note that they would meet hamper other staff in perform- again with the commissioners to discuss alternative ways to provide transportation to persons who need it.

A pre-design conference with state officials must be held before design can begin, and then arrangements will be made for funding of the local portion. Design is anticipated to take four months, and the project is expected to be ready for bids next summer

Sanitary District administrator Wendell Beitzel pointed out at the meeting that the commission may be able to obtain funds from the state which can lower user fees to the point they will not exceed state affordability guidelines on income. The state affordability guideline for residents in the Bloom-

Beitzel also pointed out that although it is less than desirable to construct a system without the full support of all or nearly all the residents of a community, the overriding factor leading to the decision to proceed was the serious health problem existing in that town due to open sewers, etc.

At a public meeting earlier this year, numerous citizens were opposed to the project; however, a later poll conducted by the sanitary commission showed that the town was almost evenly divided between those who were in favor and those who opposed the system.

Other firms submitting proposals were Franklin Associates, Western Maryland Associates, and Cerrone & Vaughn.

For real family togetherness, why not gather the family around and read or tell the Christmas Story during the Christmas holidays and help the children as well as adults plan a special love offering for church, and for someone in a nursing home, etc .- put some "apples" in the "Apple Pie"!

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

By Ted Reeder, D.D.S.

Removal of dental plague is the key to preventing most dental problems. Plaque is a soft substance that can be brushed away from all areas of the teeth that can be reached with a toothbrush.

The problem that most people have in trying to remove plaque, is not brushing all areas of the mouth. The places most often missed are those areas of the teeth closest to the gums and the teeth that are way in the back of the mouth. Close attention must be paid to brushing all surfaces of the teeth that can be reached with a brush.

Since plaque is the same color as the teeth, the only practical way to see whether all the plaque has been removed is to use disclosing tablets. These red tablets, when chewed and allowed to remain in the mouth for a while, will stain the plaque that has been left on the teeth. The red plaque is then more visible and can be brushed until it is all removed. By repeating this process for a few days and periodically checking yourself, you can teach yourself to effectively remove all the plaque that can be removed with your brush.

Next month we will discuss what to do about plaque between the teeth that can't be removed with a toothbrush. A PUBLIC SERVICE WITH THE AIM OF PROMOTING A BETTER DENTAL HEALTH ENVIRONMENT From the office of Ted Reeder, D.D.S.

PREVENT KITCHEN FIRES

For most people, there's no finer investment than a home. But a fire can—in a matter of seconds—turn that dreamhouse into a nightmare. And neither homeowners insurance nor life insurance can compensate for the loss of a home or, certainly, the people who live in it. More fires start in the kitchen than in any other part of the house. Most of them, however, are food fires-a problem not related to construction of the building. But if there is a window above the stove, don't plan to hang curtains there when and if you become the owner.

If you have small children, you will want } to be sure that burner controls on built-in ranges are not within reach of inquisitive fingers.

Many kitchen ceiling fixtures are unventilated and overlamped, producing heat that bakes insulation on wiring to a crisp. After moving in, such wiring should be replaced and lower-wattage bulbs

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 65:17-25.

I am glad that I was not Presi-

Union shot down Korean Airlines flight 007 and wantonly kill-

I am glad because, upon learning of this terrible crime, my rethe same human emotions that have perpetuated the ancient tragedy of demanding "an eve for an eye and a tooth for a tooth."

And, although that emotion is entirely understandable and hallowed by the civilization in it has brought us--not to mention

I am very grateful that President Reagan, although shocked and outraged with the rest of us, was able to withstand those emotions and lead this nation in a response that did not compound

one tragedy with yet another. For, when the first tides of anger and horror recede, most of us realize that a vengeful response can only plunge us deeper into tragedy. While experts may argue whether a nuclear war would kill all humanity or just a portion, all of us are aware that we live on the Seventh-Day Adventist Seventh-Day Adventist Mt. Top Church, Pastor Don Byard. Located mid-way between Deep brink of our own self-destruc-

As never before in our history, we are torn between two emotions: a desperate yearning for that long-promised day when "they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks" (Isaiah 2:4) and a growing despair for peace in a world so divided by idiologies. The downing of KAL 007 makes us wonder how peace can be achieved when "the other side" is so ruthless and unprincipled Politically, we may sharply disagree on how to deal with the Background Scripture: Isaiah 2:1-5, 62; Soviet Union, on what is the best strategy to deter them from aggression and expansion. We will differ on the implications of all this for our own program of armadent of the United States on that ment and defense. Yet, despite September day when the Soviet these honest differences, Christians must unite in resisting that terrible temptation to abandon our principles for theirs. For, if we become like them, if we adopt their paranoia, and if we live as action rose up from the depths of though there were no God, no divine plan for this world, then what does it matter who prevails?

LEARNING WAR If the world is not to "learn war any more," and "nation shall not lift up sword against nation," then it is we, believing in which we live, one does not have to be blessed with great wisdom a God who not only exists but is or prophetic powers to see where moving this world to fulfill his plan and purpose, who must with faith, patience and courage teach the world that our destiny is not mutual annihilation, but a world in which "the wolf and the lamb shall feed together" (Isaiah 65: 25). The lion must be taught to 'eat straw like the ox." And, by the power of God, I still believe it can and will be done.

John Schneider

Is John Schneider of "The Dukes of Hazzard" getting married? Because if he is I want to congratulate him. - M.D., Lourinburg, N.C. Yes, Schneider has gotten married to ABC newswoman Tawny Lattie, who is now known as Tawny Schneider.

I really enjoyed watching "Vega$," starring Robert Urich. I'd appreciate it if you could help get the show back on the air. I'm sure Robert Urich wouldn't mind. - G.B.K., Lyndon Station, Wis. "Vega$" is a very unlikely cadidate for revival, first coming on the air in September 1978. You may have been watching reruns. (Do you have a question about TV? Write Val Carew at 200 Park Avenue, Room 602, New York, NY 10166.)

Swanton Couple Seeks $190,000

A three-count lawsuit seeking $190,000 in damages was filed ir. Garrett County Circuit Court on November 14 by Linda Lou and Elden William Kasmier, Sr., of Swanton, against Frederick Olen Tasker, Kitzmiller.

Count I indicates that on June 2, 1983, at approximately 10:20 a.m., Linda Lou Kasmier was operating a 1983 Dodge Selby westbound on Route 135. She had completed a pass of a tractor trailer and had returned to the westbound lane. At the same time Frederick O. Tasker, was operating a 1977 Ford truck and was attempting to enter the eastbount lane of Route 135 from a State Highway Administration salt building. He failed to yield the right of way, causing Mrs. Kasmier to brake hard and swerve to the left to avoid a collision resulting in her striking an embankment and overturning The suit then indicates that Mrs. Kasmier was thrown about the interior of the vehicle with great force causing injuries which were a result of Tasker's negligence.

She allegedly suffered injuries about the whole body including temporary numbness from her neck to waist, part of her left ear was torn off, lacerations resulting in scarring and dislocation in the facial area, headaches, neck injuries. bruised and painful collar bone, bruised and muscular injury to her right shoulder, with an indentation in the area of the upper arm near the shoulder, bruising and soreness in the chest and breasts.

As a result, she was required and will be required in the future to undergo treatment by physicians, surgeons, physical therapists, chiropractors and treatment at hospitals.

As a further consequence she will continue to incur in the future expenses and costs for medical treatment, hospital expenses for surgery, emergency room treatment, other hospital care, physical therapy care, and radiological services. chiropractic care, drugs and medications, special medical equipment, property loss, loss of wages, impairment of earning capacity and transportation to and from medical providers and pharmacies

This count seeks $100,000 in damages

Count II indicates that Edwin William Kasmier, Sr., was a passenger in the car being driven by his wife at the time of the accident and he suffered injuries about his whole body including headaches, dizzy spells, neck pain radiating up into the head and down through the left shoulder and left arm and had back pain, bruised ribs and psychic injury including nightmares.

It indicates that he will also be required to undergo treatment by physicians, physical therapists, chiropractors and medical treatments at hospitals

As a result of the damages, injuries and losses allegedly caused by the negligence of Tasker, Count II asks for $75,000 in damages

Count III realleges every allegation in Count I and II and states that in addition, the Kasmiers are married and the negligence of Tasker caused in the past and will continue to cause a loss to their marital relationship such that they have suffered and will continue to suffer a loss of consortium, therefore $15,000 in damages are being sought on this count.

The Kasmiers are being represented by Sullivan and Hall attorneys, Cumberland.

Tasker received his summons and has until December 19 to file an answer to the charges.

Christmas Tree Guide Available

A sure sign of the approach of the Christmas season in Maryland is the availability of a guide to the state's "Choose and Cut" Christmas tree farms for those who like to obtain the freshest trees around.

The directory is now ready and may be secured at public libraries and Cooperative Extension Service offices across the state or by sending a selfaddressed, stamped, business size (No. 10) envelope to: "Christmas Trees", c/o Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Maryland

According to George Roche of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, who works with the Maryland Christmas Tree Association in compiling the annual directory, "This year we have 30 growers and one farmer-owned retail sales lot listed. Five of the listings are new and two additional counties are represented-Cecil and

"The directory gives complete directions, telephone numbers and hours of operations of all the listed growers. tection Agency's Regional Office has a 24-hour toll-free hotline which citizens can use to report suspicious incidents of waste dumping or the existence of dumpsites of which EPA may not be aware. The number is 1-800-438-2474 and has been in Southern GOP use since February 1983.

When calling EPA's hotline, all "tips" should include as much relevent information as possible, such as, a description of the nature of the problem, its exact geographic location, the date and time of the incident, the suspected parties, and, if possible, the type of material or containers being disposed. Also, callers are encouraged to leave their names and telephone numbers so that EPA may obtain additional information if necessary. In this way, EPA can conduct an effective followup investigation of each complaint and provide a direct response to every caller. EPA says it will protect the anonymity of all callers.

EPA's toll-free hazardous waste hotline is available anvtime a "midnight dumper" is suspected. All calls will be answered personally between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.; but, after that time, the messages will be recorded. However, if an environmental

More Admissions. Amusement Tax Monies Collected

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced that Maryland's counties and incorporated cities and towns are receiving checks totaling $6,090,000 representing their share of admissions and amusement tax revenues collected during the first quarter of Fiscal Year 1984 (July, August and September, 1983).

"The $6.1 million distributed is a 13.7 percent increase over the $5.4 million returned to the subdivisions for the same period last year," Goldstein said. "Marylanders continue to spend growing amounts of money on leisure time activities. The $105.2 million spent on taxable entertainment during the first quarter of Fiscal Year 1984 is 2.8 percent more than the $102.3 spent during the same period a year

Goldstein noted the largest categories of spending were night club entertainment, coin operated amusement devices such as video games, and

"Summertime spending in amusement parks and for athletic events was also stronger," Goldstein said.

The State Comptroller's office collects the admissions and amusement taxes at rates set by local officials and returns the revenues to the subdivisions

Garrett County received a check in the amount of $33,020 compared to $28,660 for the same period last year. CPA Announces

Weed Control in Alfalfa Dr. Ron Ritter, Extension Weed Control Specialist, says Sinbar is a residual herbicide that is good on many winter annual weeds. Sinbar can only be used on pure Alfalfa stands more than 1 year old; however, Sinbar is a unique product in that it can be applied in a number of ways. As a dormant treatment it can be applied up until the Alfalfa reaches about 2" in growth in the spring. This late application will provide good weed control until the first cutting of Alfalfa. Sinbar can also be applied after cutting, during the growing season before regrowth exceeds two inches. This is the only material currently registered for residual weed control during the growing season. A new state label currently pending registration will allow a grower to make both a dormant and after cutting application. In the research trials, this double application has been outstanding. This double application gave good control of winter annuals as well as a number of summer annual weeds.

Reduction of milk can extend from 5% to 30% with the dairy farmer receiving $10.00 per 100 lbs. of reduction in milk. There are a lot of individual farm situations that can influence the estimate; therefore, don't use this material as the actual gossip

DOYLE BUILDERS

DREAM HOME-Let us help you bring that dream into reality. As a positive thinker you can do it, and the coming year can be your year for a new home. We'll help you with financing if you need it and if you are qualified. All you need is a serious determination along with us as your builder. If you will look at our homes (presently occupied) you will find the snow still on the roofs long after the next door neighbor's is gone. This means that our insulation is doing its job. When you inspect the home from the blocks to the roof you'll find 1) grouted high walls with rods for strength (usually the rear wall in the basement); 2) double applications of wall insulation; 3) triple window glazing (using Andersen windowalls with combo storm/screens); 4) maintenance free exteriors of vinyl or your choice; 5) drywall with two tinted color coats; 6) the luxury of the best subcontractors, but the price of an economical home. We are proud of our subcontractors. If we thought we could produce a better home we'd change, but we know we can't do better than BEST. We dwell upon quality because, as many folks know, anyone can build a house, but few can build a real quality home. We do change manufacturers when we find a better component and we have done this! When we see the quality drop, and some manufacturers try to drop quality once they think they have you, we simple let them know we are changing and then find a better

Linemen Working Night And Day To Restore Power

An ice storm, high winds and downed trees have caused problems continuously since Saturday night for Potomac Edison Company customers, and line crews, according to Gerald Kremer, area line supervisor.

First reports of trouble came about midnight Saturday in the wake of an ice storm. Some 800 customers were without service through the night but all but 100 had had power restored by 8 a.m. Monday. Those without service was primarily in the Green Glade-Hazelhurst area, the lower end of Rock Lodge Road, State Park Road and New Germany Road, although many other customers in the east and north sections of the lake were affected.

Most of these remaining customers had to be visited were called from Hagerstown, and all five local crews were out, making a total of 18 men

Kremer noted that the major problem was ice loading on tree limbs which snapped and fell across lines, pulling the lines down. Some lines also swaved into each other, causing fuses to blow. By Monday, however, there were no broken poles left former failure to correct, in addition to the restoration to single customers.

Nearly all power was restored by Monday at 2 p.m.

A downed tree in Friendsville area, however, caused more problems and four men crews worked all night to restore power there.

Then Monday night about 7 p.m. Central Alarm reported that a large tree along Route 50 Continued on Page 4

Teacher Testing . . .

The Maryland State Board of Education will meet next Wednesday and among the items on the agenda will be consideration of a proposal by David W. Hornbeck, state school superintendent, requiring students who want to become Maryland teachers to pass a test to enter teacher education programs and then a battery of tests to enter the profession. The purpose of these tests is to measure basic skills, plus specific skills in the prospective teacher's chosen field. At least one other state, Arkansas, is implementing a similar measure.

We believe that this is just one more excellent idea by Dr. Hornbeck. Although many of our teachers are dedicated, competent individuals who are working miracles in the classroom, there are still too many who do not belong there because of incompetence. It was reported recently that over half of Maryland's 50,000 ninth graders failed a statewide functional writing test last spring and 60 percent failed a functional mathematics exam, both of which are part of Dr. Hornbeck's Project Basic program. Obviously, not all of the blame for this failure can be directed toward teachers, but the incompetent ones are no doubt a contributory factor.

One potential negative result of required testing for prospective teachers is that it may increase what is already a severe shortage of teachers. Enrollment in education programs and teachers' colleges continues to decline.

To counter this problem, we would again suggest that merit pay for teachers who deserve it become a reality. Presently there is no real incentive for a teacher to become a better teacher, other than self pride, and many of the incompetent teachers have little or no pride. Just as in most other areas of employment, extra effort deserves reward. California will begin giving such bonuses next year.

One other proposal now being considered by the state of New Jersey is to allow persons to become teachers without taking college education courses. As long as it was determined through testing that such a person knows the subject and is able to perform in the classroom, that is, to speak well, relate well and get his points across to students, we see this as another viable possibility

Sports fans, I would like to tell you about something exciting that many of you have been missing. Tucked away in the mountains of Garrett County we have a college basketball team that is considered by many as the best team in several years. I am speaking of the Garrett Community College Laker basketball team which so far this year has a perfect record.

Tom Bosley, the Laker coach, has put together a team with great depth and if you have been missing the excitement at the Laker gym, come to the next home game on December 10th against Frederick Community College to see what you have been missing.

Something is wrong! We have charities to support animal shelters but what about Human Shelters for people with no money and nowhere to go?

Large cities have the Sarvation Army which takes care the staff assistance available of a little of the need on a temporary basis. Small towns have NOTHING in the way of shelter for people who have been left homeless, by fire, domestic problems, stranded hitch-hikers, runaways, etc. Jail is the only alternative for the victim of circunstance who is often picked up for vagrancy. Congress sends millions overseas to subsidize under privilaged countries. Why not allocate a portion for our own destitute? With more people out of work it can only get worse. Years ago, there was the Poor House where people could go for help and people knew what it was there for. Now we have nothing, unless it's a temporary set up on an overnight basis

I would like to see a United Effort to set up Human Shelters. We can't clothe and feed the world but as the saying goes . . "Brighten the corner where you are.

Playhouse Begins Christmas Sale

Of Season Passes

The annual Christmas sale of season passes to the Garrett County Playhouse is underway and is looked at as more important than ever to the continuance of the 29-year-old summer stock theatre by producer Gene Yell.

Yell, who announced this week he is negotiating for the return of the Playhouse to the Blue Barn on Beckman's Peninsula, said this week, "Because Playhouse funds were severely depleted in 1983, it is vitally important that the upcoming Christmas season-pass presale be the most successful

Yell noted that the Playhouse was housed in the theatre at Garrett Community College during its 1983 season because of a series of misunderstandings which led to the loss of a contract with Blue Barn owner James Kolakowski in the Spring

An agreement was made with GCC officials for the Playhouse to perform on the GCC stage and to use rehearsal and storage space at the GCC Oakland Center.

But, Yell explained, the season ended with disappointing box office sales and heavy financial losses for the Play-

Even though the Playhouse sponsored its annual pre-season benefit dinner, which in the past has allowed the company to open each season with its own money reserve, the benefit fund was drained before opening night last summer, Yell said.

Yell stated he is filing for nonprofit, tax-exempt status for the Playhouse.

Officials Meet With Accident Council Monday

Two county commissioners, Garrett County's development corporation director Tom Jones and Sen. John Bambacus were all present for the Accident town council meeting Monday night.

Jones and Commissioners John Braskey and Elwood Groves discussed the town's recent unofficial designation as an enterprise zone and its attendant benefits. Jones presented information about the central Garrett Industrial Park's possible future as an enterprise zone and effects the designation may have on development and marketing of the site. Braskey and Groves also stated the board of commissioners' intent to meet annually with officials of all the municipalities to "keep lines of communication open." In turn, the council praised

U.S. And Soviets Must Keep Talking by Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr.

Several weeks ago many Americans sat riveted to their television sets watching "The Day After," a depiction of the midwestern landscape after a nuclear attack. By an odd coincidence, perhaps an irony, a great deal of attention has been paid lately to the subject of nuclear arms negotiations, to the attempt to avoid "a day after." Many people throughout the world, including most Americans, have been disturbed and concerned by the fact that some of the arms control negotiations-the Intermediate Range Nuclear Force (INF) talks-have been suspended by the Soviet Union. Paul Nitze, a distinguished resident of Maryland, conducted the INF negotiations on behalf of the United States. He met in Geneva with a Soviet team over a two-year period to discuss the proposed placement of American intermediate-range missiles in Western Europe and the removal of similar Soviet Systems. The United States had proposed deployment as a response to Soviet deployment of SS20 missiles which are targeted on European

Ambassador Nitze has predicted that these negotiations will be resumed and I hope he is right. But in the meantime, the danger to the world grows as the sheer weight of nuclear explosive capacity increases on the continent of Europe. There have been nuclear weapons in Europe for years, but none of them has had the capacity and the explosive force of the Russian SS20 missiles and the American Pershing II and Ground-launched

The suspension of INF talks would be even more unsettling if it were not for the fact that some arms control negotiations are continuing. Americans should take hope from the fact that the United States and the Soviet Union have been discussing longrange strategic nuclear weapons in another set of negotiations called START (Strategic Arms Reduction Talks). The START talks are protracted, difficult negotiations that deal with the weapons that the United States and the Soviet Union target directly on each other. It is critical that we keep open a line of communication to the Soviet Union for the injection of new ideas and creative thinking that can be developed between the two superpowers. The principal hope that exists today for avoiding "a day after" lies in the success that these talks ultimately can have. believe we can reach some intermediate steps of agreement. There is no one single solution for all our problems. But I hope that as we continue to discuss different points, different aspects of arms control with our Soviet counterparts at the START talks. We will be able to find a series of small agreements to help relax the tension and pave the way towards greater success.

DEFINITION: Goy (plural, goyim) means "nation" in Biblical Hebrew, but in Yiddish, goyim has come to mean any non-Jew, not necessarily with any denigrating connotation. Some of my best friends are Jewish. Most of my New York friends are Jewish. Despite our mutual deep affection, I will always be hopelessly govim to them. I went to visit Woody Allen in New York. He invited me to go along and visit his mother. After a politely short visit, we rose to

'I just wanted to tell you that your cookies were so delicious," I said, "that I ate four of them." 'You ate five," she replied. "But who's counting?"

We went shopping in the garment district, all the while discussing our cultural differences. 'You know, of course, why God created goyim, don't you?" 'No, I don't . . . why?'I replied as I rearranged my purchases.

Well, somebody had to pay retail." I reflected on that and said, "Hey, Woody, why is it that whenever I'm around my Jewish friends, I feel inferior?"

'That is because Jews are smarter," he answered. What?! Why are Jews smarter?' Everyone knows we're smarter because we eat the head of the white fish. 'You're kidding." 'No-in fact, I've got a white fish head back at the apartment that I'll sell you for five bucks." "Four bucks," I said and handed him the money. Back at his apartment it dawned on me.

'Woody, I just paid you four bucks for a fish head and downstairs at the deli 'bey sell a whole white fish for three dollars." "See." h You're getting smarter already. I reached fo. .ny wallet then and realized it was gone! I ran over to the window and thrust my head out over the busy garment "I've just lost my wallet," I yelled, "with eight hundred dollars in it, somewhere between here and Perlman's Department Store. Whoever finds it gets a reward of fifty bucks."

A voice from below said, "I'll give seventy-five." With wallet recovered, I readied to leave.

"I've got to get home, Woody." I said "Listen, Willis . . . I want to give you some advice," he said. 'Never, never, never be ashamed that you are Gentile."

'Why?" I asked. 'Because, it's enough if I'm ashamed you're Gentile."

Living The Christmas Spirit

Wilst Wilst

As Christmas approaches, our waking hours are filled with a long list of chores and the never ending search for gift ideas.

During this holiday season, The Republican would like to share information about groups of Garrett County citizens who also are baking and buying, but who have taken time out from their harried holiday schedule to expend a lot of time, energy and love for what they consider to be the true meaning of Christmas: their community and their church.

This week we feature the congregations of St. John's Lutheran Church located on U.S. Route 219 in Red House and St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Aurora, W.Va. Rev. Daniel Yeiser serves as pastor to both churches.

Christmas Day, most joyous of all holidays, is near. However, after reading or listening to any news report, one may wonder about the love that transforms men and women, especially during

The congregations of St. John's and St. Paul's are an example of the love that still exists in the hearts of mankind.

This love was shown in the Thanksgiving offering that was donated to the House of Hope to benefit any of Garrett County's needy residents. The Ladies Circle of St. John's supports one family during this holiday season. The family identity is determined on a recommendation from the House of Hope staff.

The ladies thus insure holiday gifts and groceries for one Garrett County family.

Rev. Yeiser takes it upon himself to organize a drive in both churches for food stuffs, blankets, etc., to be donated to the House of Hope. This is done year around, but the effort is stepped up during the Christmas season.

By this act of kindness, citizens not only in the Red House area, but county-wide, can be aided.

The St. John's Youth Group goes caroling and presents gifts to elderly shut-in residents in and around the Red House area. Although the youth organize the event, all members of the congregation are welcome to join as they spread holiday cheer as well as song.

Perhaps one of the most loving acts shown by the men and women of St. John's and St. Paul's takes the form of a special goodwill Christmas offering, which is donated to a children's home in Zelienople, Pa. Although these children may not be from Garrett County, is that really of importance on Christmas morning?

ADORNED WITH THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS is the St. John's Lutheran Church, located on U. S. Rt. 219 in Red House. Each Christmas season the people of St. John's, as well as the congregation of her parish sister, St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Aurora, W.Va., dedicate themselves in the endeavor of maintaining the true spirit of Christmas.

The men, women and children also go caroling while bearing small gifts to those who could not otherwise participate in singing the carols.

St. Paul's will present a Christmas eve cantata under the direction of Francis Roth. A children's Christmas eve program will also be presented, under the direction of Carol Forman.

The Christmas eve service begins at 7 p.m. while Christmas morning is celebrated with Holy Communion at 9:30 a.m. St. John's will present a children's Christmas program on Sunday, December 18, at 10:45 a.m. The program is presented by the Sunday School department and the annual Christmas treat will be distributed to the children following the performance. A candlelight Christmas Eve service is observed at 9 p.m. in St. John's. Rev. Yeiser also conducts Holy Communion there on Christmas morning at 11 a.m. Although many actions of man may cause us to doubt there is love behind the spirit of this Christmas season, one need only look at the faces of those children in Pennsylvania or the elderly residents in the Red House-Aurora area to know that it does live. It dwells in the hearts of the men and women in St. Paul's and St. John's Lutheran Churches.

The theft had been reported to the Pennsylvania State Police and is now also being investigated by the Maryland State Police.

Although a suspect has been identified, charges are pending in a case involving the theft of gasoline and two gas cans from a Department of Natural Resources facility located on the Kings Run Road, just off of Route 219.

The gasoline had been siphoned from a pickup truck and a Jeep stationwagon parked inside a fence at the facility. Entry was gained by crawling under the gate.

Task Force To Give Findings On Fire, Rescue Units

State Senator John N. Bambacus has announced that the Governor's Task Force on State Support for Volunteer Fire, Rescue and Ambulance Companies has prepared a preliminary report on its findings, conclusions and recommendations. The final report will be presented to Governor Hughes later this month.

Bambacus remarked that the volunteer companies are important providers of emergency services to the citizens of the State. "Their members save lives, protect property and, in so doing, save the taxpayers substantial dollars that would otherwise have to be expended by government directly. The greatly increased cost of equipment and facilities threatens the ability of individual companies to provide continued adequate service," the Senator stated. There are about 369 volunteer fire companies and rescue squads in the state of Maryland.

The Task Force concluded that legitimate need exists for continuation of the Emergency Assistance Trust Fund, finding that most particularly those companies in the non-metropolitan areas suffer a more

Further, the preliminary report proposes consideration of an Instant Lottery game with funds directed to the fire and rescue services. Another alternative proposes that a portion of the yearly increase in Lottery income to be used to fund fire/rescue service needs. The Task Force was created in June, following last Session's introduction by Senator Barnbacus of legislation to provide a loan fund program for assistance to volunteer services. The 22-member commission is chaired by the Honorable Fred L. Wineland. The panel is charged with the evaluation of existing programs providing financial assistance to the vol-

Southern Girls Team To Open Season Friday

The Southern Girls' Basketball Team, which lost only one player to graduation this past spring, will begin the 1983-84 campaign this weekend with an overnight trip to Hagerstown to do battle with Clear Spring on Friday, December 9, and St Maria Goretti on Saturday.

Coach Don Stemple stated that his team should be much improved over last season's 9-9 squad, not only because Amy Hillen is the only player lost via graduation, but also because Ken McLaughlin has been added to the coaching staff as an assistant.

New teams on the varsity slate this season include Albert Gallitan, Fairchance George, Clear Spring, St. Maria Goretti and Mt. Savage.

The girls' team progressed from an 8-10 record in 1982 to 9-9 last year and Stemple is anticipating a winning season and a trip to the state tournament for the '83-84 team.

Stemple said that for the first time at Southern there will also be a junior varsity girls' team which is slated to play a tengame schedule

Laker Women Fall To Catamounts. Then Rebound Against Allegany

The Garrett Community Col- bounds. lege women's basketball team Wednesday by dropping a 68-51 decision to Potomac State on Allegany Community College, 64-44, in McHenry.

The first half on Wednesday in Keyser was all Potomac State's as they took advantage and outscored Garrett by 17 points, 32-15. Coach Ann Wellham's squad regained its poise and played evenly with the win-said. ners as each team bucketed 36 points. Sharon Williams, who netted 18 filling the shoes of leading points, while Tammy Delany contributed 13.

Four Lakers reached double figures as Cindy Peet and Susan Harper each hit for 14 points, Shelly Brown added 12 and Michelle Payne, 10. Peet, a freshman, netted all of her points in the second half.

Both teams shot about 35 percent from the floor, however the Catamounts hit 30 buckets, compared to 18 for Garrett. The Lakers connected on 15 of 24 free throws, while Potomac State's hit eight of 19.

"Our biggest obstacle was Potomac State's pressure defense," stated Wellham, "plus our turnovers in the first half."

On Saturday against ACC, it was in the first half that both teams played evenly, with the score tied at 26 apiece at intermission. However, the Lakers developed a lead early in the second half and expanded it until the final buzzer.

Peet finished with a gamehigh 19 points on eight goals and three of three free throw opportunities, while Payne was close Potomac Valley Conference behind with 18 markers and tournament and a home tri-Harper chipped in 12 and ten re- angular meet featuring Alle-

Freeman, Gibson Lead Rams To Opening Victory

Sixteen-point performances by Jim Freeman and J.R. Gibson paved the way for a 60-56 win over the Bruce Bulldogs Tuesday evening in Westemport in the season opener for both schools.

The Bulldogs won the first quarter, 15-11, behind the shooting of Gary Morris, who emerged as the game's top scorer with 22 points.

However, the Rams came back to knot the score at 22-22 with Dave McLaughlin's bucket with just seven seconds remaining in the half.

The teams played evenly throughout the third stanza which also ended in a deadlock,

Morris connected for the first two points of the fourth quarter to put Bruce on top once again, however the Rams then reeled off six straight points to take a 47-43 advantage. Four of the points were recorded by Southern's Scott Stem.

The Garrett County Commissioners are aware of the events on Tuesday and actually began their day with an executive session with GCC coaches Tom Bosley and Phil Caruso. Bosley said the meeting was primarily to alert the commissioners of their position on the residency issue. After the meeting, the commissioners told the press that they did not feel they were in a position to take any action in the matter.

Bosley noted that 10 of his 15 basketball players are affected by the Board's decision, which could destroy GCC's program. Dennis Fearnow, who was unable to attend the morning meeting, said his concern was with the timing of the matter, because it came right as the said. Harris operates the Chapter I program in the county on federal Chapter I money and state compensatory education funds, which have remained stable over the years. The program at its peak, in the fiscal year 1979-80, received $636,000 from the federal government, this year it has received

GCC is faced with returning up to $20,000 in state aid received for the fall semester because of the reduced number of in-county students.

DHMH Assumes Data Processing

Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene Adele Wilzack announced Friday that Science Management Corporation (SMC) has been given formal notification that their contract to manage the data processing system for the Maryland WIC Program, the Women, Infants, and Children's supplemental feeding program, would be terminated, effective January and Mental Hygiene has worked very closely with SMC for the past six months to try to alleviate a variety of problems," Wilzack said. "Our decision to terminate at this time is based on SMC's inability to meet the terms of the contract with quality work in a timely manner," she explained.

"The WIC Program will be administered in its entirety by the State. The primary responsibility for data processing will now lie within the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Division of Data Processing. There will be some augmentation by contractual personnel while conversion from SMC to the State is being completed," Ms. Wilzack said.

The State's Baltimore Data Center now has a parallel system essentially in place. Final test runs will be completed during December. "We will work with SMC through December to insure that when the State begins full operation of the system, all the mothers and children who should receive food packages will continue to do so," the Secretary said.

Nearly 50% of all potentially eligible persons in Maryland are being served by the WIC Program at this time. This compares to the national average of only 35% of potentially eligible persons being served. Over 560,000 food packages went to needy women and children during FY1983, with an average of about 47,000 persons receiving food each month. The highest number of WIC recipients was recorded in September, 1983, with 53,128 persons receiving food. The in-"The Department of Health crease of nearly 7,000 over the previous month was the result of a statewide campaign to enroll new participants to take advantage of one-time supplemental federal funds from the 1983 Jobs Bill which had to be used before the end of the federal fiscal year (September

> About $1.5 million from the Jobs Bill was made available in late April to the Maryland WIC Program. Original estimates projected that over $940,000 would have to be reverted to the Federal government on October 1st because the State lacked personnel and administrative resources to enroll new participants as rapidly as necessary to use the money.

Following a special commitment by Maryland Governor Harry Hughes and DHMH Secretary Wilzack, a registration drive during August and September reduced the reversion to about $550,000.

AT&T Communications of Maryland, Inc. (AT&T), the provides supplemental food for sion, recently filed with the Maryland Public Service Commission for a rate increase to provide long-distance telephone services within the state beginning January 1, 1984.

The proposed tariff would affect about 65% of the long-distance calls made within the state. In total, the proposed tariff would charge $13.8 million, or 13.8% more, for those services than C&P Telephone Company of Maryland's current rates. The proposed tariff includes rates for long-distance, WATS, 800 Service, private line and operator services which C&P will be prohibited by court order from providing after divestiture takes place on Jan-will charge for such access. AT&T Communications estimates that its total expenses in 1984 will be $105.8 million, of which $81.5 million, or 77%, will be payments to C&P for access to their exchange network. This will require that rates for the Background Scripture: Isaiah 61. Devotional Reading: Isaiah 61:8,9.

One of my seminary professors, Dr. James Muilenberg, has said of Isaiah 61: "A poem such as this is not of an age but for all time." It is as fresh today as it was several thousand years ago when it was first written and I suspect it will be no less timely in the centuries that follow ours. Perhaps the poem is more precious to us because we know it meant so much to our Lord. who began his public ministry in Nazareth's synagogue by quoting the opening verses of Isaiah's poem. When he had finished reading from the scroll, he sat down and startled everyone by saying, "Today this scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing" (1.k. 4:21). Clearly, Jesus identified his own mission in life with the mission of the "servant" in this and other passages from the Book of Isaiah.

THE FAINT SPIRIT

What could be more compelling than for Jesus to describe his mission in these words: The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because the Lord has annointed me to bring good tidings to the poor; he has sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to those who are bound; to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor, and the Creek Lake and Oakland, on Rt. 219. day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all who mourn...to give them a garland instead of ashes, the oil of gladness instead of mourning, the mantle of praise instead of a faint spirit. (61:1-3a).

The poor, the brokenhearted, the captives and the mourners-all of these were the beneficiaries of Christ's ministry. Wherever he found people living in brokenness, he came with comfort, healing, and liberation. When he touched someone's life, it was the touch of transformation from the faint spirit to a "mantle of praise. The prophet Isaiah wrote this passage as a hymn of encouragement to the people of Israel who languished in exile and isolation. As a servant, he came to them with a message of hope. For God would in his own time restore them with his divine aid. "They shall build up the ancient ruins,' he promised, "they shall restore the former devastations; they shall repair the ruined cities..." (Is. 61:4).

AN EVERLASTING

COVENANT The restoration which Jesus had in mind as he read these prophetic words was much more than just the physical and material benefits they had once known. Nothing less than their very souls would experience his healing touch. His promise runs deeper, wider and longer than that given by Isaiah. But it was never intended that the roll of the servant should end with Jesus and this poem continues to call us to take upon ourselves this same "mantle of praise." For "the Spirit of the Lord'' is upon us, too.

Landon & French go on 'House'-keeping

By Peter Meade

The "Little House on the Prairie" must be built of bricks. Because when NBC tried to play the big, bad wolf and huff and puff and blow the "House" down, it didn't succeed.

Michael Landon and Victor
French saw to it that "Little House," though battered and discarded by the network. remained standing.

The series was canceled last year but NBC made a deal with Landon, the show's executive producer, for three two-hour specials to air during the 1983-1984 season. The first, "Look Back to Yester-day," will air Monday, Dec

The series was canceled because NBC supposedly had better shows to take its place. But these new additions —
"Boone," "Manimal," "For Love and Honor," "The Love and Honor," "The Rousters," "The Yellow Rose" and "Bay City Blues" - have all failed to amass the ratings "Little House" did during its 1974-1982 run. NBC's logic or lack of it — puzzles French, who played Isaiah Edwards on the series. 'NBC's thinking is a little Angeles. The final two "Little

out of character

Back in the days of Joan Crawford, styling a role was easy. Most of the characters she played were very much like herself. Times have changed, however, and today more and more performers are taking on roles that are quite unlike themselves.

When she was playing Flo. first as a waitress in "Alice, and then as the proprietor of her own saloon in "Flo," Polly Holliday came up with a character so unlike her real self that she could shop New York's Fifth Avenue without once being accosted by an autograph-seeking fan. No one associated Miss Holliday in her own shiny greying, longish hair and expensive pale beige outfits with the flamboyant Flo, who wore tousled red wigs and stretch polyester outfits. Miss Holliday helped develop Flo's look and had fun doing it. Then there is Vicki Lawrence, who appears as the crusty matriarch on NBC's "Mama's Family." Because she is locked into identification with a character at least 40 years older than she really is, she is having less fun with her role than Miss Holliday had with hers. But Miss Law-rence does like Mama, and says that Mama's look is uncannily close to that of her real Grandma Harper who died last year at 82. My wig is styled very much like her hair, the glasses are similar and the dresses and shoes are

Although he's part of one of the most popular shows on television, NBC's "The A-Team," Dwight Schultz is not recognized all that often when he's not playing "Howling Mad" Murdock.

"I was standing in a video store in Los Angeles," say Schultz, "and The A-Team was on. It was the first time I'd been in a public place so I stood there. Then the guy watch this show'

If it looks like Schultz and his macho mates are having fun during their Tuesday night romps, it's not acting, because they are.

"The fun comes through, doesn't it?" says Schultz. "But we must have the hardest

The story of how Schultz got his "A-Team" role is almost as implausible as any of the series' plots. He was playing Lord Byron in a pro-duction of "The Keeper" in request to fly out to California read for the role of Murdock.

"I was so tired by the time I got out there," says Schultz, and it was a three-hour audition. I did pretty bad and I felt awful. But they saw a tape I did for NBC two years ago and the casting director was pushing for me. So I got a second chance."

SOAP OPERA WEEK 'ATWT' changes; A 'Loving' Danelle By Kimberly Redmond

What has Frank Grant, who starred on "All My Children," done since he was "killed off" that soap. Also, will David Hasselhoff ever return to "The Young and the Restless"? - D.M., New Castle, Pa.

John Danelle, who played Frank Grant, is now appearing on "Loving" as police detective Art Hindman. It's doubtful that Hasselhoff will return to "Y&R," where he played Snapper Foster, since his nighttime series, "Knight Rider, is a huge success. Although it has been an onagain, off-again romance, Hasselhoff is engaged to 'Capitol's' newest cast member, Cathy Hickland, who portrays Julie McCandless.

Catherine Hickland I've watched "As The World

Turns" since 1957, but since the latest writers have taken over, the show has become unrecognizable. Why did they get rid of all the people who made the show what it was? As far as I'm concerned they might as well have canceled 'ATWT." - J.A., Perryton,

Can you tell me anything about Bianca Ferguson's (Claudia Phillips on "General Hospital") cosmetics business? - D.W., Fremont, Calif. Miss Ferguson does have a line of natural cosmetics, you can write to her in care of "General Hospital," 1438 No. Gower St., Los Angeles, CA.

YOUR RIGHTS AS MORTGAGOR

When you buy a home and take out a mortgage on it you become, in real estate parlance, the mortgagor. As such, you are obliged to repay that mortgage over a period of time. Most everyone knows this, but people often wonder EXACTLY what rights they have as mortgagor. It boils down to the simple, basic question of who owns the property. Do you as the person (or persons, if there's a family) who lives there and pays the payments own it? Or does the mortgagee (the money lender) own it?

You, the mortgagor are generally considered the real owner of the property. You also have certain recognized, important rights. One of these rights is possession: (you're living there). You also have the right: to sell the property, subject, of course, to the terms of the mortgage. You can lease: your place too, if you want to, and collect the

Getting back to selling your property, it is usually not necessary to get an OK from the lender (unless a mortgage takeover is involved) because the mortgage note will be paid off in full at the time of the closing.

If there is anything we car do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices.

"There seems to be a great deal of interest these days in Vietnam," Crone stated. "Perhaps it's a purging of guilt; perhaps we've simply outlived the shame. Whatever the reason, we are beginning finally to attempt objective considerations of what Vietnam meant. It was with this in mind that I prepared this course."

Crone's personal experiences will serve as the primary focus of the course. Through these experiences it is hoped that enough commonalities will exist to identify a typical Vietnam experience.

Other experiences to be covered include the political experience, the sociological, the historical, and especially the psychological.

"I would hope, of course, that veterans of the conflict might find this course helpful," Crone said. "Also, I should think that families and friends of veterans will benefit. Finally, I would like to think that nearly everyone would like a clearer understanding of an extraordinary event that affected nearly everyone in America.'

has prepared a series of articles providing information and recipes for healthier diets. Another of those articles, supplied by Wendy Norris, dietician for the Garrett County Memorial Hospital and a member of the commmitte, is as follows:

With the holiday season getting closer it doesn't have to mean a time for rich foods . . . overeating . . . and all the usual consequences of having to resist the temptation of sampling everything on the table. If you can keep in mind the simple tips we'll be suggesting in each of this months recipes, you'll be able to use them in making your special dishes not only more enjoyable but healthier. Entertaining during the holidays seems to be one of the most memorable events that many individuals take part in every year. This week's featured recipe . . . the Christmas Tree Relish Tray would be a delightful centerpiece that can be eaten and is low in calorie

CHRISTMAS TREE RELISH TRAY

1 Styrofoam Cone about 10 to 12 inches high Mustard greens, chicory, or curly endive

Toothpicks Cherry Tomatoes

Zucchini slices

Cauliflower florets Carrot sticks

Radish roses Begin at the base and encircle the styrofoam cone with a layer of greens, attaching them with wire staples or upholstery pins. Add a second layer overlapping the first. Working upward continue adding layers until the entire cone is covered. Decorate with vegetables speared with toothpicks.

Set "tree" on a tall compote or footed cake stand and position extra vegetables around the base. Place a bowl of dip sauce

Most dips are high in calories and fat-so for our first tip in making the dip use yogurt for instance in place of sour cream. An example for a low calorie dip would be . . . Cucumber and Yogurt

18 ounce container of plain lowfat yogurt

Garlic Powder to taste Dash of Worcestershire Sauce

aber to remove any wax. Grate the unpeeled cucumber and drain very well until almost dry. Combine with other ingredients. This simple recipe yields approximately 134 cups with 12 cup containing 45 calories per serving and 1 tablespoon containing 5 calories per serving.

Next week, a delicious new way of making plain chicken come alive will be featured. For any recipes that you may have missed or have just discovered in our column and would like a copy of can be obtained by calling Wendy Wakefield, R.D.,

Farm Income Tax Guides

The Farmer's Tax Guides are now available at the Extension Office, ASCS Office, or any Bank throughout the County.

Control of Mange Ectiban has been approved by EPA for direct application for mange and lice control on livestock. For hog producers who have mange and lice problems in their herds, this approval should provide welcome relief. In addition to its effectiveness, the product requires only a five-day interval between application time and slaughter, and there are no restrictions on the age of pigs treated. It is available in a water emulsifiable form for control of mange and lice, or a ready-to-apply dust formulation for lice control. Mange is caused by tiny parasitic mites which construct tunnels under the hog's skin. This tunneling activity causes extreme irritation that can result in decreased production and efficiency

Store Pesticides Safely

Farmers often end up with left-over pesticides at the end of the season. If stored properly most of these pesticides can be used next season. If you have too much left over, you may want to contact your dealer or manufacturer to see if the product can be returned. When storing, consider both the safety and the preservation of the product. Observe the following tips:

-Keep pesticides behind locked doors.

-Place warning signs on all entrances. -Do not store pesticides near food, feed, seed, clothing or any other article that could be contaminated.

-Storage areas should be well lit and well ventilated. Use fire resistant construction materials and concrete floors.

-Store pesticides in well sealed, original labeled containers. Examine often for leaks or spills. This is the season to be safe with

Wool Producers

File For Payment

William B. Crum, chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, says producers who have sold or plan to sell any shorn wool or unshorn lambs this year should turn in their sales receipts to be eligible for incentive payments under the national Wool

"Farmers who have a record of their wool and mohair sales are eligible for incentive payments only if the sales are reported to the ASCS Office," Crum said. The quantity sold does not affect the eligibility. However, sales slips should contain the month of shearing, month of sale, number of head shorn, pounds of wool or mohair sold, and net proceeds. Sales slips for lambs must show the liveweight and state that the lambs were unshorn.

*Perishables, especially meat and poultry, should not be left at room temperature for more than two hours. After that time period, the risk of food poisoning increases. Keep hot food HOT (above 140° F. or 60° C.) and cold food COLD (below 40° F or 4° C.).

*Keep your hands and utensils clean when preparing food. You can prevent spreading germs by washing your hands and kitchen utensils with soap and hot water after handling one food and before moving onto another. The same goes for the cutting board you use for raw meat or poultry. Wash it thoroughly before using it for cooked meat or you will get germs right back on the cooked food.

*When preparing a hot dish ahead, place it in the refrigerator within 30 minutes after cooking. Reheat thoroughly before serving. Never leave cold dishes containing meat, poultry or eggs at room temperature. Refrigerate immediately after preparation

*The best way to thaw meat and poultry is in the refrigerator. A turkey may be thawed at room temperature in a tightly closed double paper bag-this will provide insulation and allow for even thawing. Meat and poultry may be thawed in watertight wrapping under cold water. Change the water frequently to keep it cold. Cook meat and poultry promptly after thawing.

Foodborne illness can cause diarrhea, vomiting, stomach cramps, and other unpleasant symptoms which can last for several hours or even days! Use these three simple rules for food safety: Keep Food Hot, Keep Food Cold, and Keep Food

Mt. Lake Reaches Agreement On Sewer Use Rate

Members of the Mt. Lake Park town council apparently reached an agreement with the sanitary district over sewerage payment rates and have agreed to sign a sewerage contract for use of the district's Trout Run facility

The council discussed the matter last Thursday with Wendell Beitzel, sanitary district administrator, and hammered out an agreement with the exception of one final provision which Beitzel is to complete and submit for final approval.

The tentative settlement was reached after the town had refused to pay for sewerage treatment since the end of the fiscal year June 30. The town had based its refusal on a legal loophole which allowed Oakland to have sewerage treatment for its Broadford Park without paying

Official Word Comes On State Enterprise Zone

Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development acting secretary Hans F. Moyer officially announced this week that the Central Garrett Industrial Park, outside Accident, is one of two areas in the state designated as enterprise zones. The announcement was made unofficially last week.

The second site is an area of West Baltimore where neighborhood organizations have worked with city government to revitalize the area.

Mayer's announcement was made based on the recommendations of DECD's Advisory Commission, a 29-member body of the state's Three W.Va. Men leading business and labor leaders which provides guidance for Charged In Thefts the state's economic development efforts.

DECD is empowered to designate up to six enterprise zones in each fiscal year. A second application period for this fiscal year will open in April, 1984.

Enterprise zones are designed to encourage firms to expand into the zones by providing companies with income tax credits and relief from property tax assessment increases Existing companies within an enterprise zone receive the same benefits only when they hire additional employees or make a capital investment. Companies within enterprise zones also are eligible for increased loan limits from several DECD programs.

A zone is designated for a period of ten years, but the tax provisions have a shorter

DECD officials have noted that the tax incentives are viable in an enterprise zone beare expected to be small or be new ventures where tax incentives could play a crucial role in development.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD - Candles symbolizing Christ, the light of the world, were appropriately carried by marchers in the second annual peace pilgrimage in the Oakland area last Friday night. Not even a snow squall could deter some 40 dedicated souls who walked from St. Peter's Catholic Church to St. Paul's Methodist Church, then to St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, and finally to St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Although the snowflakes added a touch of Christmas holiday spirit, they dampened marchers and candles. The walk, conducted by the four churches above and the Oak Park Church of the Brethren, originated with Sister Catherine Arata last year. The marchers, dedicated to peace throughout the community and the nation, have as their motto the world peace prayer, which begins, "Lead me from death to life torneys in the case: Ralph Burnett representing Lawrence Wolfe, owner of El Lobo Restaurant; Tom Dabney, representing citizens of the town who do not wish to see the restaurant expand; and Robert Watson, attorney for the town of Mt. Lake Park and the zoning

Burnett had maintained that Dabney's appeal on the issue was not filed within the 30 days allowed and therefore was not valid. He was also protesting on behalf of Wolfe one of the conditions required for the special exception permit to allow the construction. That condition was that Wolfe not use any access from G Street.

Wolfe had planned to construct a 48 by 50 foot addition to his present business and had requested a special exception permit to allow the construction. Before the special exception could be granted the town officials had to first amend the zoning laws to allow restaurants to expand.

Substantial penalty for early withdrawal

On Compassion . . .

Editor's Note: George Hanst, former editor of The Republican, graciously consented to a return performance this week to help write news stories and even to provide the following editorial in the unexpected absence of Don Sincell, editor. George smoothly adapted to the hectic pace here at the paper and has been a reassuring calm in the storm.

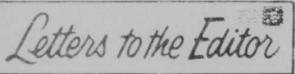

After retirement of seven years, it is difficult to get back in the groove of writing editorials even though there were fifty years ahead of that, but an item in the dailies last Wednesday provided a feeling of disgust about our national legislators, and an idea to work with.

Senators Ted Kennedy and Charles Mathias want legislation as "an act of compassion." The details were listed in a column written by Barbara Rosewicz, Washington. Mrs. Ann Cooper, a fixture on Capitol Hill for 33 years, died, in debt. The funeral bill was $4,156. She had a news stand near the Capitol. Many legislators were her friends. She extended credit, and never pressed for payment. Consequently many never paid up.

She never was on Senate payroll. It seems for 125 years, it has been tradition in the House and Senate to pay a "death gratuity" to long-time congressional employees who die while on payroll. Now Congress wants to pay the funeral bill as "an act of compassion." They just wanted to pay respect, said these senators. Ordinary, down-to-earth people, like all of us, have the proper way of showing respect. They take up a collection among those involved and pay for the cost themselves. They don't ask the taxpayers. All Congressmen will get an automatic pay raise next year of $2,400. Need we say more? And shame on those legislators who never paid her.

It's those little "piddling" things that make citizens wonder at times just what we've got down there running our government. Congress really ought to pay for its own "compassion.

Throughout the county, the distribution apparently went smoothly. Nelson noted volunteers were heavily used at all the centers. The National Guard assisted in delivering the commodities to the Oakland Armory, using their own trucks for the task.

Although Nelson stated she was unsure how long the remaining supply will last, she thought there would be ample cheese for eligible families.

Legend says that Martin Luther started the custom of lighting the tree. The candles on his family's traditional Christmas

The shepherd boy nestled closer to the trunk of the olive tree and watched the small flock of sheep face into the sea breeze and graze methodically on the sparse hillside. Down below he could see the clustered villas and hear the gruff bark of Giorgio the fruit peddlar. In a few days it would be Christmas. A special mass would be said at the church and gifts would be exchanged. He imagined he could hear the clacking of his mother's loom as she worked to make him a scarf. 'What am I do to?" he wondered. He had no money to buy his mother a gift. His father had died when he was very young and he and his mother supported themselves with a few sheep and lambs sold at market and the weavings his mother would send to the bazaar in Naples. Theirs was a meager existence and there was no money for presents.

"Someday when I am very rich like Signor Tizio the gold merchant, I will buy mother a big house with servants and a garden." he mused.

He had asked Sister Francesca at the mission for advice. 'You must carve your mother a gift from wood while you tend your sheep," she had told him. All very well and good, he thought, but he had no knife and he did not know how to carve

"You must promise your mother to be a very good son and you must do your chores," Signora Baratti had counseled him. But he was always a good son, he thought . . . albeit a very poor son. And he faithfully performed his chores each morning before he took the sheep to graze. You could promise your mother that you will whitewash

Yes, but he would do that anyway and such promises could not be unwrapped by his mother on Christmas morning. The days passed as Christmas drew closer and the boy still had nothing to give his mother. Soon it was Christmas Eve. The smell of holiday baking wafted by him and the neighborhood children danced and giggled in anticipation of what tomorrow would bring. The boy ate his dinner in silence. The sun set and it grew dark as he sat and brooded. Tomorrow was Christmas and he would have nothing to give to his mother. He walked outside and breathed the night air and watched the dim shapes of the sheep in their pen. 'Ah, sheep, you do not know how lucky you are," he sighed. You have much to eat, you are warm and dry and you want for nothing. Me . . . I have nothing, not even a gift for my mother."

He remembered the legend he had heard as a small child that on Christmas Eve the barnyard animals are granted the power of speech because of their presence at the birth of Jesus.

"If this were true, that the animals could talk," he said to the nearest ewe, "then perhaps you could give me some advice as everyone else has given me useless suggestions.'

The ewe plodded toward him and stood in front of him. She watched him with tender eyes as he leaned over the rail and plucked straw from her fleece.

'Do you love your mother very much?" she asked him. 'What?!" he exclaimed in amazement. "You can talk! "Of course, I can talk," she answered, "it is Christmas Eve.

Now answer my question. Yes," he stammered, "I love my mother very much."

'And does she love you as well?" the ewe asked. "Certainly," the boy replied, "She loves me very much." 'Then be at peace," the ewe said, "for you have someone to love and you have someone who loves you and these are the two greatest gifts that any of us will ever have." Copyright, UNICORN Features Syndicate 1983

Garrett Community College recorded its first win in Maryland JUCO conference play by defeating Frederick Junior College, 100-88, Saturday at GCC, but the Lakers added a loss to its season record Wednesday when it fell to Baltimore Community College in a 63-59 game in Baltimore.

The Lakers made a gallant attempt in the final 12 minutes of play to trim the score from a 15-point to four point deficit, led by Tony Johnson, but the team fell short of gaining ground over Baltimore.

Top scorer for Baltimore was Craig Parnell with 20 points.

GCC Coach Tom Bosley commented about the game, We played very hard but did not shoot well. We were down 15 points in the second half and cut the lead to 4. We had all the momentum as the game ended but couldn't get the lead.

Living The Christmas Spirit

by Cathy Helbig

As Christmas approaches, our waking hours are filled with a long list of chores and the never ending search for gift ideas.

During this holiday season, The Republican would like to share information about groups of Garrett County citizens who also are baking and buying, but who have taken time out from their harried holiday schedule to expend a lot of time, energy and love for what they consider to be the true meaning of Christmas: their community and their church.

This week we feature the congregations of the Grantsville Maranatha Assembly of God and the Glendale Assembly of God Churches.

As the number of days until Christmas grows shorter, the congregation of the Maranatha Assembly of God, located on the Springs Road near Grantsville, gets busier.

Rev. DeWayne Johnson and his wife, Sharon, team up to serve as the guiding hand to the men and women who volunteer their time to insure a happy holiday for many area residents.

The W.M. (Women's Ministry), under the advisement of their president, Leona Maust, has already assembled at the church to prepare their Christmas fruit and food boxes. The boxes will be distributed to several needy families in the

A Christmas banquet to honor area senior citizens was held at the church. Gifts, food and even transportation to the church hall were provided by the women. Approximately 30 to 40 guests attended the holiday function.

The W.M. group also sponsors a needy family from the area during the holiday season.

Clothing, food and gifts are presented to the family on Christmas Eve, in remembrance of that special "gift" presented to mankind so long ago.

The young people of the church are involved in the Missionettes and the Royal Rangers groups of the church.

The children combine groups to go caroling at the Goodwill Mennonite Nursing Home, thus bringing a little Christmas spirit to the patients living there.

The Missionettes and Royal Rangers gather toys which are given to orphan children around the world. The toys are distributed through the efforts of the Assembly of God Churches

On December 18 at 9:30 a.m., a children's Christmas pageant will be presented at the church. Jean Richardson devotes her time and energy as adult leader to the child performers.

Later at 10:30, a Christmas Cantata, under the direction of Linda Williams will be presented. Winding down this busy day for the congregation will be a cast play entitled "Remind Me Dear Lord," written and directed by Sharon Johnson. The play will begin at 6 p.m. and features both children and adults characters

The members of the church will begin the Christmas Day celebration with a special service combining music and candelight, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

At 6 p.m. on Christmas Day, a film providing a religious version of Dicken's "A Christmas Carol" will be shown at the

After a full day of church services, gift exchanges and family gatherings, most of us will be content to relax and enjoy the rest of our holiday at home.

Rev. Johnson and his family will not be doing that They will be presenting a telecast over WFRB radio in

You do not have to look far to see the Christmas excitement growing in our mountaintop community. Christmas brings forth pictures of brightly decorated homes, smiling families as they join in the spirit of giving, and tables magnificently displaying the cook's finest delicacies.

We at The Republican wish to share some of our favorite holiday recipes as our gift to you, our readers, in hopes you can use them in your holiday celebrations or as ideas for home-baked gifts to others. Happy eating and Merry Christmas!

HOLIDAY BREADS

Here are two bread recipes that make well-appreciated Christmas gifts. Cathy Helbig bakes her white bread in advance and freezes it. When it is time to wrap the bread, she takes it out of the freezer and heats it for 15 minutes at 350°. (She increases the amount of sugar from 14-13 cup. The Cherry Nut Bread, from Beverly Sincell, can be baked in miniature loaf pans for gifts. Beverly suggests combining three different miniature nut bread loaves in a package for a unique gift.

WHITE BREAD

2 cups milk 12 stick butter

14 cup sugar 1 egg, beaten

3 tsp. salt 1 pkg. dry yeast

cup warm water 6 to 712 cups flour

Scald milk. Add butter, sugar, beaten egg and salt. Soften yeast in lukewarm water and add to cooled milk mixture. Add 6 cups flour, a cup at a time, to make a firm dough. Knead dough until smooth, adding flour to aid handling. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled in size. Place in three greased 9"x5" loaf pans, cover and let rise until doubled. Bake in 350° oven for 30 minutes. Makes 3 loaves.

CHERRY NUT BREAD

1 cup sugar 2 eggs

12 cup shortening

tsp. salt 214 cups flour

12 cup milk 34 cup chopped nuts

14 cup cherry juice Cream sugar, eggs and shortening.

Sift flour and mix with baking powder and salt. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture, blending alternately with milk and cherry juice. Mix, then stir in nuts and cherries. Spread in wellgreased loaf pan. Bake 60-65 minutes at 350° degrees. Remove immediately from pan and cool on rack.

WHAT SHALL WE CRY? December 18, 1983

Background Scripture: Isaiah 40 through Devotional Reading: Isaiah 46:8-13. A story in today's newspaper

WASHINGTON--The Supreme Court, trying to decide whether communities may include Nativity scenes in their official Christmas displays, was told Tuesday that the celebration is primarily "a secular national folk festival" and not a religious holiday, William McMahon, lawyer seeking to win back for Pawtucket, R.I., the city's authority to sponsor a Nativity scene, argued: "The city is celebrating a legitimate national holiday, not promoting religion" and called Christmas a "dominantly secular..." holiday in its contemporary celebration. (DALLAS MORNING NEWS, October 5.

My first reaction after the shock of it all was anger at the incredible statement that Christmas is a "dominantly secular holiday. But the more I thought about it, the more I realized that the lawyer was simply reflecting what he experienced: a secular holiday quite devoid of religious significance. That is not what Christmas is supposed to be, but perhaps that is what we have let it become. THE WAY OF THE LORD

So, maybe we need to rethink the meaning of Christmas so that we can better communicate it to Creek Lake and Oakland, on Rt. 219. Saturday morning services: Sabbath School at 10:15 a.m.; Worship Hour at the world. What is the message of Christmas for our world? As Isaiah asked, "What shall I cry?" For one thing, the Christmas message is one of comfort and pardon for a weary and guilty Comfort, comfort my people, says your God. Speak tenderly to Jerusalem, and cry to her that her warfare is ended, that her iniquity is pardoned...(Is. 40:1,2).

To a world torn by strife, poverty, injustice, fear and the threat of nuclear holocaust, that is eternal "Good News."

Secondly, the Christmas message is a call for preparation:

In the wilderness prepare the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God . (1s. 40:3). Christmas is not delivered with the morning paper, it must be prepared for and received. Every valley of human sin must be lifted up and every mountain of human ego must be made low. LIKE A SHEPHERD Thirdly, the message of Christmas is one of reverence for the might and power of God: "Behold, the Lord God comes with might, and his arm rules for him" (1s. 40:10). And the might of God stands in stark contrast to the natural impermanence of human beings: "Surely the people is grass. The grass withers, the flower fades, but the word of our God will stand forever" (Is. 40:7,8).

Actors invest money off screen

By Elaina Thompson

Wayne Rogers and Bob Eubanks are two celebrities who have invested their money wisely.

Rogers, who
"M*A*S*H's" first Trapper John, star of his own series "House Calls" and seen most recently in the CBS miniseries "Chiefs." would like another series but can afford to say

In fact, Rogers rejects a lot of what he gets to read. "I'm not interested in space ships or mechanical gimmicks. I like small, real human relationship stories

A Princeton graduate, Rogers uses his financial skills to "preserve the capital (celebrity clients) earned. I would never allow them to take some of the risks that I take for myself, but I'm not a hot stock artist. I'm an investor and I have good partners."

For his personal invest-ment, Rogers buys into anything - making toothpaste, running a restaurant or a radio station - when nobody wants it, and sell it when rodeo circuit, "won't teach," everybody wants it. You can however, because he's not a say I'm an entrepreneur.

'The Jeffersons' keep going and growing

By Peter Meade

Franklin Cover has been living in the same apartment house as "The Jeffersons" for the entire decade the CBS sitcom has been on the air and yet he has never felt at home.

"Actors never feel secure," says Cover, who plays Tom Willis on the series, "unless you're Paul Newman or Robert Redford. I don't have a contract for next year - I assume I'd be back - but I don't know.

Right now the only thing Cover knows is that the series is in its 10th season. He says it seems like every year it's going to end, but so far every year he has been wrong. "Critics hate us," says

Cover, "but no matter what they say viewers watch us.

And they watch no matter what time or night they may be on. In the past nine years, the show has had time slots on Sundays, Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. This season marks the fourth year that the show has appeared on

"When we moved to Sunday night," says Cover, "the rat-ings hit No. 3. The placement of the show there was a great thing to do. People work on Monday, so on Sunday night they're usually home.

Despite the show's sustaining popularity Cover has never made Los Angeles his full-time home. He and his wife, Mary, and their two children, consider New York and Cape Cod as home. But if Cover had not found a comfortable home on "The Jeffersons" the series would never have lasted this long. Another factor is the ever-growing relationship between Willis and his crotchety neighbor, George Jefferson (Sherman Hemsley).

We started out hating each other," says Cover. "Now we're friends. It's the Laurel and Hardy syndrome. I'm still gullible, but he doesn't call me as many names anymore. Attitudes have changed too. Interracial marriage is not an explosive subject now." Cover's "TV marriage" to Roxie Roker during the 1976 Christmas show did not cause the flak some would expect.

"People look for hidden meanings," says Cover. 'We're not duplicating 'Roots' or significant moments in history. We've always tried to keep 'The Jeffersons' a family show, not too rough or nasty. The operative word is comedy. Comedy is the most ment and I feel we have served the category well."

The show has returned the favor. "I've seen all aspects of the industry," says Cover, and television has been good

Some of the nicest things come in little packages, and Emmanuel Lewis helps celebrate Christmas in his own little way on "Webster," Friday, Dec. 23 on ABC.

'Fame' & 'Comfort' find new life in syndication

By Peter Meade

Television syndication has always been an outlet for series canceled by the networks, but with "Fame" and "Too Close for Comfort" now in syndication the business may change significant-

Both shows, canceled by the networks last season, are being kept alive with new

MGM/UA's "Fame" debuted in October and the students of the School of Arts are still dancing and singing. The show has added three regulars; Billy Hufsey as a dancing dynamo, soap graduate Cynthia Gibb as an aspiring singer and Ken Swofford as an iron-willed administrator. The cast of "Too Close for Comfort" has been cut as has its budget. The series is produced by Metromedia and debuts in January with the first of 22 episodes. Ted Knight and Nancy Dussault return as the parents of Deborah Van Valkenburgh and Lydia Cornell, with JM J

Bullock as the nosy neighbor. "The only difference is it'll be a tighter show," says Miss Cornell. "The network said we had lost the youthful audience, now we're back to the original premise. When we were double canceled, I started to look for Synd other things. But I never thought of syndication.

"Fame:" When NBC axed the show, syndication became the first priority. Larry Gershman, president of MGM/ UA Television

Distribution, immediately began securing markets. The first of the new 20 hours (plus four concert shows) debuted Oct. 10 in 116 markets.

"I have no animosity toward NBC," says Gershman. "They have a business to run But this show is too good to cancel.

"Fame" was far more popular abroad (airing in countries), so when Gershman met with the foreign licensees, he says, "they offered major help, not just a 10 percent raise in fee. Some gave been fertile ground for talk and game shows. "Fame" and "Comfort" represent an ambitious attempt to take syndi cated series beyond being nothing more than re-re-re reruns of "The Odd Couple and "The Honeymooners."

NHS Appoints Council Ways. Means Committee

The Northern High School student council recently appointed students to various standing committees for the 1983-84 school year. Featured this week is the ways and means committee, which is responsible for the management of the school store and fundraisers, and the group will be also assisting in organizing an off-Broadway presentation for the student body and the com-

Chairman of the ways and means committee is Kim Habel, who resides near Mc-Henry with her parents, Mr.

and Mrs. Joe Habel. An honor roll student, Kim is also captain of the drill team, band vice president, a Camp Hickory counselor, magazine captain, and is a member of the Congress Passes chorus. She has served as the chairman of the by-laws committee and on the junior class activities committee.

She was the 1983 homecoming queen, and has also been a Snowball princess and Winter-fest queen. In her community Kim is a Sunday School nursery teacher and a volunteer at the Cuppett and Weeks nursing home. Her plans after graduation include a college education and to travel abroad.

Ways and Means committee members include senior Mike Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Thomas, of near Friendsville. Mike is editor of the North Star vearbook. manager for the basketball and football teams and is presently enrolled in college courses at GCC. He hopes to major in radio and television communications either at the University of Maryland or Arizona. Brent Beachy is also a member of ways and means. A son of Mr. and Mrs. David Beachy, McHenry, he is a junior honor roll student. In both his freshman and sophomore years he received awards as outstanding male student and was a student of the month during the last school year. A member of the varsity basketball and golf teams, he is a member of the Letterman's Club.

In his spare time he enjoys hunting and archery, and has been chosen the state archery

Another junior on the committee is Michele Clutter, and an international hot air daughter of Doris Clutter, Accident, and Robert Clutter, Mc- ton Henry. Michele's activities include serving as majorette, band member, Pep Band member, football statistician, and member of the junior class activities committee.

An honor student, she has also served as a member of the bylaws committee, as a magazine captain, and ski club treasurer. Her dream is to become a physician. Hobbies include State College, has published a dancing, skiing and playing her

Mathias Proposal On Bicentennial

Legislation to support a series of events marking America's Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) announced this week.

Mathias, chairman of the U.S. Bicentennial, introduced the proposal to earmark $250,000 of fiscal year 1984 defense appropriations to fund the celebration.

The Maryland senator noted, 'It is fitting for the United States to assume a leadership role in this international tribute to man's advances in flight With this appropriation Congress pays tribute to our unique achievement in aerospace science, technology and commerce, and demonstrates our resolve to remain a leader in manned flight," he added. Mathias said the celebration wil begin on June 24, 1984, the 200th anniversary of the first U.S. manned flight, and end on

The ten-day celebration-called Air and Space USA-will include: recreation of the first American manned flight, to be held in Baltimore; Kennedy Center entertainment gala; aircraft displays at Baltimore-Washington International and Dulles airports and Andrews Air Force

Unemployment and Social Values according to the publisher, is deliberately provocative. It does not claim to have final answers, but seeks to encourage new ways of thinking about a problem which will not go away, even if the economy should "pick up." The questions which the book raises do not simply concern certain political and economic steps which might be taken. Ultimately they deal with the basic values of our suggested that many people in same man four times. our society do not work in order to live, but that they live in order to work

The anthology suggests that in our society too much emphasis is put on production, economic growth, and material consumption, and too little emphasis on leisure, education, and participatory democracy. The crisis situation of mass unemployment should, according to Bramann, be an occasion to think again about the things which we really need and want.

Unemployment and Social Values will be available in area book stores or may be ordered from Adler Publishing Company, P.O. Box 9342, Rochester, New York, 14604 ($6.95 plus $1.25 for postage and

WHAT'S A RESIDENCE?

Sounds like an easy enough question, doesn't it? An eskimo would point to his igloo. A hermit would gesture toward his cave. A suburbanite would look at his bilevel. A city-dweller might look up at the 20th floor of a high-rise apartment. All of these people are correct, since they live at those places.

A city zoning ordinance that states that "residences only shall be put up in a certain area of land" could conceivably include any or all types of "residences". It is for this reason that most ordinances are quite specific with regard to the types of residences that can be built. Regarding times ask if they are allowed to take in boarders, wondering if this would be a violation of "Residence only" restrictions. If the owner lives there himself, he can normally do this, UN-LESS the restriction states that only one private family can occupy the building. However, if he turns the whole place into an apartment building or rooming house, he violates the restrictions because it is no longer his residence. It is a business. This would also apply to tourist homes.

school. Maryland Farm Bureau is a voluntary membership organization with nearly 15,000 family members. Young Farmer Chairman

Lee West was named chairman of the Maryland Young Farmers organization, replacing Earl "Buddy" Hance. West will be traveling to this county to help organize a Young Farmers group here. Anyone between the ages of 18 and 35 is asked to contact Nevin Umbel, Clark Kolb or Donna Glotfelty, and a meeting with Chairman West will be arranged.

Queen Resigns Carol Irvine, newly elected National Eastern Region FFA vice president, resigned as Maryland farm queen and Crystal Hayden, St. Mary's County, was named to that position.

Women's Committee Maryland Women's Committee officers re-elected at the convention were Martha Clark, chairman: Leona Dell, first vice chairman; Wilma Mallow, second vice chairman; Maxine Price, secretary, and Mary Ann Stinson, parliamentarian. Mrs. Clark, recalling the effective program of events completed in the past year, said that 'Although these activites accomplished more than their purpose, we must prove that we can do even more in '84!".

Jane Malone, returning for the second year as a Women's Committee speaker, defined stress as "the response of the body to every demand made upon it," and centered her talk around the theme of this year's convention - "Farm Bureau - A Family Affair." She emphasized the importance of distinct communication between all members of today's actively-engaged family units and suggested a wise lifestyle which would exclude alcohol and tobacco, include three balanced meals, and at least seven or eight hours of sleep.

She also suggested changing the daily routine occasionally, discussing the schedule and making plans with all members of the family, taking regular vacations with your spouse for at least four days at a time, complimenting others when deserved, setting priorities and developing and using a timecontrol plan, that "Individuals can do a good job on a few things, not a half-way job on a

Other speakers included Mc-Carl Roberts, president of the Maryland Bible Society, who said "Marriage is a day-to-day relation between human beings and there will be problems and sacrifices but we must turn them into ways to make us stronger.

Mark Mills, 13-year-old Maryland 4-H public speaking winner, entertained with his rendition of "the Plight of the Pig." Friday's luncheon entertainment was provided by the Maryland 4-H Chorus, "The New Beginnings.

Asks For Unity

On one occasion during the convention, President Holloway called for unity, stating the "Maryland Farm Bureau is a general farm organization which represents all of agriculture with one voice. Farm Bureau is needed now more than at any time in the past at a time when members are going through a real economic crisis .

. Gain will be accomplished only through organizational discipline and the discipline and determination of leaders and members working together in a concerted effort toward agreedupon, long-term goals."

Warning - Moldy Corn

If your are finding white or pink mold on your stored corn, you should be aware that this mold could be a potential danger to your animals. The Fusarium (mold) species can produce toxins that can cause many health problems and even death if the mold is extremely high. Mold generally will not grow on corn that is below 22 percent moisture.

Don't Buy Mastitis Problems

There is a liklihood that a lot of dairy animals will be going to the sale yards because of the enactment of the recent Diary Converison Bill. Probably over 50 percent of these animals will have some form of mastitis. Remember when the dairyman cuts back on animal numbers, the problem animals will be the first to go. Before you buy cows, run a culture test. Buy only from herds with good health records. Buy young cows in first or second lactation. If the animals were on DHIA testing, request the DHI somatic cell count record. If you bring a cow with mastitis into your herd she may serve as the source of infection for your whole herd. DHIA Workshop

Mark the date of Thursday, January 12, on your calendar for an update workshop on using DHIA Cow Records. The workshop will be repeated for your convenience. An afternoon session will he held at the Old Swan Meadow School at 1:00 p.m., and the evening session at 7:30 p.m. in Room LC-154 at Garrett Community College in McHenry. All DHIA Members are encouraged to attend and also any dairymen who would like to find out more about the DHIA Program. Dr. Lee Majeski, Extension Dairy Specialist, and Gene Long, DHIA Manager, will be on hand to present the program, and you are also encouraged to share your concerns about the DHIA program.

If It Is Going To Be Meat, Don't Treat

I think it would be safe to assume that the dairy animals that have the potential of leaving the herd under the new Dairy Program will be the low producers and problem cows. The dairy farmer is going to have to be aware that these health problem cows may be treated with antibiotics or drugs that may leave residues in the meat that will reduce the carcass value which you as the seller will be responsible for. To prevent this situation, I would suggest that your keep accurate records showing which animals receive antibiotics and when the treatment began and ended. The prescribed withdrawal time for an antibiotic also should be noted and followed strictly. By following manufacturer's instructions and performing the "Live Animal Swab Test for Antibiotic Residues," you can avoid sending animals to the meat market with antibiotic residues. You can obtain instruction on performing the Swab Test by writing: Publications Office FSIS-ILA, Room 1163-S, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Ask for Guidebook "How to Perform the Live Animals Swab Test for Antibiotic Residues.'

SOFT TONES IN EARTHENWARE, china and stoneware are featured among the ceramic works of John Smith now on display at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland. Smith's work is handthrown on a potter's wheel and represents two phases of his life, when he was attending pottery and ceramics classes at Clarion University and at Garrett Community College. He has obtained a B.S. degree in education and a B.A. in speech and theatre. John has taken his art one step beyond mere creation, as he figures the chemical properties of clay bodies and glazes in formulas of his own devising. Presently bookmobile operator for the Ruth Enlow Library, Smith is working toward obtaining his own potter's wheel and kiln. In the meantime, the Wheeling native is active in St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, and is scoutmaster for Boy Scout Troop 31. When not busy at his work or with his church and community activities, Smith tries his hand at photography and crafts. The artist's works will be on display and on sale through December.

$39 Million Bay Package Unveiled

Governor Harry Hughes, declaring that the federal government should help states in the Chesapeake Bay region restore the bay to its formerly "pristine" condition by the next century, today unveiled a $39 million new-money package of initiatives as Maryland's firstyear effort toward that goal.

The program, announced at the wind-up session of a threeday conference at George Mason University, includes more than $15 million in operating expenses and $24 million in bond money for capital improvements in the fiscal year beginning July 1,

Another $31 million, Governor Hughes noted, has already been earmarked for sewage treatment plant improvemens to be financed from bonds authorized before the bay-rescue program took shape, making Maryland's total first-year commitment $70

Time Of Healing . . .

Producing a newspaper certainly has its rewarding moments, just as any occupation; however there is at least one characteristic of this job that is not so desirable. We refer to that everlooming deadline, plus the fact that, no matter what happens, the newspaper must be published as scheduled.

Over the past two weeks illness among staff members at this office has run rampant. All three of our advertising personnel have experienced illness, as have three out of four members of the newsstaff, including this writer. One of our pressmen and at least one typesetter have also been under the

When illness strikes a newspaper staff, again, just as with most jobs, other employees work extra hard and long to cover for the absent person. However, with so many absences at one time, our remaining staff persons have been stretched almost beyond their limit. Even our former editor, George Hanst, returned to the news desk to pitch in, for which we are most grateful. Fortunately, such a large number of absences all at one time is quite

In light of this situation, we ask that our readers bear with us through this crisis period. If a particular story that a reader believes should be in the paper, but is not, or if an advertisement looks a little funny, we ask that our readers please try to understand. We aren't attempting to make excuses for an error that may result from this situation, but we did want to explain that production has been far from normal lately.

As of today, most of our staff has returned to work, many still not back to normal, but here nonetheless. The healing process is well underway.

The Christmas season is a time of healing, for it was on the first Christmas that God sent to an extremely ill world a holy, and the only truly effective, remedy. Although our world is still riddled with sin, the worst form of sickness, the healing power of that special remedy, in the form of Jesus Christ, is available to each of us. For this wonderful gift, we celebrate once again with joy, with giving and with happiness. Merry Christmas.

Christmas, 1983 . . .

by George Hanst

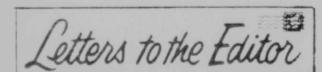

Christmas is Christmas, no matter whether we are in Garrett County, Eastern or Western Shores, or in Baltimore City, but since we are here, we can realize that there are many things around us that make it possible for us to have a brighter and a more enjoyable Christmas.

On Christmas day, 1982, the Morning Sun, Baltimore, carried a discussion on "Christmas in Other Places," and used two articles, one from Salisbury, Eastern Shore, and one from Garrett County. Advantages in this area were outlined. Ease in obtaining pine, pine cones, ground pine, laurel and rhododendron for homemade wreaths and other decorations was emphasized. The custom of annual Christmas parades, stress on religious programs and other activities were pointed out.

Assurance that ninety-nine percent of the time the ground would be covered with snow was given, along with the fact that any wind would be a dry wind and not nearly as penetrating as winds around rivers or seashores. Other advantages were listed.

The Christmas season here is varied, unique, and great, along with an exhilarating climate. It is thrilling and wonderful to be in Garrett County for Christmas, 1983.

Be sure to give credit to God. "This is the day which the Lord has made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it.

There is an old story that comes to mind at Christmas-saw it as a play in church great cathedral with chimes in a tower so high it seemed to reach into the heavens, except they had not rung for many years and were reputed only to ring when a gift of love was placed on the altar on Christmas Eve. MACo Adopts Stands On 1984 Assembly Issues

The Maryland Association of Counties adopted its position on several issues to come up during the state 1984 General Assembly session, the Garrett County Commissioners reported last week.

The commissioners, who attended the recent winter conference of MACo, noted the body adopted the positions proposed by its legislative committee. Commissioner John Braskey represented Garrett County on that committee.

Major recommendations adopted included stands on education and transportation funding, pension reform and sewage

MACo's position on education funding, as adopted, will be that state aid should be increased on an equalized basis with no change in the state and local relationship with regard to teacher pension and retirement.

I will never be ready for Christmas. I got my Christmas cards mailed and that is only because they were the ones I'd addressed year before last and packed away before they could be mailed.

Yesterday, I decided to try and do a little Christmas shopping and I took my very large attack puppy with me so she could guard the car. I left the keys in the ignition and the dog in the car. I returned to the car to find my dog standing on the door lock button. Twenty minutes and two coat hangers later, I was into the car and lecturing the puppy on the ethics of automobile deportment

Then I went home and had a junk food attack. Having eaten the last of my "Ho-Ho's", I decided to bake something. (Why, I don't know. I can't make TV dinners without having the volunteer fire department over.) I'd found a recipe on the back of an empty cereal box and I figured I could make these muffins, which called for a cereal I didn't have, by substituting another breakfast cereal, which I did have. Let me tell you something, never, ever make "Country Hearth Bran and Raisin Muffins" with Sugar Pops breakfast cereal. I put two of them in the dog's bowl and she

On top of that, I think I'm getting a cold. Of course, it's hard to tell in my house, where every room is a different temperature. The basement, where the woodstove is, is so stifling you could smoke a ham down there. My bedroom is much cooler and all the static electricity builds up in that room . . . this morning, I peeled two of my wool sweaters off the wall. The bathroom is so cold that we have a side of beef hanging in there. The living room is very comfortable except that the dog fills the entire room. In the kitchen you have to chip a hole in the ice to do the dishes, and I'm almost certain I'm getting a cold.

I just got the woodstove. Wonderful invention, woodstoves. By the time I split the wood, stoke the fire, sweep the floor, clean the soot out of my ears, blow the wood ash off the bird, I'm exhausted. Rams Experience Difficult Week With Two Losses

The Southern Rams boys' varsity basketball team experienced a disappointing week as they fell to Fort Hill Thursday evening in Cumberland, 57-42, and then lost to Valley Tuesday evening in Oakland, 57-47. Coach Oren Yoder's young team has now slipped to 2-3 on the season.

The win by Fort Hill was the second this season over the Rams, as the Sentinels nipped Southern by a single point earlier in Oakland.

The Rams stayed close throughout the first half as Fort Hill took a 9-5 lead by the end of the first quarter and assumed an 18-15 advantage by halftime.

The Rams were outscored by a 19-12 margin in the third stanza, however, and the Sentinels took a 37-27 lead into the final period.

Most of the difficulty experienced by the Rams was brought about by Fort Hill's man-toman press throughout most of the second half.

Howie Hansel paced Fort Hill with 18 points, while teammates Keith Cain and Jay Courtney added 15 and ten, respectively. Scott Stem was the only Ram to reach the double figure

Christmas Trees Reported Stolen

The theft of two Christmas trees was reported to Maryland State Police on December 11.

Elmer Harland Upole, Jr. advised police that a red Chevrolet pickup truck had driven away from his property located on the Fairview Road, near New Germany Road, with the two trees in the bed.

Upole reported two occupants to be inside the vehicle but could not identify them. State police are continuing the investigation.

Holiday Changes

The greater portion of the Oakland Merchants' and Businessmen's Association meeting, held December 13, was spent discussing changes to be made during the Christmas season. Parking in town will be free until Christmas for all shoppers, as announced by the Mayor and Town Council.

Another Christmas matter discussed had to with Santa Claus. Charlie Grubb has portrayed Saint Nick for many years with no compensation, so it was decided to pay him $50.00 to help defray the cost of cleaning his suit and other expenses. The Association will pay him $10.00 in the coming years for being Santa in the parade.

Several parents complained about the treats given at the parade, protesting against the sugar content.

The latest printing of coupons for the annual Christmas Giveaway are yellow and include two lines for address. They will possibly be used to create a mailing list. Postcards will be sent to all members of the Association to remind them of future meetings.

The final topic of discussion concerned the possibility of having a townwide promotion with direct mail circular, perhaps centering around St. Patrick's Day, March 17, 1984.

Judge Finds Area Man Not Guilty

On Old Charges

After having charges of disorderly conduct and trespassing lodged against him for three years, an Oakland man has been found not guilty by Garrett County District Court Judge Jack Turney

During December 12 proceedings, Ernest Dale Patton, 40, answered to the charges that stemmed from an incident which occurred in 1980 at the home of his father, Curtis Patton, on the Bear Creek Road near Friendsville

Patton had left the area and upon his return, went before Turney and was handed the not

Lois Bittinger, 38, Grantsville, was found not guilty of permitting a dog to run at large and failing to confine a dangerous dog.

The charges were brought against her by Patricia Durst, also of Grantsville, who was visiting at the home of David Bittinger, located on the Maple Grove Road near Grantsville, on November 6, when she was attacked and bitten by the dog belonging to Lois Bittinger. This was the second incident of this nature involving the Bittinger dog. Sharon Warnick, 37, Deer

for Yerla C. Herman, 46, Oakland, who failed to appear to answer to charges of writing bad checks and theft. The case against Nancy

Lynette Wilburn, 19, Grantsville, involving a charge of disorderly conduct at the National Hotel in Grantsville on November 4 was declared nolle prosque at the request of the complainant. Allan Forest Armstrong, 58,

Oakland, had been charged with battery and theft, but this case was also declared nolle prosque at the request of the complainant, Wilma M. Dillsworth. Robert Mayle, 47, Oakland, had been charged with writing bad checks but this case was declared nolle prosque because the checks belonging to Mayle had been stolen. The Garrett County Sheriff's Department is continuing the investigation of the theft.

Every year hundreds of thousands of letters to Santa Claus are drafted by youngsters bright-eyed with anticipation of Christmas gifts to match their dreams. Captured on paper this week are some of the dreams of local children from Dennett Road, Loch Lynn, Accident and Kitzmiller Elementary Schools with their accompanying flashes of humor. These are accompanied by a childlike faith and optimism and tempered only by some slight lack of grammatical and spelling finesse, which in fact only adds to the delight of the letter reading. And despite the wide publicity and adult reactions, few requested the elusive Cabbage Patch Kid.

Offered first are letters from Dennett Road, chosen by Clark Sharpless, who noted "You mother absolutely refused to let us print!" Note pation with the world situation and their current education.

SOMETHING MORE December 25, 1983

Background Scripture: Isaiah 9:1-7; Devotional Reading: Isaiah 12:1-6.

We don't know how the people received Isaiah's prophecy about the coming of the messianic king. But it is quite likely that there were some who were disappointed.

The promises themselves were comforting and encouraging enough: the messiah would come as "a great light," he would end their oppression, and put an end to strife. He would rule the world "with justice and righteousness" and all peoples together would call him "Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace" (Is. 9:6).

A CHILD IS BORN

But there was also a prophecy that the messiah would come to them in the form of a little baby: "For to us a child is born, to us a son is given." No matter how popular the birth of male babies in Israel, that certainly wasn't what they were looking for. They wanted a full-grown leader to rule them and help them throwoff the oppression of their enemies. A child--no matter what its destiny--was something considerably less than they were expect-

Yet, it is now apparent that they also received something more than they were expecting. This "child" that would be born among them, in addition to his other gifts and talents, would be blessed with the greatest spiritual endowment:

And the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and the fear of the Lord. All the best attributes of the kings of Israel--and considerably more--would be incarnate in this messiah. "He shall not

cide by what his ears hear.' WOLF AND LAMB

But the people of Israel were also to receive "something more" than relief from their enemies. The messiah whom Isaiah envisioned would be a "Prince of Peace," whose coming would herald a day when eventually "the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the lion and the fatling together. That certainly had to be something considerably "more" than they were expecting. It would not be just freedom from oppression that God would give them, but that much more positive and engrossing quality of peace itself: "They shall not hurt or destroy in all my holy mountain ... Though they may have thought they were getting something less, as God keeps the score, they were getting something worth a lot more. And that's always part of the meaning of Christmas, too. No matter our state in life, no matter how we assess our own importance, we always get more than we expect or deserve from

BITTINGER-GLADES

Editors Note: As a special feature, we are using the following feature, written by Bittinger-Glades correspondent, Mrs. Martha Glotfelty, about her Foundation for Christian Living trip to Hawaii.

A Dream Come True For some time I have supported, in a modest way, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's Foundation for Christian Living Program. Since this makes me one of the Foundations family, I was invited to attend their 10th family reunion this year in Honolulu, Hawaii.

On Monday morning, November 21, I left Pittsburgh airport for Honolulu. I knew no other persons going, but I had confidence I would soon meet up with friends. At the airport, I met a lady from Morgantown, W.Va., and a lady from Mercer, Pa. We teamed up and travelled together all through the week.

All travel arrangements were made by the International Marketing Tours of Paramus, New Jersey. Each of us was sent a large tag with our name and address so we could make ourselves known. They have done this for the group for ten years, three times at Hawaii, Madrid, Spain; Mexico City and Bermuda.

After five-and-one-half hours delay in Los Angeles, while repairs were made to our plane, we arrived in the beautiful city of Honolulu at about midnight. We were met at the airport by a bronzed native Hawaiian, who kissed each of us, placed a flower lei around our necks, and took our pictures. I was assigned a room on the 28th floor of a 31 story hotel, the Sheraton Wakiki.

On Tuesday morning, we had official greetings from the Governor of Hawaii, and several other dignitaries, including Al Harrington, an entertainer and one of the stars people, and the inspiration of of the television show, Hawaii

There were 1.400 registered guests. California had the largest group, with 150. There were twenty from Maryland including a man and his wife from our Eastern Shore who were celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

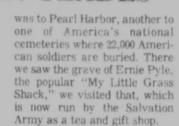

Breakfasts were furnished every day and there were four banquets. Each morning, we had devotions in the hotel's beautiful ballroom with Dr. Peale, Mrs. Peale and others. During the week we had special music, inspirational talks, and caring and sharing group meetings. Dr. Peale's son conducted group meetings on Bible study, his son-in-law had setting-up exercises for us each day, and the entire week was filled with fun, learning and good fellow-

Several famous people were on the tour. One was Carl Erskine, a once famous baseball player for the Brooklyn Dodgers. He told about the great and famous Branch Rickey, who asked all of his baseball hopefuls "Do you go to church?" He said this Christian man always stressed selfdiscipline, and it has run through his life like a "Red

Perhaps the most dramatic speaker of all was Max Cleland, a veteran of the Vietnam War. A grenade explosion destroyed both of his legs and one arm. He told of spending months in a veterans' hospital, where he said it took a year for him to come back. He said, "I really hit bottom." With the help of a supportive family and his own faith he moved through. He served as head of the Veterans' Administration and is now Secretary of State for Georgia.

We heard Harry DeKamp tell how his Christian faith healed him of cancer. He has written a book, "One Man's Healing From Cancer.

There were optional tours, with free time to take them. One

One evening, we attened an Hawaiian Luau, (pig roast) on a cove, 45 miles from the city. There was dancing, music and all kinds of entertainment.

Honolulu is the capital city of Hawaii, and is on the island of Oahu. This is the most developed of all the islands, and we were told that land to be bought is no longer available When it is purchased, it is

The city is so very beautiful, with flowers blooming everywhere. It was 80 degrees, with soft breezes blowing all the time we were there. Our hotel was located on the beach. One could walk out onto the sand and along the Pacific Ocean. At each banquet, we were presented with an orchid, which we could wear in our hair.

At one banquet, we heard the famous Hawaiian Boys Choir sing and dance. There are 150 boys in the choir, ages from 9 to 13 years of age. On Sunday morning at our worship service there were two thousand folks present and the offering was $6,000. Mrs. Peale announced that half of that sum would be given to the choir, for many parents cannot afford the clothes and costumes suitable for their concerts

During the week, we saw two films, "One Man's Life" and "Chariots of Fire." Monday evening, we attended a farewell banquet, with prayers being made for our safe return.

The breathtaking beauty of the island, the warmth and friendliness of the native meeting so many fine folks made my trip a wonderful one. It was "A Dream Come

For a quick but mouth-watering cake decoration, bake your favorite cake in a one-layer oblong pan. When the cake is cool, frost with a light green frosting. Arrange pillow-shaped mints for the tree's base. Two peppermint sticks, one on top the other is the tree trunk. HANDMADE DECORATIONS adorn the 15-foot spruce Christmas tree in front of the Garrett National Bank in Kitzmiller, thanks to efforts by students at Kitzmiller Elementary School. The children, under direction of their teachers and Mrs. Brenda McCartney, principal, made the decorations at the request of the town council and Mayor Lois Mosser. Supplies for the styrofoam stars and all the other materials were purchased by the town and the completed works of art were hung by Ben Sims and Rev. Juris Renesclasis. Some of the decorations are practical as well, providing food for the birds. A total of 87 students in kindergarten through grade five participated to provide adornment for the tree donated by Maple Lane Nursery, Short Run. This is the first time the town has had such a tree, according to the mayor.

He is an occasional co-host on 'Real People" and is currently starring in the film "A Michaelsen, still has an unful-Christmas Story," which is based on Jean Shepherd's book "In God We Trust, All like to see our children togeth-Others Pay Cash."

Despite the popularity of this kiddie-korn movie. Bill-ingsley is still probably best known for his out-of-character portraval of Messy Marvin on the Hershey syrup TV commercials. 'Tailored role' suits Sheehan comfortably

By Peter Meade

Douglas Sheehan was so eager to join the cast of "Knots Landing" that he didn't mind that there wasn't a well-defined role waiting for

"I was called in by the casting director at CBS," says the 34-year-old Sheehan, "and he told me they were thinking of adding me to the show. There was a void in Val's (Joan Van Ark) story line and they hired me to be her new love interest. I had no idea what they wanted

But it seems the show's writers soon did. They had seen the movie "The Year of Living Dangerously" decided Sheehan's character, Ben Gibson, would be a jour-Mel Gibson played in the 1983

"But they met me and found my personality was different," says Sheehan, "so they tailored the role to me. I'm supposed to be an international journalist who's involved in cable news, but I spend half the time in Val's kitchen and I have the time to drive her anywhere she wants. Ben is trying to settle down and that's my plot for the year, trying to settle down. He supposedly knows what life's about and he brings a calm, sedate wisdom to the show." But this calm, sedate wisdom has failed to have the profound positive effect on the show that Kevin Dobson and William Devane have. Almost halfway through the season and Gibson's personality is still unfocused. He hasn't displayed a dominant he-man personality and the evening soaps are definitely a race where good guys finish last.

But Sheehan remains patient because playing a good guy during his threeyear stint on "General Hospital" did not stop him from becoming a popular charac ter. He has found that many of his intensely loyal "GH" fans have tuned in to watch his current series. Some must have changed their allegiance from "Hill Street Blues" because this season "Knots Landing" has consistently finished higher in the ratings than its NBC competition.

'Hill Street Blues' is nothing more than a soap opera. says Sheehan, "but they try to camouflage it. Viewers are recognizing that and it sort of turns them off Fans of 'Knots Landing are fiercely loval and that's why our following

October and November are the only monthly bases needed for compiling the 1984 marketing year refund. To get a refund, producers must have reduced the total of October and November 1983 marketing by 8.4% from the totals of their October and November bases. As soon as you have your October and November sales receipts or check stubs, file them at the ASCS office. You should file before March 1, 1984.

Your September refund request must be filed by December 31, 1983.

Milk Diversion Program Announced

Producers who contract to reduce their milk marketings during the 15-month contract period will be paid $10.00 per CWT contracted. The period will be January 1, 1984 through March 31, 1985. Producers must sign a contract on or before January 31,

Farming in Maryland

Prior to signing a contract producers must establish their milk base marketings. Provide the ASCS office your sales receipts or check stubs for calendar years 1981-1982 if you want to use two years average. If you want to use only 1982, the receipts for 1982 CY is all that is needed. If a computer summary sheet has been provided by the milk handler and certified as accurate, then only sales receipts or check stubs for March and September 1981 and 1982 are needed to verify the computer sheet.

Holiday Plant Tips

Poinsettia is the most popular Christmas flower. Types grown now have brilliant colors and with care plants can be kept in good condition for several months. They require uniformly moist soil, a bright growing location, cool growing conditions and protection from blasts of either hot or cold air. To bring a poinsettia into bloom again is most difficult and not usually a satisfactory home effort.

Christmas Pepper is a true pepper. It is enjoyed for the bright red fruits and rich green foliage. Keep the plant lightly moist. Daily misting may help keep foliage from drying. Once the leaves and red fruits begin to fall, the plant should be discarded. It will not rebloom.

The colorful Jerusalem Cherry should also be enjoyed for its beauty and discarded when no longer attractive. Keep the soil moist, give the plant plenty of light but cool temperatures, about 50 to 60 degrees, are best. Caution-fruit of this plant is said to Christmas Cactus are quite popular and not difficult to grow year round and bring into bloom each holiday season. While in bloom, keep the plant lightly moist. After the blooms fade, keep the plant on the dry side. Increase water applied during spring and summer months. Flower buds develop during short days of fall provided no lights are on in the room where the plant is kept. Flower buds develop best if temperatures are in the 60 to 65 degree range during the fall bud development time. If temperatures go into the 70's during this time, no flower buds will develop regardless of the hours of light the plant receives from daylight or artificial sources.

Lists Available For Supplies Of Hay And Straw

If you are a farmer, you may need extra hay and straw to get your livestock through this winter. If you are a contractor, you probably need a lot of straw for berms. If you keep horses, you always need hav and straw . and, if you are a gardener,

material these days. One common problem for all of the above is a tight supply of hay and straw caused by the drought of 1983. This is where the Marketing Services Section of the Maryland Department of Agriculture may come to the GIANT POINSETTIA - The Garrett County Board of Education has this giant poinsettia (yes, it is just one) as part of its Christmas decorations in the Oakland office, compliments of the Northern High School horticulture class. The students, under the instruction of Harold Loughry, have nurtured this and 22 other poinsettias since last year, and have presented them to various persons throughout the county. This plant stands 56 inches from the floor and bears about 36 blossoms. Standing beside the plant is school board employee Dora White. Loughry says anyone with a young poinsettia this year can produce a plant like this by treating it as any other household plant. He says to give it plenty of sunshine (do not heed to directions to keep it in darkness) and fertilizer, and keep its soil moist. Cut a poinsettia back to eight inches the first of July, says Loughry, and prune it until the first of October. The blooms which grow after October 1 will produce a colorful Christmas plant.

Winter Trail Plan For County Lands To Be Developed

Garrett County has received preliminary approval from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources for a $7,500 grant to develop a winter trail plan of non-state-owned land in the county for snowmobilers and cross country skiers.

Anna McNallie, county senior on the plan, which still needs final approval by the state Board of Public Works.

McNallie explained that the project, scheduled for completion by the end of October 1984, will map out trails on privately-owned land with the consent of property owners. McNallie noted that some of the trails mapped in the plan may be connected to the state trail system. She is working with state personnel to explore this possibility as well as to draw from their expertise in trail development.

Working with her are Mike Gregory, interpretive specialist for the Maryland Forest and Park Service, John Walters, assistant forest manager of the Potomac and Garrett Forests. and Gary Sword, park manager of Swallow Falls-Herrington

Manor State Park. Citizens interested in the trail plan will have an opportunity to participate in developing the Continued on Page 4

THE CAT COMES BACK - Dr. Seuss immortalized the cat in the hat who came back, but Charlie the Remley cat found his way back without benefit of hat, map or ever having been to his destination. Charlie had been the pet of Ed and Sherri Remley for two years at their home near Paughville before the couple moved to an apartment on Second Street in Oakland the first of December. Since they can't have pets, the couple gave the cat to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ashby, who live along Route 219 about a mile south of Oakland. A day after Charlie was taken to his new "home," he disappeared. Three weeks later, Ed heard meowing at the back door of their apartment and there stood Charlie, purring loudly for joy at having found them at last. The animal had found his way to them even though he never before had been to Oakland. Sherri, pictured above with Charlie, says the cat seemed fine, healthy but hungry, so now they've rigged a shelter for him outside and he is once more a part of the family.

WHY A TITLE SEARCH?

A home is a peculiar kind of a purchase. Although you may be the only purchaser involved, others may also claim rights in the property.

For example, there may be an easement to restrict the use of your land. The seller may not have paid his taxes. A previously undisclosed heir of a former owner may appear and claim a share of the value. These are a few of the problems that can and do occur.

Your deed to the property does not eliminate claims that others may have. It simply transfers the seller's right of ownership to you.

But there are ways to protect yourself from these lurking dangers. A title search of public records will check for possible claims against the real estate. But for protection against hidden land title problems that even the most thorough search will not reveal - the answer is title insurance.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices

Hello, 1984! Here's wishing you and yours a happy, healthy new year, from your friends at Friendsville Pharmacy Maple Street, Friendsville, Md. (301) 746-5881

The Time Is Now . . .

Just when we were getting accustomed to writing 1983 on our checks and letters, we will now have to spend the next several weeks, perhaps months, trying to undo that finally established habit, crossing out the three and replacing it with a four. Supposedly time is one thing in our lives that is constant, yet it seems to be accelerating all the time.

For this writer, New Year's is that point in time to toss out spent calendars and a good excuse for a party; but not much else. It is really just another day. However, in order to fill this column at this time of year, we usually reflect a bit on themes related to

Because none of us has vet figured out a way to alter the pace of time, what is important is how we utilize our time and our attitudes about it.

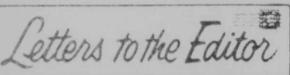

Many persons spend their time living in days and years gone by, constantly depressed because things just aren't the way they used to be. Accepting change is a bitter pill for these persons, and their tunnel vision toward the past doesn't allow them to see the beauty of today.

Others attempt to live only in the future, struggling and yearning for things yet to come, hoping only for better days ahead which may never come. Happiness and fulfillment for them seems to remain just out of their grasp for their entire lives.

The best advice we have found is simply to "live for today." There is no question that some things have changed for the worse over the years and their is nothing wrong with occasionally thinking about the "good of days." Reminiscing is fun. It is also probable that some wonderful things lie ahead in the future for us, when many aspects of life will be better. We learn from the past and we should set goals for the future.

However, fulfillment in life can be reached only by living in the present, by greeting each day with as much optimism as we can muster and by enjoying life from moment to moment. We can do nothing to bring back certain things from the past and we have only so much control over our futures. Wishing that certain things hadn't changed will not make them right again and yearning for things in the future day after day does not guarantee they will come to pass.

The present possesses so many wonderful things that are being missed by many who are wallowing in other times. The time for living is now. Life is short and we have only one chance here on earth. Why waste it

Try Our Want Ads. They Pay.

I always knew when he had come to visit us, even before I entered the house. The smell of spahetti sauce permeated our street and on cold winter days as I walked home from grade school, I could see the windows of our house clouded over and steamed from the enormous copper-bottomed pot of pasta boiling on my mother's stove. Grandpap would have usurped her kitchen and dirtied every pot and pan before his culinary masterpieces were completed. He even brought his own colander with him on the bus because we never had one large enough to suit him.

He would bring with him the traditional Italian delicacies which I still crave: the boiled chestnuts, the salt stick bread, the nougat candies which were packaged in pretty boxes with reproductions of Italian masterpieces.

Sometimes we would play a game with raisins on the kitchen table and the winner would get to eat the raisins. He always allowed me to win.

He has never looked any different to me, always short and wiry with a full head of white hair. When I was very young he would hold me on his knees and sing Italian folksongs. When I was a little older. I learned to play an accordion nearly larger than myself and he would sit with tears in his eyes while I played my barely-recognizable renditions of "O Sole Mio," "La Donna Mobile," and "Cilloto Lindo." I never knew if his tears were because my music had stirred memories of his youth and his homeland or, more likely, that I had butchered his beloved songs.

He was and is our adored patriarch. With little formal education he came to this country, one of the huddled masses that passed through Ellis Island. He left his wife and several children in Italy until he had scraped together enough money to bring them to America. In all, he reared ten children, and what he had begun as a fruit and vegetable stand grew into a family-operated farm and a bustling produce company. He went from a squalid ghetto to a fashionable neighborhood but his frugality and generosity never faltered in the transition.

He stills lives in the big yellow brick home with the garden plot and the grape arbor. Grandma passed on years ago and he ontinued, self sufficient and attended to by his ten children, 20 grandchildren, and I don't know how many great-grandchildren.

I saw him at Christmas, conscious that a lot of what I would like to know about has been lost to memory. He gave me something to eat because I still look "too thin" and he broke into an Italian folksong and reminisced about what a cute baby I had been. I watched as he poured vinegar in a bowl and fastidiously cleaned the eyeglasses he paid $19 for 25 years ago. I congratulated him on his 97th birthday he will observe next week. With a crutch under one arm and a cane in his other hand, he hobbled to the door to see me out. Then he kissed me goodbye and told me that he loved me and that he was proud of me. I ordered him to close the door before he caught a chill but mostly, I didn't want him to see the tears of a sentimental fool.

Milk Diversion Program - Workshop To Be Held Time: Wednesday, January 4, 1984 at 1:00 p.m.

Place: Garrett County Extension Office (Lower Courthouse) Third Street, Oakland.

As most of you are aware, the Milk Diversion Program was signed into law the last day of November 1983. To the present, I am sure you have read and heard many different interpretations of the bill. I am also sure that some of you are wondering if your participation in the program would be to your benefit financially. and what is required from you to sign up in the program.

G.P. Halterman, ASCS, and I would like to invite you to attend a workshop that should be helpful to you in the decisionmaking process on Wednesday, January 4 at 1 p.m. in the Extension Office. The major items we will be covering are:

1) Explanation of the intent of the bill 2) Important highlights of the bill.

3) Assist you in preparing a partial budget that should help you in making a financial decision on whether or not you should participate in the program.

4) Assist you in preparing the necessary information and

5) To answer any questions that may be of concern to you. Remember this! The time schedule is quick. There will be absolutely no latecomers to the program participation. Milk marketing history or base must be filed and verified by January 14. All other requirements must be completed by January 31.

The decision to participate in this program is not as simple as it may seem. Have you given any thought to what your situation may be after the 15-month period? If you gear up your herd after the 14 months, can you afford to sell the excess milk over your new lower base at a profit? These are the types of problems we are going to try to help you solve.

Please bring with you the following materials

1) Monthly milk sales receipts or check stubs for the calendar years of 1981 and 1982 or computer printouts or handwritten reports for each month of the 24-month base period that is certified as accurate and complete by the milk handler.

2) Individual cow records.

3) Your present feeding program. 4) All costs that you have on the cows:

Some of you will find it beneficial to participate in this program and others may find it not beneficial. This is the intent of the workshop-to help you make the right decision.

The following dairy farms were the top 20 producers in the Garrett County District according to the official DHIA records for November 1983. The records are based on actual milk and

Provisions Noted

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will begin accepting applications for the 1984 feed grain and wheat production adjustment program on January 16. The programs were announced well in advance of the signup period to give farmers ample opportunity to make decisions on their 1984 grain crops, said William B. Crum, chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Before signup begins, we are explaining as many program details to farmers as possible so they will know the requirements as well as the benefits of these programs,' Crum said. The acreage reduction programs are voluntary, he stated, however, only participating farmers will be eligible for commodity loans and target price protection. Wheat program participants are also eligible for payment-in-kind.

Crum said program questions most frequently asked relate to acreage abases, acreage reduction and acreage conservation reserve provisions. The wheat or feed grain acreage base for a regular farm is the average of the acres planted and considered planted to these crops for 1982 and 1983. For rotation farms, the base is the average of the planted and considered planted acres for the two previous years in the rotation that corresponds to 1984. For example, in a two year rotation, the base is established as the average of 1980 and 1982 planted and considered planted

Loan Program Rules Distributed

New regulations are being distributed to field offices this week with a goal of resuming the economic emergency loan program by December 22, Charles W. Shuman, administrator of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), said last week.

When the program begins again, FmHA is authorized to lend a total of $600 million in direct and guaranteed loans to farmers and ranchers suffering economic stress caused by the cost-price squeeze.

The loan program was first authorized in 1978 and expired in September 1981, after more than $6.6 billion had been loaned. It is being reopened for the 1984 fiscal year under order of the U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C.

Economic emergency loans are authorized for farmers and ranchers who are directly and primarily engaged in, and expect to continue in, agriculture production; are unable to get sufficient credit from their regular lenders; and need credit to maintain viable farming operations. FmHA can loan up to $400,000 to any one borrower under the economic

Among the permitted uses of loan funds are financing 1984 crop production; purchasing essential livestock, feed and equipment; paying family living and farm production debts that cannot be extended; and paying delinquent installments on farm and real estate debts if a lender is demanding pay

GRACES GOVERNOR'S MANSION - A tree from Garrett County is welcoming guests in the foyer at Governor Harry Hughes' mansion this Christmas season. The 20-foot Douglas fir came from the farm of Marshall Stacy, a 230-acre tree farm called Pinetum, and was given on behalf of the Maryland Christmas Tree Association. Stacy, the only full-time Christmas tree grower in the state, has several of his trees placed in prestigious places this yuletide. A 28-foot Douglas fir stands in the U. Naval Academy's Bancroft Hall in Annapolis while two 35-foot Douglas fir trees stand in the Hall of Nations at Washington's Kennedy Center. Stacy primarily sells his trees on two retail lots in the Washington-Baltimore area and generally cuts 3,000 trees of seven varieties for retail sale each year. Stacy was elected this month to represent the state on the National Christmas Tree Association board of directors.

Bambacus Objects To Transportation Fund Transfers

tion transferred $29 million from the transportation trust fund and this year there are plans for another $20 million transfer," he said, pointing out the transfer was secured in part from the 2.5 cent state gasoline tax increase enacted two years ago. Bambacus thinks the transfer could consequently suggest the tax hike is "not a very forthright measure" because the money "is not being used as it was intended" by the legislature.

The senator charged that "The state of Maryland has not committed itself to Route 48 and the economic development of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

He also believes such a transfer would "show a lack of respect for the taxpayers" since the 2.5 cent increase for each gallon of gas is "used increasingly for subways in metropolitan sections" of the

"That's no way to run government." he added

Sen. Bambacus went on to say that he reminded the Hughes administration that Route 48 is not only important to local residents but also to the midwest because businesses there often ship material through western Maryland on its way to the Port of Baltimore.

The senator also said "Since 1965 when the federal Appalachian Highway program began, the state has not worried about the three western counties because 80 to 90 percent during the past 18 years has come from the ARC. So the state should return money that would have otherwise been earmarked here.'

Bambacus further charged that little or none of the state's share of the new nickel a gallon federal gasoline tax increase has been used in western Maryland. "It's easy to agree with U.S. Rep. Byron when she criticises the state about Route 48," he added.

Jobless Picture Bleak The senator also talked with Hughes aides about more direct state funding support for the Job Training Partnership Act and action to further extend unemployment benefits to jobless residents seeking work.

Sen. John N. Bambacus recently stated his objections to Gov. Harry Hughes' plan to transfer about $20 million from the transportation trust fund into the general fund, saying his chief objection is that action demonstrates the administration's lack of commitment to

Neither of these items are specifically on the governor's 1984 legislative package, Bambacus noted.

The senator took the program to task, saying he asked if the governor will take more initiative with more creative ways to put people back to work while training them for better jobs. The answer was no and most of the JTPA is working with federal dollars. Concerning attempts to add state jobless benefits, Hughes aides told Bambacus there is "no initative on that matter" at this time.

"The only things we heard was that it is getting better across the state. That's good to hear but I had to remind them about pockets of unemployment in western Maryland, the Eastern Shore and part of Baltimore County. It's really great that the rest of the state is doing better but that doesn't help the 6,000 unemployed in Allegany County or the 7,000 in Washington County or the 2,000 in Garrett County," Bambacus de-

In conclusion, Bambacus said "I hope before January 11 (the start of the legislative session in Annapolis) some responsible people get to the governor and tell him about that." The senator also called for a "more compassionate state government" to help people who are doing all they can to cope with unemployment. Circuit Rider Funds Decrease

PTA Article Outlines Child Protection Rules

Christmas is a time when adults go out of their way to provide happy surprises and wanted gifts to children.

A child's year-round safety, though, is something priceless, to be protected with all means available. At Christmas and at all times, children need to be taught rules to ensure their protection, and the following article, from PTA Today, outlines good rules to teach children and other procedures to follow

Kidnapping, child sexual abuse-it would be nice if the world were free of such concerns, but since it isn't it helps to know how to protect children from these dangers. Articles in the December/January issue of PTA Today, the National PTA's magazine, discuss child sexual abuse, and ways parents

Child sexual abuse is a topic frequently avoided by parents because they do not believe it can happen to "their" child, says Beverly Slan, an active member of the Washington School PTA in Glenview, Illinois, and author of one of the articles in PTA Today. "No child, anywhere, is immune to the possibility of being sexually abused," says Slan.

Most parents worry that child sexual abuse offenders are strangers, when in actuality they are more likely to be persons you would least suspect. In the article, Irv Miller, Assistant State's Attorney in Cook County, Illinois, advises parents, "Don't be so trusting. I have seen cases where the offender was a youth organitherapist at a children's ly gain the child's confidence in order to establish a close, unbreakable bond. Many PTAs sponsor fingerpersonnel responded to 4,412 accidents. Most, especially the printing programs for children, PTA president, Joan Ball, likens to an insurance policy-"something parents hope they never have to use, but are important to have if needed." PTAs are adopting guidelines, working with police departments and have obtained funding for these programs. Since fingerprinting is only a means of identifying children but can not prevent child abduction, parents should consider preventive measures to protect their children. Child Find, a nonprofit organization dedicated to finding missing children, suggests the follow-

Rams Return To Win Column By Trouncing Stags

The Southern High Rams returned to the win column Friday evening at home by rolling over Elk Garden, 76-49, in the Stags' season opener. The victory improved the Rams' season record to 3-3 and gears them up for their annual Snowball Classic, set to begin Thursday evening.

Southern assumed control of the Elk Garden contest in the early moments, jumping out to a 19-12 advantage by the end of the first quarter and then taking a 40-21 lead into the locker room at halftime. The Rams built the advantage to 56-35 by the end of the third quarter, allowing Coach Oren Yoder to play his reserves most of the final period.

Jim Freeman paced the Rams with 18 points on nine buckets and teammate Steve Bennett was close behind with 16 markers on eight goals. Wayne Dixon finished with 11 points for the Rams and hauled down a game-high 11 rebounds. Leading the Stags' scoring attack was Steve Lyons who netted 14 points.

The Rams outgunned the Stags from the floor by a 32-21 margin and sunk 12 of 17 free to a seven-for-15 performance by Elk Garden.

Southern will meet Bedford High School in the opening Garrett, 1,654; Allegany, 1,562; round of their Snowball Classic following the 7 p.m. contest between defending champion St. rett, 1,186; Allegany, 1,373; siskin. Marie Goretti of Hagerstown Washington, 892 and St. Francis of Morgantown.

Deer Firearms Harvest Total Reaches 14,988

The preliminary 1983 deer firearms harvest totals have been tabulated and show an increase from last year. The un-ranged between 14 and 32 official total is 14,988 for the state of Maryland.

According to Robert L. Miller, Forest Wildlife Program manager of the Maryland Forest, Parks and Wildlife Service, the deer firearms season was November 26 to December 3, statewide, with an additional two days, December 9 and 10, for those hunting in Garrett, Allegany, Frederick, Washington and Carroll counties. Excellent hunting weather

DONATES SNOWMOBILE - Bill's Marine Service, Deep Creek Lake, recently donated a Polaris Long Track snowmobile to the WISP ski patrol to enable the rescue group to respond to injuries on the lower parts of the ski slope at the WISP Ski Area, McHenry. Estimates are that the two-passenger snowmobile will save the patrol up to five minutes of response time by eliminating the need to ride up the chair lift and ski down a trail to the injured skier. Seriously injured skiers will be towed in a Cascade rescue toboggan behind the snowmobile. The patrol has one other snowmobile. donated two years ago by Bill's Marine. Nutritious Food

by Ann B. Lane Consumer Affairs Officer Food And Drug Administration

The lowly soybean, once used by farmers to feed their animals, has become a high stakes agriculture commodity that food processors find ideal for producing new and traditional food items that are inexpensive and nutritious.

Thus, the American food industry and nutritionists have discovered what has been known in Asia for thousands of years: The soybean is adaptable to many human food uses and contains protein of a quality almost as high as that of animal-derived products -meat, fish, milk and eggs. For some years the soybean has been the mainstay of many vegetarians, and today is being used to replace, or is incorporated into, an increasing variety of traditional foods that provide high protein value.

The expanding use of soybeans in domestic food processing has come in part from the food industry's and the farmer's effots to produce sufficient quality protein for an increasing population. The foray of the soybean into the American food market also has resulted from increased knowledge and appreciation of its nutrition potential, and the development of ways to make sovbean-based foods acceptable to Americans, both as substitutes for traditional foods or incorporated with them.

Hundreds of foods on supermarket shelves now have soybean ingredients. Besides forming the basis of partial meat and dairy substitutes or extenders, decor, its large mass holds the article in New Shelter soybeans provide flour for baked and other typical cereal grain products such as pasta. There are soy grits and flakes, er ensures complete comsoy concentrates used in many foods, soy fiber, soy sauce, and tofu as well as other fermented or undermented Japanese or Chinese specialty foods. Sovant products are used to teins (TVPs), which can be shaped, colored, textured, etc., to resemble traditional foods. ed as replacements for traditional foods, Food and Drug Administration regulations require that their labels must note the substitution. The foods must also be at least as nutritious as the foods they replace or be labeled "imitation".

Food processors use soy proteins as extenders, seeking to blend them into existing foods without sacrificing the color, flavor, texture, odor, eating quality, nutrition and chemical characteristics. Overcoming or making the beany taste is one of the biggest hindrances to better acceptence of soybeans in this country.

The soybean and other plant proteins offer a practical promise of meeting the protein needs of people in this country and abroad. Some Asian and

BFS Foods Reports Breaking And Entering

A breaking and entering incident at BFS Foods early Tuesday and two destruction of property incidents are among the most recent investigations tiated by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department. Deputy D.W. Tucker reported

Tuesday that a complete inventory at the convenience food store along Route 135 had not been completed so it was not yet determined if anything had been taken. Sometime between December

The trailer is listed as the property of A & A Realty. There were no signs of forced entry, according to Deputy Richard Kutchman.

A destruction of property incident was reported in Rosedale on Christmas eve, according to a report filed by Deputy Tucker. That report was made by Larry Hershman, who complained that someone had broken the window in his front door. Estimated loss was $10.

Investigations are continuing into these and other cases brought to the department's attention, and anyone with information to offer is asked to ment, 334-2141, or Garrett Henry Keith Davis, 23, and County Crime Solvers, 334-3111.

New Year's Happiness Rules, by Little George

Were our first American President alive to give us a New Year's message, he would base his thoughts upon his background of 1) Hard work, 2) Public service, and 3) Worship of God.

A New Year's Challenge

It would be a challenge at the beginning of a new year to look around and find someone who seems to always be sad, ionely, or even downright sour, and try to help that person to have a happy frame of mind.

You might want to bring that person a special baked item, or a small gift of love from time to time. Looking into the reasons for that person's gloom you may find he's in financial need, hungering spiritually, or in ill health, and you can help to fill that cup

That person may find new happiness and new interests in hobbies or becoming involved in projects in which he too may put joy in someone else's life

Although you may not have all the financial means you'd likethere's one thing that doesn't cost a penny and we can all give -A Let's challenge ourselves to turn at least just someone's sadness to happiness this new year. New Years -- New Life

Wood Heating --

New Technologies Mixed With Age-Old Charm

Milder winters have helped many Americans adjust to fossil fuel prices for home heating. In the meantime, solid-fuel technology has made the age-old tradi tion of warming American homes an increasingly sophisticated industry

The words energy efficiency have taken on new meaning. Fireplace manufacturers, not content with sharpening the performance level of heat circulating models to a remarkable 50+ percent efficiency, are concentrating once on aesthetics. Ironially, they are making an efficient fireplace look less efficient and more decorative. Stove manufacturers, also affected by the demand for aesthetics, are producing decorator models, although the traditional "black box" is still preferred in some

But woodburning stoves were never really expected to be pretty like a fireplace They've always had to per form. And, the "ugly black box" has been the subject of accusations focusing on safety and the environment. What has resulted is the catalyst - similar to what

and creosote buildup. What above the seven or eight million stoves warming American's homes without benefit of the catalyst? Manufacturers have responded to this need by introducing the catalytic retrofit - an accessory that attaches to a wood stove not already manufactured with the catalyst, priced between $100 and $200. Labeled by industry trade magazines as "the accessory of the year", catalytic retrofits are in early stages of safety testing. In fact, the industry association, the Wood Heating Alliance, is developing safety standards with Underwriter's Laboratory at this time Wood heating has been around longer than history books can record. But sophistication has just recently come to this industry in the last decade. Rising fossil fuel prices and threats of oil embargos have made wood, America's renewable alter native fuel, one hope for is found in modern auto- energy independence.

SOFT-TONED WATERCOLORS depicting many scenic views in the county are part of the latest display of paintings by Carole Lupis at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland. This display represents some of her work over the past year and a half, and includes only a few scenes from areas other than this county. Mrs. Lupis, busy mother of two children and wife of James Lupis, administrative superintendent with the Board of Education, is a substitute teacher and right now she says she is finding little time for her creative abilities. These include making quilted baby blankets and handpainted skirts and hats which she sells through the Wye Corner Shop in Annapolis. All pictures on display in Oakland this month are also for sale. She also conducts a business from her home, advising people on interior design. A graduate of the University of North Carolina, she holds a degree in fine arts and has many additional credits at the graduate level in both education and interior design. She does most of her painting in a studio in her Oakland home.

In revising its revenue estimates for the current fiscal year, the board reduced its General Fund estimate, made in March, 1983, by nearly $2 million, to $3,391,779,000. "Retail sales tax revenue is growing at 13.2%, an unusually fast pace, and we increased our earlier sales tax estimate by $39.1 million to $965.2 million.

'However, income tax revenues have not kept pace with earlier estimates, so we ment and changes in federal have reduced that estimate by $21.3 million to $1.6 billion," the Comptroller stated. While 140,000 more Marylanders were working in October 1983 than in October 1982, personal income has not grown as much as expected. Federal law changes have also affected income tax revenues. "In addition, we reduced our earlier estimate of revenue from some franchise and excise taxes and from hospital patient fee recoveries by a total of $9.6 million to $504.9 million," Goldstein said. "Lower interest rates and fund balances are the reasons we reduced our earlier estimate of state interest income by $14 million to $36 mil-

The board projects $229.1 in state Lottery revenue to be available for fiscal year 1985, and estimates revenues from

Today's tip is in getting the chicken ready for coating-the outer skin could be removed to alleviate extra calories and fat. This can also be true for any meats by simply trimming off any visible excess fat.

If maybe you would like to add a little variety in the taste of other meats as well as chicken, the American Heart Association also has available spices that can be added for tastier dishes.

The Western Maryland Consortium placed 565 people in jobs in Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties between October 1, 1982, and September 30, 1983, stated Peter Thomas, consortium executive director, in a report released recently.

Thomas noted the accomplishment "is particularly noteworthy given the high unemployment rate in Western Maryland and is attributed to the cooperative efforts of local elected officials who serve as a governing executive committee, community-based organizations, the Western Maryland Consortium staff and increased interest and participation on the part of private industries." The 565 persons placed in jobs represents a 41 percent placement rate for the Consortium, a figure which exceeds the 35 percent rate expected by the U.S. Department of Labor which funded the training and employment services offered disadvantaged individuals through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. The Western Maryland Consortium underwent a change in programs when C.E.T.A. ended and the Jobs Training Partnership Act became effective on October 1. The J.T.P.A. legislation provides for an increased participation of private industry through the establishment of a Private Industry Council which is involved in the employment and training efforts of the Consortium. The Consortium has received $3.1 million from October 1, unemployed people, youth and J.T.P.A. The money is to be used for occupational skills training, classroom training, programs, skills upgrading and

ARRAIGNMENT

The Book of Isaiah begins with a great trial which sums up pretty well the rest of the book. In this trial, which one biblical scholar called "The Great Arraignment," we can discern the various actors in a court of law. Yet, it is not an ordinary trial, but one of cosmic proportions. For in these proceedings it is evident that God is both the Plaintiff and the Judge. The Jury is composed of Heaven and Earth. And the Defendants? It is the people of Judah who stand accused.

THE CHARGE

Of what are they accused? Isaiah lays it out for all to see: they are "a sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, offspring of evildoers, sons who deal corruptly! They have forsaken the Lord, they have despised the Holy One of Israel..." (Is. 1:4).

And the evidence: "Your country lies desolate, your cities dow" (Is. 1:16, 17). Then and are burned with fire; in your very only then can the Defendants be presence aliens devour your pardoned. land; it is desolate..." (Is. 4:7).

But surely the people of Judah have a defense! Yes, they remind the Judge of their piety, their worship, the sacrifices they offer in the Temple, their special feast days and ritual observances. Surely this is evidence of their picty and faithfulness. Surely Creek Lake and Oakland, on Rt. 219. Saturday morning services: Sabbath School at they have been wrongly accused! The cross-examination by the plaintiff, however, is withering:

THE VERDICT

Then suddenly, the arraignment trial is over. There is no need for any more evidence. That which has been presented is more than enough to convict them. They are guilty, even though in their own hearts they may not yet have acknowledged it.

I must confess that I have previously misinterpreted Isaiah 1: 18-20, as have many people. I assumed that the Judge was of fering the Defendants unconditional pardon: "...though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be white as snow; though they are red like crimson, they shall become like wool." But, according to Biblical scholars, these verses mean that the Judge is castigating the Defendants for their hardness of heart. What he is saying, then, is something like this: "Although your sins are like scarlet, you think they are white as snow." No, the forgiveness is not unconditional, but is dependent upon their response to this conviction: "Wash yourselves; make yourselves clean ... cease to do evil, learn to do good; seek justice, correct oppression; defend the fatherless, plead for the wi-
